Wicks Denies Sending Ashby to Buckley; States Barieka Gave $2,300 to GOP Fund

Criticism Of Budget Is Heavy

Some Want Cuts, Others Ask More

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The biggest crowd of budget critics in many years swooped down on Gov. Rockefeller's record tax and spending plan today with conflicting demands for less taxes and more spending.

Labor Raps Tax Plan

The Republican governor's fiscal program, which came under fresh attack from GOP assemblymen Tuesday, drew heavy fire from many quarters at the annual budget hearing.

The state AFL-CIO, speaking for organized labor, said Rockefeller "should be ashamed to even think" of raising income taxes on low-wage families.

A statewide taxpayers group claimed Rockefeller's big, new tax plan "may seriously injure the business climate of the state," although he has promised to improve the economy.

Wants More Aid

But the New York City Board of Education protested the budget —the first to top two billion dollars — did not give public schools enough extra state aid to cope with rising costs.

The criticism was leveled in statements prepared for what promised to be the stormiest budget hearing in recent years.

425 Ready to Speak

Hundreds of people—425 at the latest count—clamored to speak and more than a thousand others demanded admission to watch the wrangling over Rockefeller's $2,041,000 proposed budget.

The governor has asked for 277 million in new taxes, including a 150-million income tax boost, to help finance the spending program.

The prospect of a heavy turnout, dwarfing any Albany has seen in many years, forced the Legislature's fiscal committees to shift the hearing from the Assembly chamber to the more spacious Chancellor's Hall.

On the eve of the hearing, Acting Speaker Joseph F. Carlino called the Assembly's Republican majority into conference for what he called "an exploratory discussion" of the budget.

12 May Bolt Party

One assemblyman, who would not be quoted by name, reported that at least a dozen lawmakers declared they would not vote for the fiscal plan in its present form because of mounting protests from home. Several others spoke against it, he said.

With Democrats aligned solidly against the income-tax plan, the GOP leadership must marshal at least 76 of the 92 Republican members to put the budget across.

Carlino declined to predict whether the budget would gain Assembly approval. He said it was too soon to say.

He told reporters after the Claims Ike Sure Dulles Will Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — "That's cockeyed."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave that reply Tuesday night when asked about reports President Eisenhower is concerned over the possibility that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles may not be able to resume his duties.

The reports came from Republican congressional sources after Dulles entered Walter Reed Hospital for a hernia operation and treatment of a recurring intestinal inflammation.

Scoffs at Reports

Hagerty also scoffed at other reports that Eisenhower is giving serious consideration to a possible successor to Dulles.

Along the same line, an influential GOP official came away from the White House with a report he was convinced that every member of the President's official family expects Dulles to recover rather swiftly.

At Walter Reed, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the surgeon who will operate on Dulles, said the hernia operation will be a simple one. He predicted the 70-year-old Cabinet member will be on his feet a short time later.

Some Are Mentioned

Despite official denials, however speculation was reported running through administration circles as to a possible successor if Dulles is unable to return.

The most frequently mentioned name was said to be that of John J. McCloy, New York banker and former U.S. high commissioner to Germany.

Also among those being considered are Under Secretary of State Christian Herter, who will fill in for Dulles, and Under Secretary C. Douglas Dillion.

Non-Residents May Get Relief From State Tax

NEW YORK (AP) — Administrative machinery is in motion to grant New York State income tax relief to non-residents.

Gov. Rockefeller said Tuesday a report on the situation "points out certain inequities and sets forth proposed remedies."

Rockefeller said he asked New Jersey and Connecticut officials to comment on the report before the three states sought to work out something definite.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Rep. Donald J. Irwin (D-Conn) endorsed a bill by Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D-NJ), which would ease the income tax burden of residents of one state who work in another.

Rodino's bill provides for nonresidents to get the same tax treatment as residents and would authorize congressional consent to states to enter into compacts providing for uniform taxation.

Non-residents working in New York State currently pay an average of 45 per cent more than residents in state income taxes because they are not permitted the same deductions.

Brandt Assured U. S. Will Stay In Free Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin said today President Eisenhower assured him "no Communist threat whatsoever" will force the United States out of that city.

The Social Democratic mayor issued a brief statement after spending nearly half an hour with Eisenhower.

"The President was glad to have my report on the situation in Berlin. He seemed pleased to hear that my fellow citizens are not in the least frightened by the renewed Communist threats against their city and that they are absolutely certain that the Western Allies will stand by them. The President gave me the firm assurance that the United States shall defend the people of free Berlin against any effort to destroy their freedom," the statement said.

"He added that no Communist threat whatsoever shall deter the United States from the discharge of its responsibilities to the people of Berlin and that the United States shall not be pushed out of free Berlin."

2 Leap From Truck, Escape 'Hot' Wires

Several narrow escapes in vehicular mishaps on icy roads were reported in Kingston and Ulster County during the night, one involving an Ulster County highway department sanding truck.

Those involved in the truck accident, which occurred on the Abeel Street hill, and drivers of two vehicles which skidded off Route 9W near the River Road, Port Ewen, within five minutes of each other early last night, claimed no injuries.

Miraculous Escapes

A Port Ewen resident reported that drivers of the two cars which skidded out of control on the Broadway hill as they descended past the cemetery, had "miraculous escapes."

The driver and a helper in the sanding truck reportedly leaped as the huge vehicle began sliding on a glare of ice, thus escaping possible electrocution when a utility pole snapped off, dropping "hot wires" over the truck and roadway.

Samuel Moss, operator of Sam's Sandwich Shoppe, was less fortunate, suffering cuts of the right hand in a fall from a ladder in his luncheonette at 243 Fair Street late Tuesday afternoon.

It required 16 stitches to repair painful lacerations of the hand and fingers.

Mrs. Moss said her husband was on a ladder in the luncheonette when it slipped, plunging him through two glass sections of a pie case.

Mr. and Mrs. Moss had planned to leave Friday to visit his relatives in Virginia. They still plan to go this weekend. Moss spent a comfortable night at his home, sleeping pretty well despite the painful cuts.

Skids on Hill

John A. Sulko, 32, of RD 1, Box 369, Kingston, operator of a county sanding truck, and Walter Gemmell of 50 Hunter Street, who was working with him, narrowly escaped injury about 3 a. m. today when the vehicle began skidding on the Abeel Street hill as it proceeded downgrade near Ravine Street on its way to the Eddyville section.

They leaped free of the truck before it snapped off a utility pole, draping hot wires over the street, and continued into the porch of a home owned by James F. Dwyer at 166 Abeel Street. Extensive damage resulted to the porch, roof, door, brick and frame siding and a wooden fire escape. The entire front of the truck was heavily damaged, the front wheels buckled back underneath the body.

About 7:20 p. m. Tuesday a car operated by Mrs. William Webster Jr., of Port Ewen, traveling north toward the village, skidded out of control on Route 9W near the River Road, jumped through a hedge, missed a large blue spruce by inches, continu-

An end at last appeared in sight to the long and bitter dispute over the British island colony in the Mediterranean, off the south coast of Turkey.

Turkish Foreign Minister Fatin Rustu Zorlu said the agreement would strengthen the Western alliance.

Ashby's Second Grand Jury Report Read Into Minutes

Rumors of others who may have been involved in check cashing for the late Frank Buckley, Troy snow equipment dealer, had come to the attention of Edwin W. Ashby according to his testimony before the special "kickback" investigation grand jury last October.

On his second appearance Ashby, on leave without pay from his position as Ulster County Commissioner of Jurors pending trial of a perjury indictment, told the grand jury he had heard the name of Morgan D. Ryan mentioned but knew nothing about it.

Warned by Buckley

Ashby said he knew Harry Barieka and had once "started to talk to him" about the Buckley affair but did not since he had been warned by Buckley not to discuss the matter of the checks with anyone.

The grand jury was told by Ashby that he had not mentioned anyone else at his first appearance before the grand jury on October 2, 1958, because he did not want to "involve" anyone in the matter because he knew the Tompkins investigation was conducting a thorough investigation into the "oil" business.

Ashby also told the grand jury on his appearance before it on October 27, 1958, that Joseph Koenig, who was appointed Ulster county treasurer by Governor Harriman at the time of County Treasurer Albert N. Cook's death, had made out his income tax for several years but had never questioned him about the large sums of money derived from the Buckley checks which he reported on his tax returns.

According to the testimony of Ashby given before the grand jury and read into the minutes Tuesday at the perjury trail, the amounts of the checks from Buckley were given to Koenig at the time he made out Ashby's income tax return.

"Once I told him I did not get all of the money," Ashby is quoted as having told the grand jury.

Asked if he had ever discussed the checks with Koenig, Ashby said he had not, he had not told him he went to Troy at the request of Senator Arthur H. Wicks.

Ashby also told the grand jury in reply to a question by Special Prosecutor Tompkins that he did not tell anyone of the check cashing, "Koenig was the only one who knew about it." and he said later that Harry Barieka on one occasion knew he (Ashby) did not get the money from the checks. He had testified he once went to Troy with Barieka.

Asked if any one except Buckley, who is dead, knew about the checks in order that Ashby's testimony might be corroborated, he said only Senator Wicks, Vincent Rowan and Koenig, and possibly the one time when Barieka took him to Troy.

Ashby told the grand jury he had not told Joeph Koenig, who was of the opposite party, that Senator Wicks had sent him to Troy to pick up the checks.

During the reading of the Ashby testimony given before the special grand jury, Ashby told that body he had cashed the big checks and returned the money to Buckley, but had cashed and kept the proceeds from some of the smaller ones, or had deposited them in the Kingston Trust in Kingston.

Ashby said he had not questioned Buckley when he made out the checks and asked that the money be returned to him after Ashby cashed them.

"He asked me if he made out the checks for more than the

Ike Sees Summit by End of '59

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower apparently believes that a summit conference late this year is a definite possibility.

Such a meeting would bring him and other Western government heads face-to-face with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev for a discussion of critical East-West issues. These undoubtedly would include questions of Germany and of disarmament.

Depends on Talks

Whether a conference is actually arranged probably will depend partly on whether East-West negotiations in the meantime ease Soviet pressures to get the United States, Britain and France out of West Berlin.

Eisenhower himself brought up the subject of a summit meeting briefly at his news conference Tuesday in discussing a question about the effect of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' illness on prospects for a foreign ministers meeting.

The President said he thought that Dulles' condition would not delay a foreign ministers conference, but noted that there has been no agreement with the Soviets yet on actually holding such a session. Then he added:

"I believe the Russians themselves . . . more concerned, Mr. Khrushchev is concerned, in a heads of government meeting, as he calls an informal and without-an-agenda type.

Sees Much Preparation

"Well, that would take a great deal of preparation."

Soviet spokesmen, including Khrushchev and Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan have repeatedly called for a heads of government conference.

Despite the disagreement over the amount of advance preparation needed, informed officials say that a summit conference is indeed a possibility as things now stand.

Diplomats have reported that British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is particularly interested in such a meeting. Macmillan faces the prospect of parliamentary elections within a year. Washington authorities say British political pressures were responsible for bringing about the summit conference at Geneva in 1955.

No Funds From Troy, He Reports

Koenig on Stand At Recess Time

Former Senator Arthur H. Wicks testified at the Ashby perjury trial before Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg this morning that he did not send Edwin W. Ashby to Troy to see the late Frank Buckley and had never received political contributions from Buckley.

Appears Voluntarily

Appearing voluntarily on invitation of Special Prosecutor Bernard Tompkins, Wicks said N. Levan Haver defense counsel, had formerly been his attorney and on Haver's advice he had declined to appear voluntarily before the special grand jury investigating kickbacks. He has never appeared before the grand jury.

Wicks testified that three political contributions had been received from Harry Barieka of Kingston, salesman for the Walter Motor Truck Company, in the amounts of $500, $800 and $1,000. None of the contributions was reported because Barieka indicated that he did not want them reported.

The contributions were received in an envelope and turned over to Conrad J. Heiselman in the front office. He was told not to report them. Wicks said that he did not know at the time the amounts of the contributions.

Advised Against Appearance

Prior to his departure for Florida in Deember, Wicks said he had conferred with Tompkins about the kickback probe. After that conference he went directly to Haver's office and was advised not to go before the grand jury unless subpoenaed.

Wicks said he met the late Frank Buckley at the state convention in Syracuse in 1950. They never had any social relations.

Newburgh Asks Urban Renewal

NEWBURGH, N. Y. (AP) — The City of Newburgh has applied to the federal government for an urban renewal program involving nearly three million dollars.

Officials said the project, scheduled in a 26-acre, so-called blighted area, calls for the demolition of 235 buildings, 217 of them residential structures. To be erected are garden-type apartments and row houses, playgrounds, modern streets and some commercial buildings.

The city expects to get about two million dollars from the government, officials said. To this would be added a credit of about $875,000 for projects already planned, including a new elementary school, and a cash outlay of about $125,000.

Legalize Betting or Permit Referendum, Gotham to State

NEW YORK (AP) — The City Council has adopted a resolution asking the Legislature and Gov. Rockefeller to immediately legalize off-track betting in the city on horse races.

As a second choice, the council asked the Legislature and governor that the issue be submitted to the people in a referendum.

The plea to Albany was made Tuesday by a 19-1 vote after sharp debate.

The governor hinted Monday that the state might give Mayor Robert F. Wagner's administration a choice between an increase in the city sales tax and a tax levy on off-track betting.

Wagner was asked at a news conference Tuesday what his choice would be in that case.

"Off-track betting, of course," he replied. "It has always been either, but not both."

Wagner said details of the city's betting proposal would be submitted at Albany by the end of this week.

If the state okays off-track betting, there will be no increase in the 3 per cent sales tax, Wagner said, but if the state does not, the city will seek authority to increase the sales tax.

Wagner estimated that the city might expect an annual tax yield of 100 million dollars from legalized off-track betting. He predicted that a similar amount would go to the state.

Storm Dead Now At 21, Seven Are Reported Missing

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The number of dead caused by the tornado which gouged across St. Louis Tuesday has reached 21. Another seven persons are missing, and at least 70 more are in hospitals.

Only one of those hospitalized was on the critical list.

Relief workers still are measuring dimensions of the misery inflicted by the twister. The Red Cross estimated 1,400 homeless in St. Louis and the county.

Loss Is $12 Million

The Insurance Board of St. Louis said 4,000 buildings were damaged at a loss of 12 million dollars.

President Eisenhower declared the stricken city a disaster area, making it eligible for federal relief funds.

The tornado first touched down with minor damage in Brentwood, a West St. Louis suburb. Then it

Former Senator Arthur H. Wicks testified at the Ashby perjury trial before Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg this morning that he did not send Edwin W. Ashby to Troy to see the late Frank Buckley and had never received political contributions from Buckley.

Appears Voluntarily

Appearing voluntarily on invitation of Special Prosecutor Bernard Tompkins, Wicks said N. Levan Haver defense counsel, had formerly been his attorney and on Haver's advice he had declined to appear voluntarily before the special grand jury investigating kickbacks. He has never appeared before the grand jury.

Wicks testified that three political contributions had been received from Harry Barieka of Kingston, salesman for the Walter Motor Truck Company, in the amounts of $500, $800 and $1,000. None of the contributions was reported because Barieka indicated that he did not want them reported.

The contributions were received in an envelope and turned over to Conrad J. Heiselman in the front office. He was told not to report them. Wicks said that he did not know at the time the amounts of the contributions.

Advised Against Appearance

Prior to his departure for Florida in Deember, Wicks said he had conferred with Tompkins about the kickback probe. After that conference he went directly to Haver's office and was advised not to go before the grand jury unless subpoenaed.

Wicks said he met the late Frank Buckley at the state convention in Syracuse in 1950. They never had any social relations.

Newburgh Asks Urban Renewal

NEWBURGH, N. Y. (AP) — The City of Newburgh has applied to the federal government for an urban renewal program involving nearly three million dollars.

Officials said the project, scheduled in a 26-acre, so-called blighted area, calls for the demolition of 235 buildings, 217 of them residential structures. To be erected are garden-type apartments and row houses, playgrounds, modern streets and some commercial buildings.

The city expects to get about two million dollars from the government, officials said. To this would be added a credit of about $875,000 for projects already planned, including a new elementary school, and a cash outlay of about $125,000.

MAYOR BUYS FIRST TICKET—Mayor Edwin F. Radel (center) buys first ticket for fourth annual Automobile Show opening tonight at 7 o'clock in the State Armory, Manor Avenue. The salesman is Jack Hayes, president of the Kingston Automobile Dealers Association, Inc., which will give the proceeds to charity. At right is James Lukehart, chairman of the 1959 show. The 156th Field Artillery drillshed is filled with shiny new cars and accessories figured to interest every motorist. Hours tonight, Thursday and Friday are 7 p. m. to 10:30. Saturday, 2 p. m. to 10:30. The various ...s of former shows are offered again this year. (Freeman photo).

Legalize Betting or Permit Referendum, Gotham to State

NEW YORK (AP) — The City Council has adopted a resolution asking the Legislature and Gov. Rockefeller to immediately legalize off-track betting in the city on horse races.

As a second choice, the council asked the Legislature and governor that the issue be submitted to the people in a referendum.

The plea to Albany was made Tuesday by a 19-1 vote after sharp debate.

The governor hinted Monday that the state might give Mayor Robert F. Wagner's administration a choice between an increase in the city sales tax and a tax levy on off-track betting.

Wagner was asked at a news conference Tuesday what his choice would be in that case.

"Off-track betting, of course," he replied. "It has always been either, but not both."

Wagner said details of the city's betting proposal would be submitted at Albany by the end of this week.

If the state okays off-track betting, there will be no increase in the 3 per cent sales tax, Wagner said, but if the state does not, the city will seek authority to increase the sales tax.

Wagner estimated that the city might expect an annual tax yield of 100 million dollars from legalized off-track betting. He predicted that a similar amount would go to the state.

TORNADO AFTERMATH — This was the scene on one St. Louis street after a tornado cut a path of death and destruction through the city. The twister battered buildings, tore down power lines and toppled radio and TV towers. (NEA Telephoto)

Storm Dead Now At 21, Seven Are Reported Missing

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The number of dead caused by the tornado which gouged across St. Louis Tuesday has reached 21. Another seven persons are missing, and at least 70 more are in hospitals.

Only one of those hospitalized was on the critical list.

Relief workers still are measuring dimensions of the misery inflicted by the twister. The Red Cross estimated 1,400 homeless in St. Louis and the county.

Loss Is $12 Million

The Insurance Board of St. Louis said 4,000 buildings were damaged at a loss of 12 million dollars.

President Eisenhower declared the stricken city a disaster area, making it eligible for federal relief funds.

Important Tax Date for Farmers

An important date is coming up for many self-employed farmers. Those who report by the calendar year, and who did not file an estimated return by January 15, must file a federal income tax return and pay the social security tax on their net earnings on or before February 15, George J. Johnson, manager of the Kingston Social Security district office, said today.

A farm operator should bear in mind that while net farm earnings up to $4,800 in the year will be taxable for social security purposes in 1959, the maximum amount a farmer may report for social security purposes on his 1958 earnings is $4,200. Also, while the social security tax on his earnings this year will be 3¾ per cent, the social security tax due on his 1958 self-employment earnings is 3⅜ per cent.

A farmer reports his net earnings for social security purposes on Schedule F (Schedule of Farm Income and Expenses) which is a part of his Federal Income Tax Return, Form 1040 (U. S. Individual Income Tax Return). At the bottom of this schedule is Schedule SE on which he enters the amount of his earnings which can be credited to his social security account, the amount of the social security tax on these earnings and his social security account number.

Johnson reminds farmers that they must report and pay the social security tax if their net earnings from self-employment were $400 or more in 1958 even if they do not owe any income tax for that year. Booklets are available in the Kingston Office located at 61 Albany Avenue.

State to Maintain Bridges Located On Its Highways

ALBANY — State Department of Public Works is going to accelerate its program of taking over all bridges on the state highway system that are now the responsibility of towns and counties, so that within a year the state's local governments will not be required to maintain any structures on state highways.

J. Burch McMorran, state superintendent of public works, announced the speed-up today in a talk before the state's town highway superintendents at the annual Association of Towns' meeting at the Hotel Commodore in New York City.

To Acquire 300

McMorran told representatives of 932 townships that during the coming year approximately 300 bridges will be acquired by the state. Some of the structures will be rebuilt as a part of the department's 1959 construction program; the remainder will be taken over for repairs and maintenance by state forces.

The state's action, McMorran said, will put the responsibility for maintenance and reconstruction of these bridges with the state where it rightfully belongs.

By relieving the localities of these structures on state highways, he said, it is hoped that the towns will turn their attention, efforts and funds to the improvement of existing narrow and weak bridges on their own town highway system, in conjunction with town road improvements made possible by the state's continuing town highway improvement program initiated in 1952 through legislation sponsored by Senator Austin W. Erwin, chairman of the Temporary State Commission on Agriculture.

270 Taken Over

McMorran pointed out that the taking over of the bridges has been under way for some time, and that since 1956 about 270 such structures have been acquired by the state.

Acquisition of the bridges can be accomplished by official order of the state superintendent of public works, as currently provided for in the Highway Law, and no new or additional legislation is required, McMorran said.

Slaying Suspect Gives Self Up In News Room

NEW YORK (AP) — A factory worker sought by police as the rape-slayer of a 58-year-old woman surrendered today in the editorial room of the New York Daily News.

The fugitive, Stewart Mayron, 26, of Queens, was turned over to detectives and taken to the Flushing police station for questioning.

The victim was Miss Theresa Schellderfer of Flushing.

Booked on Homicide

Mayron was booked on a charge of homicide and held for arraignment in Ridgewood Felony Court. Police said he freely admitted the slaying.

Joseph Donnelly, early morning city editor of the Daily News, received a telephone call about 1:30 a. m. from a man who asked "would you like to solve a murder?"

Donnelly invited the caller to come to the News office, and got a bit of information.

The caller said he had killed a woman while he was drunk. He said he had met her in a bar, he didn't know her identity, but he gave her Flushing address as the scene of the crime.

The caller arrived at the News office about 2:15 a. m. Meanwhile, Donnelly had assigned reporter John Cirri to work with him on the case.

Calm at Surrender

Mayron was calm as he surrendered and later was taken away by two detectives who went to the News office.

Police had sent out an alarm for Mayron Tuesday night. He had been under suspicion since Monday, they said.

Mayron was on parole after serving a three-year sentence in Elmira Reformatory for theft of a truck. He was scheduled to report to his parole officer at 8 p. m. Tuesday. Police, not wishing to tip him off that he was under suspicion, withheld the alarm and waited for him to report. But Mayron failed to report to the parole officer, and the alarm was sent out immediately.

Congress May Get Confused Over Money Problems, Too

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — You think you're confused? Wait till you read this.

President Eisenhower has protested repeatedly against what he calls the spenders and demands that Congress stay within the 77-billion-dollar budget he sent up in January.

Just as a starter on how things can get mixed up: Congress can ignore his requests for economy and vote far more money than he asked. On the other hand, in some cases he doesn't have to spend it even if Congress votes it.

Some For Later Spending

And some of what's voted this year may be meant for spending a couple of years from now. There's a big difference between appropriations and expenditures.

The Eisenhower barbs about spenders apparently nettled Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, leader of the Senate Democrats. This week he said that over the past six years Congress appropriated 22 billion dollars less than Eisenhower's budgets asked.

Whereupon Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, leader of the Senate Republicans, announced the Eisenhower administration was getting together the full story, including "everything relating to the budget," and that he'd produce it.

It's a good guess that when the two leaders and all the other Democrats and Republicans get through arguing about the figures, not only the general public but perhaps most members of Congress will be more bemused than before.

Things Get Mixed Up

One expert on government finances told this writer: "When it comes to voting on money problems, Congress is a place where the left hand knoweth not what the right is doing."

He didn't mean anyone was slipping a fast one over on anyone. He just meant things get mixed up.

The House and Senate Appropriations committees were created to examine money requests from the executive branch of the government and decide what's needed. But those committees are not the only ones passing on money problems.

Eisenhower's budget, for instance, contains all kinds of requests for money in one form or another. The whole budget is not solely the Appropriations committees' baby. Some parts of it go to other committees.

Who gets what depends on the nature of what is asked.

Say the Senate Banking Committee comes up with a housing program that requires government backing. There are various kinds of housing in the program: one may deal with college housing, another with slum clearance. Because one program requires a certain kind of action and money, the Senate Banking Committee handles it. But another, requiring different handling and financing, will go from the Banking Committee to the Appropriations Committee.

Then there's this case: the Appropriations Committee will approve a certain budget expenditure which is really an authorization to the Eisenhower administration to draw a check on the Treasury and spend the money this year.

Then the same committee may approve authorization for the government to obligate itself to spend money in a future year, but not this one or the next. For example: authority to make a contract to build a missile which won't be ready till 1962.

And the money Eisenhower requested in the budget he sent Congress in January is not the only money Congress will vote this year. Last June, for instance, Congress may have voted money to carry a government agency through till next June.

But now the same agency comes back, saying what it got was not enough, and it needs more to pay its expenses till June.

This is called a request for a supplemental appropriation. That means supplemental to what Congress voted last year for this year and not supplemental to what Congress votes this year for next.

Farmers Push For State Label On Quality Eggs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Farmers in eight southeastern counties pushed a plan today to bolster the state's position as a source of high-quality eggs.

The counties involved are Ulster, Westchester, Rockland, Sullivan, Putnam, Dutchess, Suffolk and Orange.

Under the proposal, poultrymen and egg handlers in the area will market their eggs with the red label that the state uses to designate superior farm products. The operation will be based on rigid quality controls at the farm, and strict inspection and grading at cartoning plants.

It was developed during a 14-month study made by the State Agriculture Department, the State College of Agriculture and the Extension service.

Before going into operation, the plan must be approved by farm leaders in the eight counties.

Other farm products now marketed under the red label trademark include potatoes, ready-to-cook turkeys and chickens.

Slaying Suspect Gives Self Up In News Room

NEW YORK (AP) — A factory worker sought by police as the rape-slayer of a 58-year-old woman surrendered today in the editorial room of the New York Daily News.

The fugitive, Stewart Mayron, 26, of Queens, was turned over to detectives and taken to the Flushing police station for questioning.

The victim was Miss Theresa Schellderfer of Flushing.

Booked on Homicide

Mayron was booked on a charge of homicide and held for arraignment in Ridgewood Felony Court. Police said he freely admitted the slaying.

Joseph Donnelly, early morning city editor of the Daily News, received a telephone call about 1:30 a. m. from a man who asked "would you like to solve a murder?"

Donnelly invited the caller to come to the News office, and got a bit of information.

The caller said he had killed a woman while he was drunk. He said he had met her in a bar, he didn't know her identity, but he gave her Flushing address as the scene of the crime.

The caller arrived at the News office about 2:15 a. m. Meanwhile, Donnelly had assigned reporter John Cirri to work with him on the case.

Calm at Surrender

Mayron was calm as he surrendered and later was taken away by two detectives who went to the News office.

Police had sent out an alarm for Mayron Tuesday night. He had been under suspicion since Monday, they said.

Mayron was on parole after serving a three-year sentence in Elmira Reformatory for theft of a truck. He was scheduled to report to his parole officer at 8 p. m. Tuesday. Police, not wishing to tip him off that he was under suspicion, withheld the alarm and waited for him to report. But Mayron failed to report to the parole officer, and the alarm was sent out immediately.

Congress May Get Confused Over Money Problems, Too

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — You think you're confused? Wait till you read this.

President Eisenhower has protested repeatedly against what he calls the spenders and demands that Congress stay within the 77-billion-dollar budget he sent up in January.

Just as a starter on how things can get mixed up: Congress can ignore his requests for economy and vote far more money than he asked. On the other hand, in some cases he doesn't have to spend it even if Congress votes it.

Some For Later Spending

And some of what's voted this year may be meant for spending a couple of years from now. There's a big difference between appropriations and expenditures.

The Eisenhower barbs about spenders apparently nettled Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, leader of the Senate Democrats. This week he said that over the past six years Congress appropriated 22 billion dollars less than Eisenhower's budgets asked.

Whereupon Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, leader of the Senate Republicans, announced the Eisenhower administration was getting together the full story, including "everything relating to the budget," and that he'd produce it.

It's a good guess that when the two leaders and all the other Democrats and Republicans get through arguing about the figures, not only the general public but perhaps most members of Congress will be more bemused than before.

Things Get Mixed Up

One expert on government finances told this writer: "When it comes to voting on money problems, Congress is a place where the left hand knoweth not what the right is doing."

He didn't mean anyone was slipping a fast one over on anyone. He just meant things get mixed up.

HEART FUND CAMPAIGN

February 14 marks the opening of the Heart Fund Campaign in Ulster County. February is Hearth Month and Ulster County Chapter will conduct the drive for financial support during the remainder of the month. Headquarters of the chapter are at 124 Green Street.

The human heart is a pump of the most astonishing efficiency and durability. It sends bright, oxygen-laden blood surging out into the system thousands of times a day, all the days of our lives. When it stops doing that, the days of a human being's life are ended.

That is the American Heart Association's chief reason for being. All of its activities, as the Association's president noted in his preface to the 1958 report, are geared to serve one purpose—"to prolong and enrich life through conquest of the cardiovascular disease." This is a matter of the most intimate concern to every American. Heart disease may strike anywhere. When it does, the chances of recovery are vastly better because of research and other work financed during the past decade by voluntary contributions to the Heart Association.

That decade has been of the greatest significance in the battle against various heart ailments. These words of the Heart Association president, Dr. Francis L. Chamberlain, sum up what has happened: "Lives are being saved that would have been written off as beyond salvage a decade ago."

The American Heart Association is not entitled to, and certainly would not seek, all credit for the accomplishments during those years. But it has served well, Dr. Chamberlain notes, "as a catalyst and mobilizing force, providing leadership and resources for the advancement of cardiovascular research and practice." Because of that, it deserves the continuing support of the American public.

WE MUST FIND THE ANSWER

Every plane crash is a shock but it is always especially stunning when tragedy strikes within a few seconds of safety.

The blow is compounded when it happens to a brand new aircraft that has just ushered in exciting advances in commercial aviation.

Only the usual thorough federal inquiries into the crash of the American Airlines' Electra in New York's East River can yield the full answer to this unhappy event.

There can be no prejudging of the possibility of pilot error or shortcomings of some part of the plane.

The pilot was a veteran of 27,000 flying hours and seven million miles. The plane, though new to service, had been thoroughly tested in a long shakedown period.

But we do know one sad fact, the runway at La Guardia airport which the Electra was approaching is not adequately equipped for bad weather landings.

It lacks one key safeguard, a radio beam to inform an incoming plane whether it is on a proper downward glide as it descends to runway level.

Without that protection, a plane in conditions of poor visibility cannot be sure it will not be too high or too low. A mistake of 100 feet can spell tragedy.

It is really astonishing that so fundamental a safety device as this should be lacking from any runway at a major airport in a congested air traffic center like New York. We need not wait for federal crash findings before insisting that this lack be corrected. It should be done without delay.

VOTER'S RESPONSIBILITY

In his recent State of the Union message, President Eisenhower sought to bring public pressure upon Congress to reject unnecessary appropriations.

One of the major points of emphasis in his address was that it will be the fault of Congress if spending is approved in excess of $77 billion which he is recommending. He said, "The Congress and the Congress alone—has the power of the purse. Ultimately, upon Congress rests responsibility for determining the scope and amount of federal spending."

Every voter is a taxpayer and every voter should take an active interest in the operation of his government on the national, state and local levels. In another column we are publishing the official addresses of the representatives from this district in Washington and in Albany. Voters interested in economy in government and in combating inflation may use these forms to contact their representatives.

One thing about living in glass houses: you don't need picture windows.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE REPUBLICANS

When we come to Abraham Lincoln's birthday, we give a thought to his Republican Party which at present is in very grave difficulties. Abraham Lincoln was unusual in that he succeeded as a politician but did not find it necessary to compromise with his conscience. He never hated the South. He was from the border and therefore close to both sides. He had a love for man and his ambition was to "bind up the nation's wounds."

How well Lincoln would have succeeded with the Northern radicals after the war was over it is, of course, difficult to guess. They were selfishly vindictive and treated the South as conquered territory. All of America is still paying for their errors of judgment.

In the election which brought Lincoln a second term, the Republican Party was called the Union Party. This was partly due to the fact that many Democrats in the North voted Republican in that election. The Union Party was a good label and it might still serve those Americans who see this nation as a whole, not as a collection of regional and pressure groups. Besides, the word Republican no longer has much meaning, particularly for the young voters who do not understand what a Republic is.

In fact, the Republican Party has become so weakened during the Eisenhower Administration that it has no ideological position that is distinctive in many parts of the country. What, for instance, is the ideological difference between Governor Williams of Michigan, Democrat, and Governor Rockefeller of New York, Republican? What is the ideological difference between Senator Javits, Republican, of New York, and Senator Humphrey, Democrat, of Minnesota?

When a party loses distinctive personality, it loses its reason for existence. It cannot keep its followers; it cannot win youth. A popular person, such as General Eisenhower was, might win an election, but in the states and in Congress, the party continues to lose.

The effective political leader of the Republican Party at this moment is its Vice President, Richard Nixon. He, however, is bound to be loyal to the Eisenhower Administration of which he has become a part. If characteristic Republicans control the 1960 Republican convention, Nixon will be nominated for President and will have to run on the record of the Eisenhower Administration.

His principal competitor for the Presidential nomination is Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, a Sputnik in partisan politics. Rockefeller is not bound by the record of the Eisenhower Administration. He is a kind of bi-partisan, non-partisan personality who fits the mood of the day which is not set on principles but goes strong for personalities.

Rockefeller, however, has already displayed an unfortunate misunderstanding of the political characteristics of Americans. His tax program for New York State provides no evidence of business acumen and has the Republican leadership weeping bitter tears. From a political standpoint, his error is not so much that he is a Harry Hopkins type of spender as that he has gone about it the wrong way, the way to antagonize the voters.

Rockefeller, however, has two years in which to overcome an initial error and being young, he can miss 1960 and have a chance in 1964 should a Democrat be chosen in 1960.

The bulk of the Republican voters, now three voting generations away from Herbert Hoover, is still conservative in the sense that they believe in honost money, a decent regard for the rights of the workers without grovelling before the labor bosses, a control of corporations without penalizing them for success, close and cordial relations with our allies without violation of our sovereignty and dignity.

But this party needs inspired leadership. It needs an Abraham Lincoln. It requires a philosophic basis for existence to inspire youth as well as older people. In a word, it needs life.

This it does not have yet and probably the reason is that as the years have passed, those who most truly believe in what used to be Republicanism are in the Southern states. Under Senator Robert A. Taft there was an effective coalition between Republican Conservatives and Democratic Conservatives, mostly in the South. Such a coalition may one day become a new party, by whatever name, which will win the support of a large section of the American people who are weary of voting for men who believe in nothing more noble than themselves.

Body Health Depends Greatly On Proper Calcium Intake

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Calcium is one of the most important elements of the body.

Chemical combinations of calcium are particularly needed by the teeth and bones, although calcium is required also in other parts of the body. Calcium salts play an important part in the clotting of the blood and in the control of the heartbeat.

Calcium taken into the body must be in a form which can be easily absorbed and used. Vitamin D helps in the use of calcium. This vitamin is formed by the action of sunlight on the skin or it can be given in prepared form. A hormone, produced by one of the internal glands called the parathyroid, which is emptied into the blood from that gland is also important in calcium use.

When vitamin D is not present in sufficient quantities, the calcium is not deposited properly and the bones become soft and pliable, producing rickets, bow legs or other changes in the skeleton.

If the parathyroid glands are removed the amount of calcium in the blood drops rapidly regardless of the amount of calcium taken in. This causes a condition called tetany, which produces muscular spasms.

Other signs of calcium deficiency are osteomalacia (softened bones) and osteoporosis (porous bones). In many cases these are of obscure origin.

Too much calcium can be present in the tissues as well as too little. For example, a good deal of the material deposited in the walls of hardened arteries (arteriosclerosis) consists of calcium.

As yet, no way has been found to dissolve or remove excess calcium in the arteries, nor is there any practical method of preventing these deposits.

Dairy products supply good quantities of calcium. Infants and growing children, who need calcium for their rapidly growing bones, get most of their calcium from milk. Additional calcium can be supplied in various tablet or capsule forms.

However, although calcium tablets may supply the calcium needed, they will not furnish the other nutritional elements present in such excellent foods as milk and cheese—and, of course, are not so tasty.

"Engine Room---Full Speed Ahead! Hello . . . Hello . . ."

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — That old gag about it being impossible to tell the difference between Republicans and Democrats is no good any more.

In the first month of this new session of Congress, programs of the Eisenhower administration and the Democratic majorities on Capitol Hill have been spelled out so clearly that the differences are unmistakable.

The principal difference is in ideas about the amount of money the federal government should spend, and whether the budget shall be kept in balance or operated at a deficit.

IN THREE AREAS alone — federal aid to education, airport construction, and housing — Democrats now propose spending 1½ billion dollars more than the Republican administration proposes for the next fiscal year. Over the full six or seven years of the conflicting programs, the Democrats would spend 13 billion dollars or more.

These proposals do not cover national defense, aids to agriculture and public works, on which the Democrats are considered likely to increase heavily Eisenhower budget figures.

In campaign speeches at Pittsburgh and Charleston last Oct. 27, President Eisenhower identified the Democrats as "the spendthrift league" and accused them of "urging a raid on the taxpayers' dollars."

The charge was resentfully denied by Democratic orators. But from the way things are shaping up in the new session of Congress, the President's charge seems justified.

Take housing. The administration called for a $1,660,000,000 program, spread over six years. Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) introduced a bill which would cost nearly three billion, spread over seven years.

For the fiscal year 1960, this bill as approved by the Senate would cost 150 million dollars more than the President requested. A bill passed by the House would cost 300 million more. The differences would be for direct loans to veterans which the administration proposes.

HOUSE AND SENATE bills have to be compromised, with no telling what the outcome. President Eisenhower will give no hint on whether he will sign or veto a bill that goes so far beyond his recommendations. But this will bring to a head the question of whether the government will unbalance its budget and embark on deficit financing.

Take aid to airports. The administration program calls for 200 million dollars spread over four years. The bill introduced by Sen. A. S. Monroney (D-Okla) calls for 575 million spread over five years.

Take federal aids to education. The administration called for nothing beyond last year's National Defense Education Act. But Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.) has introduced a bill for school construction and other benefits which would cost 1.1 billion the first year and increase by that amount or more to 4.7 billion the fourth year. The total cost would be 11.3 billion.

IN THE FIELD of government lending programs, the administration proposed 55 million dollars for depressed areas suffering from chronic high unemployment. Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) topped this with a 375-million program. President Eisenhower vetoed a similar bill last year.

All the foregoing illustrate differences in approach to spending bills. In addition, there are wide differences in Republican administration and Democratic congressional bills on labor legislation, civil rights, social security, atomic energy power development, space exploration, missile development and foreign policy.

The new Congress is already bogged down with legislative proposals not recommended by the administration. In the first month of the session, 820 new bills were introduced in the Senate and 3,833 in the House for a total of 4,653. This is a record for any first month.

Many of these bills call for increased government expenditures. The challenge which they throw up to Democratic leaders is how they will curb inflation if they allow government appropriations to keep on going up.

Red Leaders Seen Misled By Talk of U.S. 'Flexibility'

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It seems easy sometimes to personalize big issues, and doubtless Moscow is reading with exultation today the news that maybe Secretary of State Dulles will not be as active as before. For there are in the Soviet Union as well as in the United States and Britain many who think that the policy of this country is "inflexible" or "rigid" or fixed at "dead center" because Mr. Dulles presumably wants it that way—and that, once he has left office, all will be changed.

Actually, there is only one simple barrier between Moscow and Washington today. The Soviets want unconditional surrender, which means no concessions of substance on their part. Anybody who stands in their way is promptly labeled as unrealistic and inflexible and as desiring to continue "tensions" in preference to acceptance of a supposedly attractive alternative —"peaceful co-existence."

Mr. Dulles is an international lawyer and an experienced negotiator. He is handicapped by the fact that there are newspapers in America which continually tell the Russians, in effect, not to worry about what he says and that American public opinion is virtually ready for peace at any price. When Deputy Premier Mikoyan returned to Moscow after his visit to this country, he told the 21st Communist party congress that the American people are really in favor of peace but their government isn't. The attempt to drive a wedge between the people of the United States and their government was transparent.

Public Distrustful

Oddly enough, the angry reaction which followed the Mikoyan visit showed that American public opinion hasn't changed a bit—it is basically distrustful of the Communist regime and isn't ready to surrender, either. This correspondent received a bigger mail about it from all parts of the country than on any other subject in recent years.

The people from coast to coast insisted in their letters they were not taken in by the Mikoyan trip. It is interesting to note also that many citizens are beginning to say about war that there comes a time "when you can take just so much and no more." Phrases like this have not appeared in letters to this writer since the days before the last two world wars. It is a strange phenomenon, but there are many observers who wishfully think that, because war is almost too horrible to contemplate, this means the people are willing to swallow their pride and their patriotism and surrender to a foreign foe. No greater mistake could be made in evaluating public opinion in America.

Perhaps the most realistic appraisal of the opinion of the American people today would be to say that they want peace, but not at any price. They are willing to see peace negotiated, but this does not mean that our side must make all the concessions. Nor does it mean that the supposed "settlement" can be of such a nature that it obviously will breed war as a consequence.

What makes international diplomacy hard to conduct these days is the fact that some of the influential newspapers in all the free countries are so eager for peace that they give the impression to Moscow that almost anything will be accepted. This is called "flexibility." A press that can express itself freely is important to maintain, but there is an obligation also to make sure that the opinion of the silent citizen is taken into account. For today there is really a greater support by world opinion than ever before behind the policies of the United States and her allies in the face of Communist trickery.

The problem of Berlin does not seem on the surface anything that in and of itself would be difficult to resolve. Whether the traffic to and from Berlin through the Eastern zone is controlled by an East German government or by the Soviet military patrols isn't the real issue. What is more important is whether West Berlin shall continue as a symbol to the West German people—as a free city—or whether the Communist will be able to boast of another propaganda victory that will not only depress the Western countries, but will discourage the people of the captive countries. The craving for liberation is not dead in Eastern Europe. It is very important to maintain the morale of the people of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Bulgaria, Latvia, Luthuania and Estonia, as well as the freedom-seeking people of East Germany. To capitulate to the Reds—or to seem to be doing so—is dangerous because it could lead to a miscalculation by Miscow and a further "testing" that can bring on the kind of incidents out of which in the past sudden war has come.

HEART FUND CAMPAIGN

February 14 marks the opening of the Heart Fund Campaign in Ulster County. February is Hearth Month and Ulster County Chapter will conduct the drive for financial support during the remainder of the month. Headquarters of the chapter are at 124 Green Street.

The human heart is a pump of the most astonishing efficiency and durability. It sends bright, oxygen-laden blood surging out into the system thousands of times a day, all the days of our lives. When it stops doing that, the days of a human being's life are ended.

That is the American Heart Association's chief reason for being. All of its activities, as the Association's president noted in his preface to the 1958 report, are geared to serve one purpose—"to prolong and enrich life through conquest of the cardiovascular disease." This is a matter of the most intimate concern to every American. Heart disease may strike anywhere. When it does, the chances of recovery are vastly better because of research and other work financed during the past decade by voluntary contributions to the Heart Association.

That decade has been of the greatest significance in the battle against various heart ailments. These words of the Heart Association president, Dr. Francis L. Chamberlain, sum up what has happened: "Lives are being saved that would have been written off as beyond salvage a decade ago."

The American Heart Association is not entitled to, and certainly would not seek, all credit for the accomplishments during those years. But it has served well, Dr. Chamberlain notes, "as a catalyst and mobilizing force, providing leadership and resources for the advancement of cardiovascular research and practice." Because of that, it deserves the continuing support of the American public.

WE MUST FIND THE ANSWER

Every plane crash is a shock but it is always especially stunning when tragedy strikes within a few seconds of safety.

The blow is compounded when it happens to a brand new aircraft that has just ushered in exciting advances in commercial aviation.

Only the usual thorough federal inquiries into the crash of the American Airlines' Electra in New York's East River can yield the full answer to this unhappy event.

There can be no prejudging of the possibility of pilot error or shortcomings of some part of the plane.

The pilot was a veteran of 27,000 flying hours and seven million miles. The plane, though new to service, had been thoroughly tested in a long shakedown period.

But we do know one sad fact, the runway at La Guardia airport which the Electra was approaching is not adequately equipped for bad weather landings.

It lacks one key safeguard, a radio beam to inform an incoming plane whether it is on a proper downward glide as it descends to runway level.

Without that protection, a plane in conditions of poor visibility cannot be sure it will not be too high or too low. A mistake of 100 feet can spell tragedy.

It is really astonishing that so fundamental a safety device as this should be lacking from any runway at a major airport in a congested air traffic center like New York. We need not wait for federal crash findings before insisting that this lack be corrected. It should be done without delay.

VOTER'S RESPONSIBILITY

In his recent State of the Union message, President Eisenhower sought to bring public pressure upon Congress to reject unnecessary appropriations.

One of the major points of emphasis in his address was that it will be the fault of Congress if spending is approved in excess of $77 billion which he is recommending. He said, "The Congress and the Congress alone—has the power of the purse. Ultimately, upon Congress rests responsibility for determining the scope and amount of federal spending."

Every voter is a taxpayer and every voter should take an active interest in the operation of his government on the national, state and local levels. In another column we are publishing the official addresses of the representatives from this district in Washington and in Albany. Voters interested in economy in government and in combating inflation may use these forms to contact their representatives.

'These Days'

THE REPUBLICANS

When we come to Abraham Lincoln's birthday, we give a thought to his Republican Party which at present is in very grave difficulties. Abraham Lincoln was unusual in that he succeeded as a politician but did not find it necessary to compromise with his conscience. He never hated the South. He was from the border and therefore close to both sides. He had a love for man and his ambition was to "bind up the nation's wounds."

How well Lincoln would have succeeded with the Northern radicals after the war was over it is, of course, difficult to guess. They were selfishly vindictive and treated the South as conquered territory. All of America is still paying for their errors of judgment.

In the election which brought Lincoln a second term, the Republican Party was called the Union Party. This was partly due to the fact that many Democrats in the North voted Republican in that election. The Union Party was a good label and it might still serve those Americans who see this nation as a whole, not as a collection of regional and pressure groups. Besides, the word Republican no longer has much meaning, particularly for the young voters who do not understand what a Republic is.

In fact, the Republican Party has become so weakened during the Eisenhower Administration that it has no ideological position that is distinctive in many parts of the country. What, for instance, is the ideological difference between Governor Williams of Michigan, Democrat, and Governor Rockefeller of New York, Republican? What is the ideological difference between Senator Javits, Republican, of New York, and Senator Humphrey, Democrat, of Minnesota?

When a party loses distinctive personality, it loses its reason for existence. It cannot keep its followers; it cannot win youth. A popular person, such as General Eisenhower was, might win an election, but in the states and in Congress, the party continues to lose.

The effective political leader of the Republican Party at this moment is its Vice President, Richard Nixon. He, however, is bound to be loyal to the Eisenhower Administration of which he has become a part. If characteristic Republicans control the 1960 Republican convention, Nixon will be nominated for President and will have to run on the record of the Eisenhower Administration.

His principal competitor for the Presidential nomination is Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, a Sputnik in partisan politics. Rockefeller is not bound by the record of the Eisenhower Administration. He is a kind of bi-partisan, non-partisan personality who fits the mood of the day which is not set on principles but goes strong for personalities.

Rockefeller, however, has already displayed an unfortunate misunderstanding of the political characteristics of Americans. His tax program for New York State provides no evidence of business acumen and has the Republican leadership weeping bitter tears. From a political standpoint, his error is not so much that he is a Harry Hopkins type of spender as that he has gone about it the wrong way, the way to antagonize the voters.

Rockefeller, however, has two years in which to overcome an initial error and being young, he can miss 1960 and have a chance in 1964 should a Democrat be chosen in 1960.

The bulk of the Republican voters, now three voting generations away from Herbert Hoover, is still conservative in the sense that they believe in honest money, a decent regard for the rights of the workers without grovelling before the labor bosses, a control of corporations without penalizing them for success, close and cordial relations with our allies without violation of our sovereignty and dignity.

But this party needs inspired leadership. It needs an Abraham Lincoln. It requires a philosophic basis for existence to inspire youth as well as older people. In a word, it needs life.

This it does not have yet and probably the reason is that as the years have passed, those who most truly believe in what used to be Republicanism are in the Southern states. Under Senator Robert A. Taft there was an effective coalition between Republican Conservatives and Democratic Conservatives, mostly in the South. Such a coalition may one day become a new party, by whatever name, which will win the support of a large section of the American people who are weary of voting for men who believe in nothing more noble than themselves.

Body Health Depends Greatly On Proper Calcium Intake

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Calcium is one of the most important elements of the body.

Chemical combinations of calcium are particularly needed by the teeth and bones, although calcium is required also in other parts of the body. Calcium salts play an important part in the clotting of the blood and in the control of the heartbeat.

Calcium taken into the body must be in a form which can be easily absorbed and used. Vitamin D helps in the use of calcium. This vitamin is formed by the action of sunlight on the skin or it can be given in prepared form. A hormone, produced by one of the internal glands called the parathyroid, which is emptied into the blood from that gland is also important in calcium use.

When vitamin D is not present in sufficient quantities, the calcium is not deposited properly and the bones become soft and pliable, producing rickets, bow legs or other changes in the skeleton.

If the parathyroid glands are removed the amount of calcium in the blood drops rapidly regardless of the amount of calcium taken in. This causes a condition called tetany, which produces muscular spasms.

Other signs of calcium deficiency are osteomalacia (softened bones) and osteoporosis (porous bones). In many cases these are of obscure origin.

Too much calcium can be present in the tissues as well as too little. For example, a good deal of the material deposited in the walls of hardened arteries (arteriosclerosis) consists of calcium.

As yet, no way has been found to dissolve or remove excess calcium in the arteries, nor is there any practical method of preventing these deposits.

Dairy products supply good quantities of calcium. Infants and growing children, who need calcium for their rapidly growing bones, get most of their calcium from milk. Additional calcium can be supplied in various tablet or capsule forms.

However, although calcium tablets may supply the calcium needed, they will not furnish the other nutritional elements present in such excellent foods as milk and cheese—and, of course, are not so tasty.

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — That old gag about it being impossible to tell the difference between Republicans and Democrats is no good any more.

In the first month of this new session of Congress, programs of the Eisenhower administration and the Democratic majorities on Capitol Hill have been spelled out so clearly that the differences are unmistakable.

The principal difference is in ideas about the amount of money the federal government should spend, and whether the budget shall be kept in balance or operated at a deficit.

IN THREE AREAS alone — federal aid to education, airport construction, and housing — Democrats now propose spending 1½ billion dollars more than the Republican administration proposes for the next fiscal year. Over the full six or seven years of the conflicting programs, the Democrats would spend 13 billion dollars or more.

These proposals do not cover national defense, aids to agriculture and public works, on which the Democrats are considered likely to increase heavily Eisenhower budget figures.

In campaign speeches at Pittsburgh and Charleston last Oct. 27, President Eisenhower identified the Democrats as "the spendthrift league" and accused them of "urging a raid on the taxpayers' dollars."

The charge was resentfully denied by Democratic orators. But from the way things are shaping up in the new session of Congress, the President's charge seems justified.

Take housing. The administration called for a $1,660,000,000 program, spread over six years. Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) introduced a bill which would cost nearly three billion, spread over seven years.

For the fiscal year 1960, this bill as approved by the Senate would cost 150 million dollars more than the President requested. A bill passed by the House would cost 300 million more. The differences would be for direct loans to veterans which the administration proposes.

HOUSE AND SENATE bills have to be compromised, with no telling what the outcome. President Eisenhower will give no hint on whether he will sign or veto a bill that goes so far beyond his recommendations. But this will bring to a head the question of whether the government will unbalance its budget and embark on deficit financing.

Take aid to airports. The administration program calls for 200 million dollars spread over four years. The bill introduced by Sen. A. S. Monroney (D-Okla) calls for 575 million spread over five years.

Take federal aids to education. The administration called for nothing beyond last year's National Defense Education Act. But Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.) has introduced a bill for school construction and other benefits which would cost 1.1 billion the first year and increase by that amount or more to 4.7 billion the fourth year. The total cost would be 11.3 billion.

IN THE FIELD of government lending programs, the administration proposed 55 million dollars for depressed areas suffering from chronic high unemployment. Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) topped this with a 375-million program. President Eisenhower vetoed a similar bill last year.

All the foregoing illustrate differences in approach to spending bills. In addition, there are wide differences in Republican administration and Democratic congressional bills on labor legislation, civil rights, social security, atomic energy power development, space exploration, missile development and foreign policy.

The new Congress is already bogged down with legislative proposals not recommended by the administration. In the first month of the session, 820 new bills were introduced in the Senate and 3,833 in the House for a total of 4,653. This is a record for any first month.

Many of these bills call for increased government expenditures. The challenge which they throw up to Democratic leaders is how they will curb inflation if they allow government appropriations to keep on going up.

The problem of Berlin does not seem on the surface anything that in and of itself would be difficult to resolve. Whether the traffic to and from Berlin through the Eastern zone is controlled by an East German government or by the Soviet military patrols isn't the real issue. What is more important is whether West Berlin shall continue as a symbol to the West German people—as a free city—or whether the Communist will be able to boast of another propaganda victory that will not only depress the Western countries, but will discourage the people of the captive countries. The craving for liberation is not dead in Eastern Europe. It is very important to maintain the morale of the people of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Bulgaria, Latvia, Luthuania and Estonia, as well as the freedom-seeking people of East Germany. To capitulate to the Reds—or to seem to be doing so—is dangerous because it could lead to a miscalculation by Miscow and a further "testing" that can bring on the kind of incidents out of which in the past sudden war has come.

NOTHING FOR SOMETHING

Governor Rockefeller, of New York, the richest State in the Union, together with other Governors, Mayors, and Legislatures, all have a mean job on their hands. It is to increase tax rates and levy new taxes to meet the rising cost of State and local governments.

MR. HUTTON

The excuse given for this hateful job is that, with rising population, the total costs and revenues and State governments have to go up. That may explain total costs, but not new or increasing rates of taxes. For a growing population should produce enough wealth to increase total revenues, without increasing tax rates.

Even States, whose population has grown little or none, are feverishly thinking up new or higher taxes. This makes everybody mad, but they blame the wrong people. .. ..

State and local government costs are going up chiefly because the dollar is going down. This boosts the cost of everything these governments buy, and the salaries of all they employ.

The dollar is going down chiefly because Uncle manufactures money to pay his deficits. Unbalanced Federal budgets cause inflation.

Yet fool Governors, Mayors, Congressmen, Senators and "gimmies" demand more and more "Federal aid."

Joe Doaks pays for it through the nose. This financial legerdemain is the biggest hoax in American history.

Balanced Federal budgets and sound money would save billions to State and local governments.

About Time

CHESTERTON, Ind. (AP)—John Hansen won a Carnegie Foundation medal in 1931 for saving a girl from drowning, but he decided not to apply for the $500 reward until he needed the money. Recently the foundation decided he had waited long enough and sent the $500.

Parole Violation Supersedes His Aid Against Virus

PITTSBURGH (AP) — While serving a 10-year prison term for bank robbery several years ago Ralph E. Richardson volunteered for a risky medical experiment.

He and two other inmates of the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., were given injections of hepatitis virus which produces inflamation of the liver.

Two of the volunteers died. Richardson survived, but he was in a coma for weeks, developing both pneumonia and gangrene. His weight dropped from 210 to 145 pounds.

His story was told in a national magazine article. He was rewarded with a parole in 1957 after serving half of his sentence for a 1952 bank robbery at Brookville, Pa.

Last month Richardson was arrested for passing allegedly worthless checks for $85 near his home in Butler, Pa.

Judge Clyde S. Shumaker, impressed with Richardson's participation in the prison medical experiment, ordered him only to make restitution and pay court costs.

But the charge was a parole violation. Richardson was ordered back to Lewisburg to complete his term.

"I figure I have 1,908 days more to serve now," said Richardson philosophically.

Olga is the Teutonic name for a "holy woman."

Flood Threat News in Brief

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The worst floods in 16 years sent hundreds of families from their homes in the upper Wabash River Valley today and closed roads throughout the area.

Volunteers joined with police and National Guardsmen to rescue stranded residents at Logansport, Delphi, Georgetown and Wabash.

Flood waters covered a 30-block residential area and an 18-block industrial area in Wabash. The city faced danger from ice moving down the Wabash River, threatening bridges and the waterworks.

1,500 Flee Homes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's northern cities were imperiled by new floods today for the second time in less than a month. In one city alone, Fremont — still in a state of emergency from January's inundation — between 1,200 and 1,500 residents have been forced from their homes by the two floods.

The new floods hit chiefly in northern Ohio where rainfall Tuesday amounted to three inches in places.

On Jan. 23, two days after the previous floods began, the governor proclaimed all of Ohio in a state of emergency. In the present inundation, three communities and one county were placed in states of emergency.

At least two deaths — one a drowning — have resulted directly or indirectly from the new floods.

In Fremont, the river is expected to crest this morning at 18.4 feet, or 1.2 feet over the January mark.

Two Bills Killed

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Senate killed two bills Tuesday which Sen. William Osborn (D-Roswell) said were "good and necessary."

"Now, the only way a girl of 14 can get married is to have a doctor's certificate that she is pregnant," Osborn said. "A lot of kids are finding out about this and using this means to force the marriage."

Parole Violation Supersedes His Aid Against Virus

PITTSBURGH (AP) — While serving a 10-year prison term for bank robbery several years ago Ralph E. Richardson volunteered for a risky medical experiment.

He and two other inmates of the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., were given injections of hepatitis virus which produces inflamation of the liver.

Two of the volunteers died. Richardson survived, but he was in a coma for weeks, developing both pneumonia and gangrene. His weight dropped from 210 to 145 pounds.

His story was told in a national magazine article. He was rewarded with a parole in 1957 after serving half of his sentence for a 1952 bank robbery at Brookville, Pa.

Last month Richardson was arrested for passing allegedly worthless checks for $85 near his home in Butler, Pa.

Judge Clyde S. Shumaker, impressed with Richardson's participation in the prison medical experiment, ordered him only to make restitution and pay court costs.

But the charge was a parole violation. Richardson was ordered back to Lewisburg to complete his term.

"I figure I have 1,908 days more to serve now," said Richardson philosophically.

Olga is the Teutonic name for a "holy woman."

Area Chamber Against Extreme Deficit Spending

Strong public opposition to extreme deficit spending by all levels of government was urged today by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. A deluge of letters from citizens addressed to our state and national representatives was strongly recommended.

These actions were taken at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors last night in the Governor Clinton Hotel. In spite of inclement weather and serious conflicts, a quorum was present. In the absence of President Frederick H. Stang, Vice-President Richard J. Whalen presided.

Several important decisions were made and actions taken by the board of directors.

An advisory committee to the board of directors will be named consisting of all past-presidents.

This committee will be given the responsibility of studying the present program of the Chamber of Commerce, consider the emphasis now placed on various activities and recommended a positive program of action and guidance for the benefit of the Kingston area.

A return visit to our schools, the reverse of Business-Education Day, was favored. The Education Committee will be asked to work out the details of this public relations program.

The committee structure of the Chamber of Commerce was reviewed. Suggested changes will be considered at the next meeting. A list of all Chamber committees was distributed and copies are available to members on request.

A detailed report was presented by Ronald G. Drowns, chairman of the Convention and Visitors Committee. Considerable progress was reported and the tangible benefits of convention visitors were emphasized. The committee asked that $600 be included in the 1959-60 budget for convention promotion. The fiscal year starts on May 1st.

The membership application of Drs. Abraham I. and William C. Feldman, partners in the practice of medicine at 326 Washington Avenue, was approved. The voting representative will be Dr. Abraham I. Feldman.

A political action program recommended by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States will be studied by the local Chamber of Commerce. A decision will be made at the next meeting as to action to be taken.

The next regular meeting of the board of directors will take place on March 10.

Storm Dead At 21

cut a path across the southeast corner of Forest Park. The worst destruction was in crowded Negro tenements on a path from the park to the vicinity of Busch Stadium, home of the St. Louis Cardinals. This area is a mile to two miles from downtown St. Louis.

Eight persons died when the tornado crushed a house at Whittier and Delmar.

Strikes Without Warning

There was also serious damage in the section of St. Louis known as "Greenwich Village" near the intersection of Boyle and Olive streets. In this area are many antique shops, apartments and taverns.

The tornado struck without warning and moved at tremendous speed. It took only minutes to blow itself out in the Busch Stadium area, after leveling a 380-foot radio tower and a 575-foot television tower.

The St. Louis Civil Defense Agency acknowledged it did not function smoothly in spite of eight years of preparation for such a disaster. CD officials blamed the Weather Bureau for not predicting the tornado and sending out an alert.

Similar to '27 Twister

The Weather Bureau replied that would have been impossible.

The tornado followed almost the same path of one in 1927 which killed 78.

Bodies No. 20 and 21 were dug from the rubble of a house in the 4200 block of Washington Ave. Tuesday night. They were identified as Mrs. Lee Buggs, 24, and her 18-month-old son, Lee Jr.

Wicks Denies Sending Ashby . . .

grand jury had been discussed with Tompkins but the testimony of Morgan D. Ryan of Kingston was not discussed, Wicks said.

No Talk of Troy Trip

In reply to the prosecution's question as to relations between Wicks and Ashby, Wicks said he had known Ashby for 20 years. Ashby has been a "worker in the party" but there was never any conversation in regard to his going to Troy to see Buckley, Wicks testified.

"Did you ever send Edwin W. Ashby to Troy to see Frank Buckley for the purpose of cashing checks?" Wicks was asked.

"I did not, sir," Wicks replied.

"Did you ever send Ashby to see Buckley for any purpose?" Tompkins inquired.

Denies Any Buckley Money

"No sir, never," Wicks replied.

"Did you ever receive any money from Frank Buckley, directly or indirectly?" the prosecution asked.

"No, sir," the witness replied.

"Did you ever receive any contributions from Harry Barieka?" Wicks was asked.

"Yes sir. Three contributions, one for $500, one for $800 and one for $1,000," Wicks replied.

Asked About Conversation

The witness said he never had any conversation with Ashby about any transaction with Buckley. Wicks said he had a conversation with Special Prosecutor Tompkins in regard to his appearing voluntarily before the grand jury and waiving immunity. Wicks said he had offered to do so.

On cross examination by Haver, Wicks was asked when that conversation took place.

"I can't give the exact date. I went from his office directly to your office as my attorney." At this point there was an objection and a motion to strike out the statement. The motion was granted. Wicks said the visit to Tompkins was before he went to Florida in December.

Quizzed on Association

Haver inquired as to the associations between former Senator Wicks and former Senator Tompkins in the state senate. Wicks said he first met Tompkins in 1953 when the latter entered the Senate. Tompkins was defeated for office but was later reelected to the Senate.

Wicks said the testimony of Morgan D. Ryan before the grand jury had not been made available to him.

Made Prior to 1956

The political contributions made by Barieka were received prior to 1956, Wicks said.

"Do you know, Senator, the difference between legitimate political contributions and kickbacks?" Haver inquired.

"I do," Wicks replied.

"Were these kickbacks from Barieka?" Haver asked. There was an objection to the question and it was withdrawn.

Wicks said Ashby was not a frequent visitor to Republican headquarters, 41 Pearl Street, but came in "two or three times a year."

Wicks said he never asked either Ashby or Ryan to go to Troy to see Buckley, that he never told Barieka, Ryan or Ashby to go to Troy.

Not Unusual Thing

"I saw Eddie lots of times on the street. I knew him for 20 or 25 years. I would say, 'Hello Eddie, how are you?'

On cross examination Wicks said it was not unusual for people doing business with the county to make contributions "on a voluntary basis" to the campaign fund.

Payments Made in Cash

The witness said he knew the Walter Truck Company did business with the county, knew Barieka was connected with the company but did not know in what capacity. The Barieka contributions were made in cash.

Asked if he knew whether his finances were under investigation by the Special Attorney General, Wicks said he did not. "I have no way of knowing."

Wicks said his office at 41 Pearl Street had been next to Haver's in the same building.

He was asked what happened to the Barieka contributions after Barieka turned them over to Heiselman. He said he didn't know.

Heiselman in Court

Haver asked if Heiselman was in court. Wicks replied yes. Wicks said he had told Heiselman that Barieka did not want the contributions reported but that he did not know what happened to them after they were turned over to Heiselman.

Next called was Joseph Koenig, accountant who served as county treasurer from Sept. 1958 to Jan. 1, 1959.

He was asked about his acquaintance with Ashby and about making out his income tax. Koenig said he could not recall Ashby telling him about any connection with Buckley. There were sums of money reported as "commissions" but Koenig said he did not recall Ashby saying from whom the commissions came. He said it was impossible to remember all that was discussed.

Paid by Barieka

Koenig said he did not recall Ashby telling him that Buckley would pay for making out the return. Later Koenig said he was paid by Barieka.

The return was figured "two different ways" and Koenig said if Ashby he did not receive all of the money as commissions it might have seemed "peculiar." It was possible Ashby did tell him that he did not receive all the money. Koenig said he could not remember. He said he had been before the grand jury. The court recessed with Koenig on the stand.

Tillson Students Visit High Falls Sheep Farm

The first, second and third graders of Mrs. Vincent Brancato's and Mrs. Gene Van Winkle's class in Tillson School visited a sheep farm Monday. The sheep, owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Reisenauer of High Falls, proved to be most endearing to the youngsters who were permitted to touch, hold and feed some of the newborn lambs.

The visit was an outgrowth of the study of wool in the social studies clothing unit. Prior to the trip, the children had actually seen a sheepski, electric and hand clippers, carders as well as having studied various phases of the manufacture of woolen materials.

2 Leap . . .

ing through the yard of Charles Counsil, grazing a thick hard maple and almost bounced through a ditch into the River Road. It finally came to a stop with one wheel in the ditch.

Counsil told The Freeman that Mrs. Webster's escape was miraculous. The car was able to leave under its own power, he said. She entered his yard by way of Route 9W, he said, continued for about 80 feet, and left "by way of the River Road." Counsil's property is located on the easterly side of the highway at its junction with the River Road.

Leaves 9W Roadway

About five minutes later a 1953 sedan operated by Ingram H. Froehlich, 29, of Sunset Lodge, Ulster Park, was proceeding down the same hill when his car skidded and plunged off Route 9W into the property of Edwin Hummell.

The Ulster County Sheriff's Office reported that the vehicle plunged into a tree on the westerly side of the highway. Deputy Sheriffs Charles Dullea and Harrison Rose investigated.

Still Icy Today

Constable Ray Burr of the town of Esopus, Counsil and others directed traffic at the scene. Counsil said the Froehlich car apparently clipped a maple and smashed into a blue spruce.

The sheriff's office and area state police reported roads icy and driving hazardous this morning.

Trooper David Wachtel, on duty at the Kingston state police barracks on Route 9W reported a "few" minor property damage accidents, "none with injuries."

Ashby's Second Criticism . . .

amount due and gave him some back, would it be all right," Ashby told the grand jury.

Checks Are Produced

"Well, if you want it that way" Ashby said he replied.

Various checks were produced before the grand jury and Ashby was questioned as to what happened to the proceeds. On his second appearance before the grand jury, contrary to his first testimony that he kept the money, Ashby said the money was returned to Buckley except for small amounts which he kept, spent for dinners and drinks or used for entertainment. He may have deposited some of the money but he never entertained any officials.

Between December 1951 and May 1956 Ashby said he "probably" talked to several supervisors. Over that period he probably talked to every supervisor. He mentioned former Supervisor Edward Eckert of the Town of Esopus as one he talked to. He told the grand jury he believed the town had bought a truck.

Former Supervisor Edward Eckert was in court Tuesday when the Ashby testimony was read and it is reported he will be called as a prosecuting witness.

The grand jury minutes disclose that Ashby was once told his story was not believed and that if it were not made more "definite" the grand jury would be asked to cite him for contempt.

At the conclusion of the reading of the testimony given before the grand jury by Ashby on October 2, 1958, defense counsel N. LeVan Haver asked if Ashby had been then directed to return before the grand jury on October 3 at 2 p. m. That portion of the minutes were read.

"Read what occurred," Haver asked, referring to October 3, 1958, session of the grand jury.

Prosecution objected and the objection was sustained.

The prosecution then offered to stipulate that "he did not come." Haver refused to so stipulate.

Prosecution Hits Point

One of the points being made by prosecution is that Ashby did not attempt to recant or purge himself of perjury until 25 days after he first told his story on October 2. The defense, according to the opening remarks of counsel, contends that Ashby was not again called before the grand jury until October 27, 1958, and then told a true story in an attempt to purge himself of any act of perjury.

On October 27, 1958, when Ashby appeared before the grand jury again he presented a typed statement dated October 23, 1958, in which he said he had gone to Troy at the request of Senator Wicks, had cashed checks and returned the money to Buckley, except for small amounts. Contrary to his first testimony earlier that month he said he had not been paid the money for commissions or for "bird-dogging."

The text of the statement has been published in The Freeman. It stated that Ashby was making this statement to "clear up his testimony" and stated that his previous testimony had been false, that prior to going to Tompkins office for a conference (before his first appearance before the grand jury) he had not consulted counsel. Later he discussed the matter with Haver, thinking he might engage Haver if he later needed an attorney.

"Haver told me to tell my story," Ashby told the grand jury.

"That was my big mistake, the story I told," Ashby told the grand jury.

Made on 'Spur of Moment'

He told the grand jury on his second appearance that he had made up the first story "on the spur of the moment" just before he appeared before the grand jury because he wanted to "protect" Senator Wicks, "I did not want his name to come up."

"I knew I had cashed the checks, I knew you (Tompkins) were investigating the matter and I knew the checks would come up," Ashby is quoted as telling the grand jury.

The matter had not been discussed with Wicks since 1955, "when I last went up for him," Ashby is quoted as telling the grand jury.

Before the grand jury on his second visit, Ashby told of the income tax return made out by Koenig and said that Buckley probably paid Koenig. Once he said to Koenig "I hope you were paid for making out my tax last year." He said he believed he closed-door meeting that the assemblymen had expressed "great concern" of the impact of the tax program. But he said no one offered a workable alternative.

"I don't see how any significant change can be made in the tax plan without cutting the budget at least 30 million dollars," Carlino said, adding: "In my opinion, this would be impossible."

Senate Republicans held a similar conference but did not go into the budget in detail. Majority leader Walter J. Mahoney discussed with his senators the Legislature's budget-cutting functions.

AFL-CIO President Harold Hanover, in his statement, singled out 10 tax sources that he said could be tapped for budget-balancing money, instead of raising income taxes.

Proposes Other Taxes

He proposed a gift tax, a business tax on doctors and other professional people, and higher taxes on capital gains, estates, business franchises, real estate corporations and commercial banks.

He said the Rockefeller income tax plan would mean a $12 a year increase in the taxes of the average production worker, representing three pairs of shoes for his children or 48 quarts of milk.

This, he said, "is the kind of thing any government should be ashamed to even think of doing."

The Citizens Public Expenditures Survey Inc., a taxpayers' organization, saw still further tax increases ahead unless the state government reformed its spending practices.

Glenn D. Owens, speaking for the survey, said "increasingly burdensome taxes could very well break the back of the (business) recovery."

The Empire State Chamber of Commerce said the tax increases were "inescapable" unless the Legislature made drastic cuts in spending. The chamber's spokesman, Thomas C. Plowden-Warden, urged the lawmakers to economize.

He also asked for some kind of commission for employers, who would collect the state income tax under the payroll withholding plan Rockefeller proposes.

Cries for economy found their counterpart in demands for even further spending.

Rose V. Russell, speaking for the Teachers Union of New York City, called for a 140-million increase in state aid for education. She said teachers' salaries should be doubled.

told Koenig that Buckley was to pay for making out the return and also that Buckley was to return to him (Ashby) the amount of income tax paid on the amount of the checks which had been reported as income.

Testimony Reading Continues

Ashby told the grand jury he never discussed the amount of the checks with Senator Wicks except "sometimes he asked me."

Ashby said he never turned over any of the money to either Wicks or Conrad J. Heiselman, former Kingston mayor.

The testimony was still being read at the afternoon adjournment.

INFLATIONARY UNDERTOW

In the sea of national economics, the undertow is still inflationary. Reversing the trends of recent years is going to be a difficult job. To balance the proposed 1959-1960 federal budget of $77 billion, the President has suggested hikes in gasoline taxes and postal rates.

Such revenue increases reach right down to the grass roots of America and with millions of voters vitally interested in such taxation, there will be strong opposition in Congress to such measures. The average voter may say: "What if the federal treasury does run at a few billion dollar deficit? It is better that way than to increase my gasoline taxes and postal charges."

America is and has been for some time caught in an inflationary tide. Individual sacrifices for the public good are hard to put over on the rank-and-file citizen. Yet precisely there is where a tightening of the national economy with a concomitant improvement in the dollar's integrity should begin.

But pressure groups with large voting power shift the responsiblity from the individual to the government. My opinion is that these two tax measures will not be enacted by Congress and unless powerful forces latent in the economy produce a boom, the 1959-1960 budget will not be balanced.

The dollar is still on the spot. That partially accounts for a strong, virulent stock market. There is an abundance of money in the country to support a rising stock market. This money, augmented by the psychological urge to buy values a measure of inflationary protection, will doubtless push stock prices much higher. I think the Dow-Jones industrial averages can go up 100 points more easily than down 50.

Yet it should be pointed out that today blue-chip common stock prices are high. From the standpoint of earnings and dividends most of them are too high. But inflation psychology being what it is, and with the great volumes of money available for investment and speculation, it is doubtful that there will be any drastic decline in sound stock prices in the forseeable future.

And there are still billions of dollars of 'fearful' money in the country. All over America there are thousands of persons with cash balances running from $10,000 to $100,000 or more. Day by day dollar erosion is affecting their social and economic lives and they are doing something to protect themselves.

I have recently completed a series of six lectures in New York City's Town Hall and half of my audience were persons fearful of the future buying power of the dollar. Most of them are starting to buy sound common stocks.

In 1959, political and economic tides in America are inseparably joined. If any deflationary movement in the country should threaten national prosperity, quick political action would be taken in Washington. The public would be very impatient with even a mild recession.

Consequently, with the United States still reposing in an inflationary environment, it is best for most investors to have the majority of their assets in sound equities with dollar commitments like rents and contract obligations covered by good grade bonds and preferred stocks which today are relatively cheap in price.

Another Wakeathon Is Nearing Conclusion

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—Disc jockey Jo Warner started today by spinning a long-play record. She hopes to end it with a new record for non-stop broadcasting.

The 22-year-old announcer for radio station KYTE began her ninth day of broadcasting in a downtown music store. "I'm a little tired," she said.

She admitted her voice was growing weak after 180 hours—a mark she passed at midnight Tuesday. She hopes to keep up the wakeathon for 240 hours for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

Ex-Teacher Is Found Guilty of N.Y. Vice Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Former schoolteacher Virginia McManus and a madam friend have been convicted on vice charges after a trial in Women's Court.

Miss McManus, 25 and blonde, and Mrs. Beatrice Garfield, 29, are being held in the Women's House of Detention pending sentencing Feb. 25.

The two women were found guilty Tuesday by Magistrate Hyman Bushel on charges stemming from their arrest in a police raid early last Friday on Mrs. Garfield's $350 - a - month apartment. Police said the apartment was the center of operation of 15 to 20 call girls who grossed about $400 each a night.

Miss McManus and Mrs. Garfield were found guilty of loitering for the purposes of prostitution. Mrs. Garfield also was convicted of permitting her apartment to be used for prostitution. The maximum sentence on either conviction is three years.

Miss McManus was acquitted on prostitution charges last October.

Miss McManus represented herself as an accredited schoolteacher and a graduate literature student after she came here from Chicago. She got a part-time teaching job at a Brooklyn high school at $4,400 a year. She lost the job after her first arrest.

Greece, Turkey

proposed constitution to British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd.

In the British capital, a Foreign Office spokesman said Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government wholeheartedly welcomed the news. British officials would not comment further until they had studied the constitution in detail. But London's approval was considered certain since Greece and Turkey had agreed, and since the constitution guarantees Britain will retain the big military bases she has established on Cyprus.

News Heartens NATO

News of the agreement also heartened all other members of the North Atlantic Alliance. Greece and Turkey form NATO's eastern anchor, and the Cyprus fight had halted cooperation between them for several years.

Britain has ruled Cyprus since 1879, and the island now is the major British base in the east Mediterranean. Of its 500,000 people, 400,000 are of Greek descent and 100,000 of Turkish origin.

For four years British troops have been fighting a guerrilla rebellion by EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground which originally demanded that Cyprus unite with Greece. The Turkish minority demanded continuance of British rule or partition of the island between its two communities. Independence guaranteed by the troops of all three nations, with special rights for the Turkish minority, is the solution that has been worked out.

Area Chamber Against Extreme Deficit Spending

Strong public opposition to extreme deficit spending by all levels of government was urged today by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. A deluge of letters from citizens addressed to our state and national representatives was strongly recommended.

These actions were taken at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors last night in the Governor Clinton Hotel. In spite of inclement weather and serious conflicts, a quorum was present. In the absence of President Frederick H. Stang, Vice-President Richard J. Whalen presided.

Several important decisions were made and actions taken by the board of directors.

An advisory committee to the board of directors will be named consisting of all past-presidents.

This committee will be given the responsibility of studying the present program of the Chamber of Commerce, consider the emphasis now placed on various activities and recommended a positive program of action and guidance for the benefit of the Kingston area.

A return visit to our schools, the reverse of Business-Education Day, was favored. The Education Committee will be asked to work out the details of this public relations program.

The committee structure of the Chamber of Commerce was reviewed. Suggested changes will be considered at the next meeting. A list of all Chamber committees was distributed and copies are available to members on request.

A detailed report was presented by Ronald G. Drowns, chairman of the Convention and Visitors Committee. Considerable progress was reported and the tangible benefits of convention visitors were emphasized. The committee asked that $600 be included in the 1959-60 budget for convention promotion. The fiscal year starts on May 1st.

The membership application of Drs. Abraham I. and William C. Feldman, partners in the practice of medicine at 326 Washington Avenue, was approved. The voting representative will be Dr. Abraham I. Feldman.

A political action program recommended by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States will be studied by the local Chamber of Commerce. A decision will be made at the next meeting as to action to be taken.

The next regular meeting of the board of directors will take place on March 10.

Storm Dead At 21

cut a path across the southeast corner of Forest Park. The worst destruction was in crowded Negro tenements on a path from the park to the vicinity of Busch Stadium, home of the St. Louis Cardinals. This area is a mile to two miles from downtown St. Louis.

Eight persons died when the tornado crushed a house at Whittier and Delmar.

Strikes Without Warning

There was also serious damage in the section of St. Louis known as "Greenwich Village" near the intersection of Boyle and Olive streets. In this area are many antique shops, apartments and taverns.

The tornado struck without warning and moved at tremendous speed. It took only minutes to blow itself out in the Busch Stadium area, after leveling a 380-foot radio tower and a 575-foot television tower.

The St. Louis Civil Defense Agency acknowledged it did not function smoothly in spite of eight years of preparation for such a disaster. CD officials blamed the Weather Bureau for not predicting the tornado and sending out an alert.

Similar to '27 Twister

The Weather Bureau replied that would have been impossible.

The tornado followed almost the same path of one in 1927 which killed 78.

Bodies No. 20 and 21 were dug from the rubble of a house in the 4200 block of Washington Ave. Tuesday night. They were identified as Mrs. Lee Buggs, 24, and her 18-month-old son, Lee Jr.

Wicks Denies Sending Ashby . . .

grand jury had been discussed with Tompkins but the testimony of Morgan D. Ryan of Kingston was not discussed, Wicks said.

No Talk of Troy Trip

In reply to the prosecution's question as to relations between Wicks and Ashby, Wicks said he had known Ashby for 20 years. Ashby has been a "worker in the party" but there was never any conversation in regard to his going to Troy to see Buckley, Wicks testified.

"Did you ever send Edwin W. Ashby to Troy to see Frank Buckley for the purpose of cashing checks?" Wicks was asked.

"I did not, sir," Wicks replied.

"Did you ever send Ashby to see Buckley for any purpose?" Tompkins inquired.

Denies Any Buckley Money

"No sir, never," Wicks replied.

"Did you ever receive any money from Frank Buckley, directly or indirectly?" the prosecution asked.

"No, sir," the witness replied.

"Did you ever receive any contributions from Harry Barieka?" Wicks was asked.

"Yes sir. Three contributions, one for $500, one for $800 and one for $1,000," Wicks replied.

Asked About Conversation

The witness said he never had any conversation with Ashby about any transaction with Buckley. Wicks said he had a conversation with Special Prosecutor Tompkins in regard to his appearing voluntarily before the grand jury and waiving immunity. Wicks said he had offered to do so.

On cross examination by Haver, Wicks was asked when that conversation took place.

"I can't give the exact date. I went from his office directly to your office as my attorney." At this point there was an objection and a motion to strike out the statement. The motion was granted. Wicks said the visit to Tompkins was before he went to Florida in December.

Quizzed on Association

Haver inquired as to the associations between former Senator Wicks and former Senator Tompkins in the state senate. Wicks said he first met Tompkins in 1953 when the latter entered the Senate. Tompkins was defeated for office but was later reelected to the Senate.

Wicks said the testimony of Morgan D. Ryan before the grand jury had not been made available to him.

Made Prior to 1956

The political contributions made by Barieka were received prior to 1956, Wicks said.

"Do you know, Senator, the difference between legitimate political contributions and kickbacks?" Haver inquired.

"I do," Wicks replied.

"Were these kickbacks from Barieka?" Haver asked. There was an objection to the question and it was withdrawn.

Wicks said Ashby was not a frequent visitor to Republican headquarters, 41 Pearl Street, but came in "two or three times a year."

Wicks said he never asked either Ashby or Ryan to go to Troy to see Buckley, that he never told Barieka, Ryan or Ashby to go to Troy.

Not Unusual Thing

"I saw Eddie lots of times on the street. I knew him for 20 or 25 years. I would say, 'Hello Eddie, how are you?'

On cross examination Wicks said it was not unusual for people doing business with the county to make contributions "on a voluntary basis" to the campaign fund.

Payments Made in Cash

The witness said he knew the Walter Truck Company did business with the county, knew Barieka was connected with the company but did not know in what capacity. The Barieka contributions were made in cash.

Asked if he knew whether his finances were under investigation by the Special Attorney General, Wicks said he did not. "I have no way of knowing."

Wicks said his office at 41 Pearl Street had been next to Haver's in the same building.

He was asked what happened to the Barieka contributions after Barieka turned them over to Heiselman. He said he didn't know.

Heiselman in Court

Haver asked if Heiselman was in court. Wicks replied yes. Wicks said he had told Heiselman that Barieka did not want the contributions reported but that he did not know what happened to them after they were turned over to Heiselman.

Next called was Joseph Koenig, accountant who served as county treasurer from Sept. 1958 to Jan. 1, 1959.

He was asked about his acquaintance with Ashby and about making out his income tax. Koenig said he could not recall Ashby telling him about any connection with Buckley. There were sums of money reported as "commissions" but Koenig said he did not recall Ashby saying from whom the commissions came. He said it was impossible to remember all that was discussed.

Paid by Barieka

Koenig said he did not recall Ashby telling him that Buckley would pay for making out the return. Later Koenig said he was paid by Barieka.

The return was figured "two different ways" and Koenig said if Ashby he did not receive all of the money as commissions it might have seemed "peculiar." It was possible Ashby did tell him that he did not receive all the money. Koenig said he could not remember. He said he had been before the grand jury. The court recessed with Koenig on the stand.

Tillson Students Visit High Falls Sheep Farm

The first, second and third graders of Mrs. Vincent Brancato's and Mrs. Gene Van Winkle's class in Tillson School visited a sheep farm Monday. The sheep, owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Reisenauer of High Falls, proved to be most endearing to the youngsters who were permitted to touch, hold and feed some of the newborn lambs.

The visit was an outgrowth of the study of wool in the social studies clothing unit. Prior to the trip, the children had actually seen a sheepski, electric and hand clippers, carders as well as having studied various phases of the manufacture of woolen materials.

2 Leap . . .

ing through the yard of Charles Counsil, grazing a thick hard maple and almost bounced through a ditch into the River Road. It finally came to a stop with one wheel in the ditch.

Counsil told The Freeman that Mrs. Webster's escape was miraculous. The car was able to leave under its own power, he said. She entered his yard by way of Route 9W, he said, continued for about 80 feet, and left "by way of the River Road." Counsil's property is located on the easterly side of the highway at its junction with the River Road.

Leaves 9W Roadway

About five minutes later a 1953 sedan operated by Ingram H. Froehlich, 29, of Sunset Lodge, Ulster Park, was proceeding down the same hill when his car skidded and plunged off Route 9W into the property of Edwin Hummell.

The Ulster County Sheriff's Office reported that the vehicle plunged into a tree on the westerly side of the highway. Deputy Sheriffs Charles Dullea and Harrison Rose investigated.

Still Icy Today

Constable Ray Burr of the town of Esopus, Counsil and others directed traffic at the scene. Counsil said the Froehlich car apparently clipped a maple and smashed into a blue spruce.

The sheriff's office and area state police reported roads icy and driving hazardous this morning.

Trooper David Wachtel, on duty at the Kingston state police barracks on Route 9W reported a "few" minor property damage accidents, "none with injuries."

Northrop advanced more than a point. North American Aviation was fractionally higher. Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line dropped 2 points.

Lukens showed a net loss of more than a point. General Tire also backed away and was fractionally lower. Bath Iron Works was about 2 to the good.

Ashby's Second Criticism . . .

amount due and gave him some back, would it be all right," Ashby told the grand jury.

Checks Are Produced

"Well, if you want it that way" Ashby said he replied.

Various checks were produced before the grand jury and Ashby was questioned as to what happened to the proceeds. On his second appearance before the grand jury, contrary to his first testimony that he kept the money, Ashby said the money was returned to Buckley except for small amounts which he kept, spent for dinners and drinks or used for entertainment. He may have deposited some of the money but he never entertained any officials.

Between December 1951 and May 1956 Ashby said he "probably" talked to several supervisors. Over that period he probably talked to every supervisor. He mentioned former Supervisor Edward Eckert of the Town of Esopus as one he talked to. He told the grand jury he believed the town had bought a truck.

Former Supervisor Edward Eckert was in court Tuesday when the Ashby testimony was read and it is reported he will be called as a prosecuting witness.

The grand jury minutes disclose that Ashby was once told his story was not believed and that if it were not made more "definite" the grand jury would be asked to cite him for contempt.

At the conclusion of the reading of the testimony given before the grand jury by Ashby on October 2, 1958, defense counsel N. LeVan Haver asked if Ashby had been then directed to return before the grand jury on October 3 at 2 p. m. That portion of the minutes were read.

"Read what occurred," Haver asked, referring to October 3, 1958, session of the grand jury.

Prosecution objected and the objection was sustained.

The prosecution then offered to stipulate that "he did not come." Haver refused to so stipulate.

Prosecution Hits Point

One of the points being made by prosecution is that Ashby did not attempt to recant or purge himself of perjury until 25 days after he first told his story on October 2. The defense, according to the opening remarks of counsel, contends that Ashby was not again called before the grand jury until October 27, 1958, and then told a true story in an attempt to purge himself of any act of perjury.

On October 27, 1958, when Ashby appeared before the grand jury again he presented a typed statement dated October 23, 1958, in which he said he had gone to Troy at the request of Senator Wicks, had cashed checks and returned the money to Buckley, except for small amounts. Contrary to his first testimony earlier that month he said he had not been paid the money for commissions or for "bird-dogging."

The text of the statement has been published in The Freeman. It stated that Ashby was making this statement to "clear up his testimony" and stated that his previous testimony had been false, that prior to going to Tompkins office for a conference (before his first appearance before the grand jury) he had not consulted counsel. Later he discussed the matter with Haver, thinking he might engage Haver if he later needed an attorney.

"Haver told me to tell my story," Ashby told the grand jury.

"That was my big mistake, the story I told," Ashby told the grand jury.

Made on 'Spur of Moment'

He told the grand jury on his second appearance that he had made up the first story "on the spur of the moment" just before he appeared before the grand jury because he wanted to "protect" Senator Wicks, "I did not want his name to come up."

"I knew I had cashed the checks, I knew you (Tompkins) were investigating the matter and I knew the checks would come up," Ashby is quoted as telling the grand jury.

The matter had not been discussed with Wicks since 1955, "when I last went up for him," Ashby is quoted as telling the grand jury.

Before the grand jury on his second visit, Ashby told of the income tax return made out by Koenig and said that Buckley probably paid Koenig. Once he said to Koenig "I hope you were paid for making out my tax last year." He said he believed he closed-door meeting that the assemblymen had expressed "great concern" of the impact of the tax program. But he said no one offered a workable alternative.

"I don't see how any significant change can be made in the tax plan without cutting the budget at least 30 million dollars," Carlino said, adding: "In my opinion, this would be impossible."

Senate Republicans held a similar conference but did not go into the budget in detail. Majority leader Walter J. Mahoney discussed with his senators the Legislature's budget-cutting functions.

AFL-CIO President Harold Hanover, in his statement, singled out 10 tax sources that he said could be tapped for budget-balancing money, instead of raising income taxes.

Proposes Other Taxes

He proposed a gift tax, a business tax on doctors and other professional people, and higher taxes on capital gains, estates, business franchises, real estate corporations and commercial banks.

He said the Rockefeller income tax plan would mean a $12 a year increase in the taxes of the average production worker, representing three pairs of shoes for his children or 48 quarts of milk.

This, he said, "is the kind of thing any government should be ashamed to even think of doing."

The Citizens Public Expenditures Survey Inc., a taxpayers' organization, saw still further tax increases ahead unless the state government reformed its spending practices.

Glenn D. Owens, speaking for the survey, said "increasingly burdensome taxes could very well break the back of the (business) recovery."

The Empire State Chamber of Commerce said the tax increases were "inescapable" unless the Legislature made drastic cuts in spending. The chamber's spokesman, Thomas C. Plowden-Warden, urged the lawmakers to economize.

He also asked for some kind of commission for employers, who would collect the state income tax under the payroll withholding plan Rockefeller proposes.

Cries for economy found their counterpart in demands for even further spending.

Rose V. Russell, speaking for the Teachers Union of New York City, called for a 140-million increase in state aid for education. She said teachers' salaries should be doubled.

told Koenig that Buckley was to pay for making out the return and also that Buckley was to return to him (Ashby) the amount of income tax paid on the amount of the checks which had been reported as income.

Testimony Reading Continues

Ashby told the grand jury he never discussed the amount of the checks with Senator Wicks except "sometimes he asked me."

Ashby said he never turned over any of the money to either Wicks or Conrad J. Heiselman, former Kingston mayor.

The testimony was still being read at the afternoon adjournment.

INFLATIONARY UNDERTOW

In the sea of national economics, the undertow is still inflationary. Reversing the trends of recent years is going to be a difficult job. To balance the proposed 1959-1960 federal budget of $77 billion, the President has suggested hikes in gasoline taxes and postal rates.

Such revenue increases reach right down to the grass roots of America and with millions of voters vitally interested in such taxation, there will be strong opposition in Congress to such measures. The average voter may say: "What if the federal treasury does run at a few billion dollar deficit? It is better that way than to increase my gasoline taxes and postal charges."

America is and has been for some time caught in an inflationary tide. Individual sacrifices for the public good are hard to put over on the rank-and-file citizen. Yet precisely there is where a tightening of the national economy with a concomitant improvement in the dollar's integrity should begin.

But pressure groups with large voting power shift the responsiblity from the individual to the government. My opinion is that these two tax measures will not be enacted by Congress and unless powerful forces latent in the economy produce a boom, the 1959-1960 budget will not be balanced.

The dollar is still on the spot. That partially accounts for a strong, virulent stock market. There is an abundance of money in the country to support a rising stock market. This money, augmented by the psychological urge to buy values a measure of inflationary protection, will doubtless push stock prices much higher. I think the Dow-Jones industrial averages can go up 100 points more easily than down 50.

Yet it should be pointed out that today blue-chip common stock prices are high. From the standpoint of earnings and dividends most of them are too high. But inflation psychology being what it is, and with the great volumes of money available for investment and speculation, it is doubtful that there will be any drastic decline in sound stock prices in the forseeable future.

And there are still billions of dollars of 'fearful' money in the country. All over America there are thousands of persons with cash balances running from $10,000 to $100,000 or more. Day by day dollar erosion is affecting their social and economic lives and they are doing something to protect themselves.

I have recently completed a series of six lectures in New York City's Town Hall and half of my audience were persons fearful of the future buying power of the dollar. Most of them are starting to buy sound common stocks.

In 1959, political and economic tides in America are inseparably joined. If any deflationary movement in the country should threaten national prosperity, quick political action would be taken in Washington. The public would be very impatient with even a mild recession.

Consequently, with the United States still reposing in an inflationary environment, it is best for most investors to have the majority of their assets in sound equities with dollar commitments like rents and contract obligations covered by good grade bonds and preferred stocks which today are relatively cheap in price.

Another Wakeathon Is Nearing Conclusion

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—Disc jockey Jo Warner started today by spinning a long-play record. She hopes to end it with a new record for non-stop broadcasting.

The 22-year-old announcer for radio station KYTE began her ninth day of broadcasting in a downtown music store. "I'm a little tired," she said.

She admitted her voice was growing weak after 180 hours—a mark she passed at midnight Tuesday. She hopes to keep up the wakeathon for 240 hours for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

Ex-Teacher Is Found Guilty of N.Y. Vice Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Former schoolteacher Virginia McManus and a madam friend have been convicted on vice charges after a trial in Women's Court.

Miss McManus, 25 and blonde, and Mrs. Beatrice Garfield, 29, are being held in the Women's House of Detention pending sentencing Feb. 25.

The two women were found guilty Tuesday by Magistrate Hyman Bushel on charges stemming from their arrest in a police raid early last Friday on Mrs. Garfield's $350-a-month apartment. Police said the apartment was the center of operation of 15 to 20 call girls who grossed about $400 each a night.

Miss McManus and Mrs. Garfield were found guilty of loitering for the purposes of prostitution. Mrs. Garfield also was convicted of permitting her apartment to be used for prostitution. The maximum sentence on either conviction is three years.

Miss McManus was acquitted on prostitution charges last October.

Miss McManus represented herself as an accredited schoolteacher and a graduate literature student after she came here from Chicago. She got a part-time teaching job at a Brooklyn high school at $4,400 a year. She lost the job after her first arrest.

proposed constitution to British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd.

In the British capital, a Foreign Office spokesman said Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government wholeheartedly welcomed the news. British officials would not comment further until they had studied the constitution in detail. But London's approval was considered certain since Greece and Turkey had agreed, and since the constitution guarantees Britain will retain the big military bases she has established on Cyprus.

News Heartens NATO

News of the agreement also heartened all other members of the North Atlantic Alliance. Greece and Turkey form NATO's eastern anchor, and the Cyprus fight had halted cooperation between them for several years.

Britain has ruled Cyprus since 1879, and the island now is the major British base in the east Mediterranean. Of its 500,000 people, 400,000 are of Greek descent and 100,000 of Turkish origin.

For four years British troops have been fighting a guerrilla rebellion by EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground which originally demanded that Cyprus unite with Greece. The Turkish minority demanded continuance of British rule or partition of the island between its two communities. Independence guaranteed by the troops of all three nations, with special rights for the Turkish minority, is the solution that has been worked out.

Southern Brazil Jungle Is Topic At Lions Meeting

The Kingston Lions Club was introduced to the "Green Hell" of southern Brazil at its regular luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The Rev. Donald Quilty of the Redemptorist Fathers, who has recently returned from South America, showed slides depicting life in the Brazilian jungles.

He emphasized the lackadaisical attitude of the Indians living in the jungle known as the "Green Hell." One slide showed a wood burning train entering a railroad station a day and a half late—typical of the pace at which these people live, he said.

Pictures of the very crudely constructed houses and huts were shown, making it evident that the area is poverty stricken. Father Quilty pointed out that there were only seven trucks in the entire area.

The hazards of daily living are many, he said. Children die in great numbers of malnutrition, tuberculosis, snake bite, etc. The grass is cleared away from the native huts for a wide area so that the Indians can see the snakes. One man killed 17 in one day.

There are few men with only one profession. Father Quilty's local dentist is also the village butcher. Labor is so cheap that most of the men work for a full week for the equivalent of one American dollar.

Bananas, oranges and grapefruit are plentiful, as are cows and milk, although sometimes the milk is diseased. Even the drinking water it usually dirty.

After seeing the slides it was easy to understand the use of "Green Hell" in describing the area, members of the club reported.

Father Quilty extended an invitation to all Lions who would like to hunt to make a special trip to Brazil. Bring your own guns, ammunition, and luck, he said, explaining that the hunting is great. He pointed out that it is the custom in this southern jungle that all invitations must be accepted.

A rabid golfer was seated next to a pretty girl at dinner and he regaled her at such great length on his game that she could barely crowd in an occasional "Oh!" Toward the end of the meal he smiled apologetically and said,

Golfer—Goodness! I'm afraid I've monopolized the conversation with nothing but my talk of golf.

Girl—That's quite all right but would you mind telling me, what is golf?

Someone asked Mr. Einstein one day what kind of weapons would be used in the third world war. "Well," he answered, "I don't know. I don't know what they are developing, because things are progressing so rapidly, but I can tell you what they'll use in the fourth world war," he said. "They'll use rocks." — J. Farewell Dinner Tonight at Moose For Member, 75

A member of Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose will soon be enjoying all the comforts offered aged members at Moosehaven, Fla.

He is George Haben, 75, of Whiteport, a 45-year member of the fraternal order that is interested in the welfare of fraternal brothers in their golden age.

A farewell dinner will be held in his honor following tonight's regular meeting of the Moose at its lodge, 82 Prince Street.

On Way Soon

In a few days Mr. Haben will be on his way to the sunny south to spend his time in relaxation at Moosehaven. His brother Moose here wish him health, happiness and many more years of good living.

Moosehaven, the "City of Contentment," is a home maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose for its aged members and their wives on the banks of the St. John's River, 15 miles south of Jacksonville, Fla.

After the founding of Mooseheart, the famed "Child City," for children of deceased members, the fraternity turned its attention to plans for a home for its dependent aged members. During these early years a colony of old folks was established at Mooseheart.

The Moose eventually bought a resort hotel on a tract of land at Orange Park, Fla., and on Nov. 1, 1922, Moosehaven was formerly opened. Twenty-two of its first residents came from the old folks' colony at Mooseheart. They set up housekeeping in the hotel which had been rechristened Aid Hall.

Do Own Work

From the beginning, much of the work necessary to keep Moosehaven running has been done by the old folks who live there. They serve as their own gardeners, barbers, housekeepers, kitchen helpers, dining room helpers, maintenance crews and nurses.

GEORGE HABEN

During the past 30 years all of the original buildings on the 65-acre site have been replaced.

Each of the buildings in which Moosehaven people live is a self-contained home, with its sleeping and living rooms, kitchen and dining rooms.

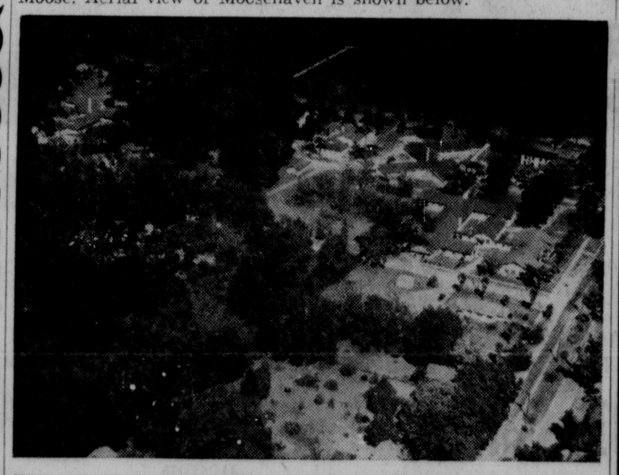
The men and women of Moosehaven are served delicious well-balanced meals scientically planned for the nourishment of aged bodies. They may requisition such personal articles as they need. Birthday packages, provided by the women of the Moose, are distributed to those celebrating birthdays.

Ideal Never Changes

The ideal of Moosehaven has not changed with the years. Every inhabitant is urged to do what he feels he is able or qualified to do. Everyone is paid for attending to his job, drawing a regular salary on pay day.

Those no longer able to work are called "Sunshiners." Their job, and they get paid for it, is to sit in rocking chairs in the sun and smile at passersby. For Moosehaven believes that kindness and fellowship are important too, perhaps more important than ever before.

"Well, now, that isn't bad, but you should have seen the one that got away," seems to be what the fellow on the right is saying to his more fortunate companion. These are two of the happy and carefree aged residents of Moosehaven, the home for dependent aged maintained and operated in Florida by the Loyal Order of Moose. Aerial view of Moosehaven is shown below.



Lefkowitz Will Fight Halting of Trooper Phones

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz will oppose a federal ruling that would force the New York Telephone Co. to end its radio-telephone service to the New York State Police.

The utility has served notice that it must terminate the service July 31, 1960 because of a Federal Communications Commission ruling.

The FCC ruling is based on a U. S. District Court anti-trust decision in 1956 which restrains the company from providing service to law enforcement agencies.

The company operates the State Police network under lease, and uses its own equipment and facilities.

Lefkowitz said Tuesday that Gov. Rockefeller had directed him "to use all of the powers and facilities of my office to see that there is no interruption in the central service."

Lefkowitz said he might appeal to the federal court to modify the order to allow the State Police to continue using the company service.

Deputy Supt. George Searle of the State Police said that, if the lease agreement were ended, the state would have to spend substantial funds to set up its own communications system. He said he could not estimate the cost.

The Division of State Police is seeking an appropriation of $744,105 for communications expenses in the fiscal year that begins April 1. This is for the lease system.

Searle said it was his understanding that complaints of manufacturers were seeking to have police agencies purchase, rather than lease equipment. He did not identify the manufacturers.

Rockefeller Makes Appointment of Three

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today designated Joseph C. Mruk, former mayor of Buffalo, as vice chairman of the State Commission on Pensions.

Mruk's nomination to the commission, for a term expiring April 1, 1963, was confirmed by the Senate last week.

Rockefeller also reappointed William H.Wisely of Scarsdale to the Public Health Council for a term expiring Jan. 1, 1965. Members are paid $1,710 a year.

Mrs. Jane V. Fallon of Port Chester was reappointed to the unsalaried board of visitors of the State Women's Relief Corps Home at Oxford. The appointment, which runs until February, 1965, is subject to Senate confirmation.

They Say It Can't Be Done

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

If you don't want to believe this hand ever happened you are in full accord with me. Still it's a good story and if it did happen East and West are entitled to some sort of a prize for hard luck.

South started proceedings with a bid of two clubs only to be informed that it was West's turn to bid. West proceeded to open three hearts and North was barred from bidding. When it came around to South he could have doubled and picked up a nice little profit but he had visions of something much better.

Three no-trump was a spread but South wanted a slam and a no-trump slam looked impossible because he surely couldn't get to dummy. So South bid six spades!

East was too pleased with the contract to bother to double. All he did was pass like the cat that had just swallowed the canary.

West opened his king of hearts and South proceeded to wrap up his spade slam. All he had to do was take his ace of hearts and cash his ace-king of diamonds and ace-king-queen of clubs while poor East had to follow suit.

Then he simply cross ruffed hearts and diamonds while poor East under-ruffed.

Eventually East made his last trump, his only trick.

Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Helm, 70, legal adviser to the New York Mirror and for 35 years associated with the Hearst newspapers in New York, died Tuesday after a long illness. He was born at Fort Snelling, Minn.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Manvel H. Davis, 67, former member of both houses of the Missouri Legislature and long a power in the state's Republican politics, died Tuesday after an illness of about two months. Davis, an attorney, was defeated in 1940 for the U.S. Senate by former President Harry S. Truman.

The game of shuffleboard was invented in England about 1300.

Bills Introduced In Legislature

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Bills favored by farmers had a field day in the Assembly Tuesday. They involved harvesting and chauffeuring.

A measure to let children over 12 harvest berries, fruits and vegetables for four hours a day if parents approve was passed 88-51. The minimum age now is 14 years.

Democrats voted against the bill, which was sponsored by Alonzo L. Waters (R-Orleans County). There was no debate.

Another proposal, passed unanimously, provides for a year's delay in the effective date of a broadened chauffeur's license law designed to tighten control over tractor - trailers. It would have taken effect May 31.

Farmers had protested that the law would require them and their families to hold chauffeur's licenses for running farm vehicles on the highways. These cost $6, against $3 for regular permits.

The sponsor, Mrs. Mildred Taylor (R-Wayne County), said the delay would give time for revising the law.

Both bills were sent to the Senate.

Philly Firm Gets Pact

NEW YORK (AP)—M. L. Bayard and Co. Inc., of Philadelphia, has been awarded a $286,800 contract to furnish 24 intake gate fixed hoists for the Tuscarora power plant of the Niagara Power project.

The company was among 18 firms submitting bids to the State Power Authority, which awarded the contract Tuesday.

Javits Appointees

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) announced his two principal appointees, with alternates, Tuesday to the U. S. Naval Academy class that begins in July.

The principals are John Castro of Brooklyn, N. Y., and William J. Pawlyk of New York City.

The second alternate to Pawlyk is John Detweiler of Ithaca.

Farewell Dinner Tonight at Moose For Member, 75

A member of Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose will soon be enjoying all the comforts offered aged members at Moosehaven, Fla.

He is George Haben, 75, of Whiteport, a 45-year member of the fraternal order that is interested in the welfare of fraternal brothers in their golden age.

A farewell dinner will be held in his honor following tonight's regular meeting of the Moose at its lodge, 82 Prince Street.

On Way Soon

In a few days Mr. Haben will be on his way to the sunny south to spend his time in relaxation at Moosehaven. His brother Moose here wish him health, happiness and many more years of good living.

Moosehaven, the "City of Contentment," is a home maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose for its aged members and their wives on the banks of the St. John's River, 15 miles south of Jacksonville, Fla.

After the founding of Mooseheart, the famed "Child City," for children of deceased members, the fraternity turned its attention to plans for a home for its dependent aged members. During these early years a colony of old folks was established at Mooseheart.

The Moose eventually bought a resort hotel on a tract of land at Orange Park, Fla., and on Nov. 1, 1922, Moosehaven was formerly opened. Twenty-two of its first residents came from the old folks' colony at Mooseheart. They set up housekeeping in the hotel which had been rechristened Aid Hall.

Do Own Work

From the beginning, much of the work necessary to keep Moosehaven running has been done by the old folks who live there. They serve as their own gardeners, barbers, housekeepers, kitchen helpers, dining room helpers, maintenance crews and nurses.

GEORGE HABEN

During the past 30 years all of the original buildings on the 65-acre site have been replaced.

Each of the buildings in which Moosehaven people live is a self-contained home, with its sleeping and living rooms, kitchen and dining rooms.

The men and women of Moosehaven are served delicious well-balanced meals scientically planned for the nourishment of aged bodies. They may requisition such personal articles as they need. Birthday packages, provided by the women of the Moose, are distributed to those celebrating birthdays.

Ideal Never Changes

The ideal of Moosehaven has not changed with the years. Every inhabitant is urged to do what he feels he is able or qualified to do. Everyone is paid for attending to his job, drawing a regular salary on pay day.

Those no longer able to work are called "Sunshiners." Their job, and they get paid for it, is to sit in rocking chairs in the sun and smile at passersby. For Moosehaven believes that kindness and fellowship are important too, perhaps more important than ever before.

"Well, now, that isn't bad, but you should have seen the one that got away," seems to be what the fellow on the right is saying to his more fortunate companion. These are two of the happy and carefree aged residents of Moosehaven, the home for dependent aged maintained and operated in Florida by the Loyal Order of Moose. Aerial view of Mocsehaven is shown below.

Lefkowitz Will Fight Halting of Trooper Phones

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz will oppose a federal ruling that would force the New York Telephone Co. to end its radio-telephone service to the New York State Police.

The utility has served notice that it must terminate the service July 31, 1960 because of a Federal Communications Commission ruling.

The FCC ruling is based on a U. S. District Court anti-trust decision in 1956 which restrains the company from providing service to law enforcement agencies.

The company operates the State Police network under lease, and uses its own equipment and facilities.

Lefkowitz said Tuesday that Gov. Rockefeller had directed him "to use all of the powers and facilities of my office to see that there is no interruption in the central service."

Lefkowitz said he might appeal to the federal court to modify the order to allow the State Police to continue using the company service.

Deputy Supt. George Searle of the State Police said that, if the lease agreement were ended, the state would have to spend substantial funds to set up its own communications system. He said he could not estimate the cost.

The Division of State Police is seeking an appropriation of $744,105 for communications expenses in the fiscal year that begins April 1. This is for the lease system.

Searle said it was his understanding that complaints of manufacturers were seeking to have police agencies purchase, rather than lease equipment. He did not identify the manufacturers.

Rockefeller Makes Appointment of Three

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today designated Joseph C. Mruk, former mayor of Buffalo, as vice chairman of the State Commission on Pensions.

Mruk's nomination to the commission, for a term expiring April 1, 1963, was confirmed by the Senate last week.

Rockefeller also reappointed William H.Wisely of Scarsdale to the Public Health Council for a term expiring Jan. 1, 1965. Members are paid $1,710 a year.

Mrs. Jane V. Fallon of Port Chester was reappointed to the unsalaried board of visitors of the State Women's Relief Corps Home at Oxford. The appointment, which runs until February, 1965, is subject to Senate confirmation.

They Say It Can't Be Done

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

If you don't want to believe this hand ever happened you are in full accord with me. Still it's a good story and if it did happen East and West are entitled to some sort of a prize for hard luck.

South started proceedings with a bid of two clubs only to be informed that it was West's turn to bid. West proceeded to open three hearts and North was barred from bidding. When it came around to South he could have doubled and picked up a nice little profit but he had visions of something much better.

Three no-trump was a spread but South wanted a slam and a no-trump slam looked impossible because he surely couldn't get to dummy. So South bid six spades!

East was too pleased with the contract to bother to double. All he did was pass like the cat that had just swallowed the canary.

West opened his king of hearts and South proceeded to wrap up his spade slam. All he had to do was take his ace of hearts and cash his ace-king of diamonds and ace-king-queen of clubs while poor East had to follow suit.

Then he simply cross ruffed hearts and diamonds while poor East under-ruffed.

Eventually East made his last trump, his only trick.

Bills Introduced In Legislature

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Bills favored by farmers had a field day in the Assembly Tuesday. They involved harvesting and chauffeuring.

A measure to let children over 12 harvest berries, fruits and vegetables for four hours a day if parents approve was passed 88-51. The minimum age now is 14 years.

Democrats voted against the bill, which was sponsored by Alonzo L. Waters (R-Orleans County). There was no debate.

Another proposal, passed unanimously, provides for a year's delay in the effective date of a broadened chauffeur's license law designed to tighten control over tractor - trailers. It would have taken effect May 31.

Farmers had protested that the law would require them and their families to hold chauffeur's licenses for running farm vehicles on the highways. These cost $6, against $3 for regular permits.

The sponsor, Mrs. Mildred Taylor (R-Wayne County), said the delay would give time for revising the law.

Both bills were sent to the Senate.

Children Will Contribute for Needy of World

Starting today and continuing throughout the Lenten season more than 200,000 boys and girls attending the Catholic elementry and high schools in the New York Archdiocese will contribute their pennies and prayers for the homeless, sick and hungry children of Europe, Asia, Africa, the Near and Far East and South America. Their participation marks the start of the 1959 appeal of the Bishops' Fund for overseas relief.

In last's years campaign school children contributed $99,436, Right Rev. Msgr. John F. McCarthy, who is directing the appeal for the archdiocese, reports.

From kindergarten through high school, coin boxes, milk bottles and other containers have been placed around the classrooms for children to deposit their offerings which will be used to supply poor children overseas with food, medicine and clothing. An illustrated "Lenten Calendar," has been hung in every classroom and teachers supplied with a handbook containing information on foreign countries and the needs of their destitute populations including refugees and native poor.

The children's Lenten collection will supplement the general Bishops' Fund Appeal scheduled for March 1 to 8 in all Catholic churches throughout the New York Archdiocese. It is part of the national campaign for which a goal of $5,000,000 has been set.

Upholds Record

HUMBOLDT, Neb. (AP) — For 27 years Mrs. Ward Merritt never missed teaching her Sunday school class. When she was taken to a Humboldt hospital for an emergency appendectomy it looked as though Mrs. Merritt's record was in danger. On Sunday, however, Mrs. Merritt and her class were together—in her hospital room. The entire class had driven from Verdon, 13 miles away, where the church is located.

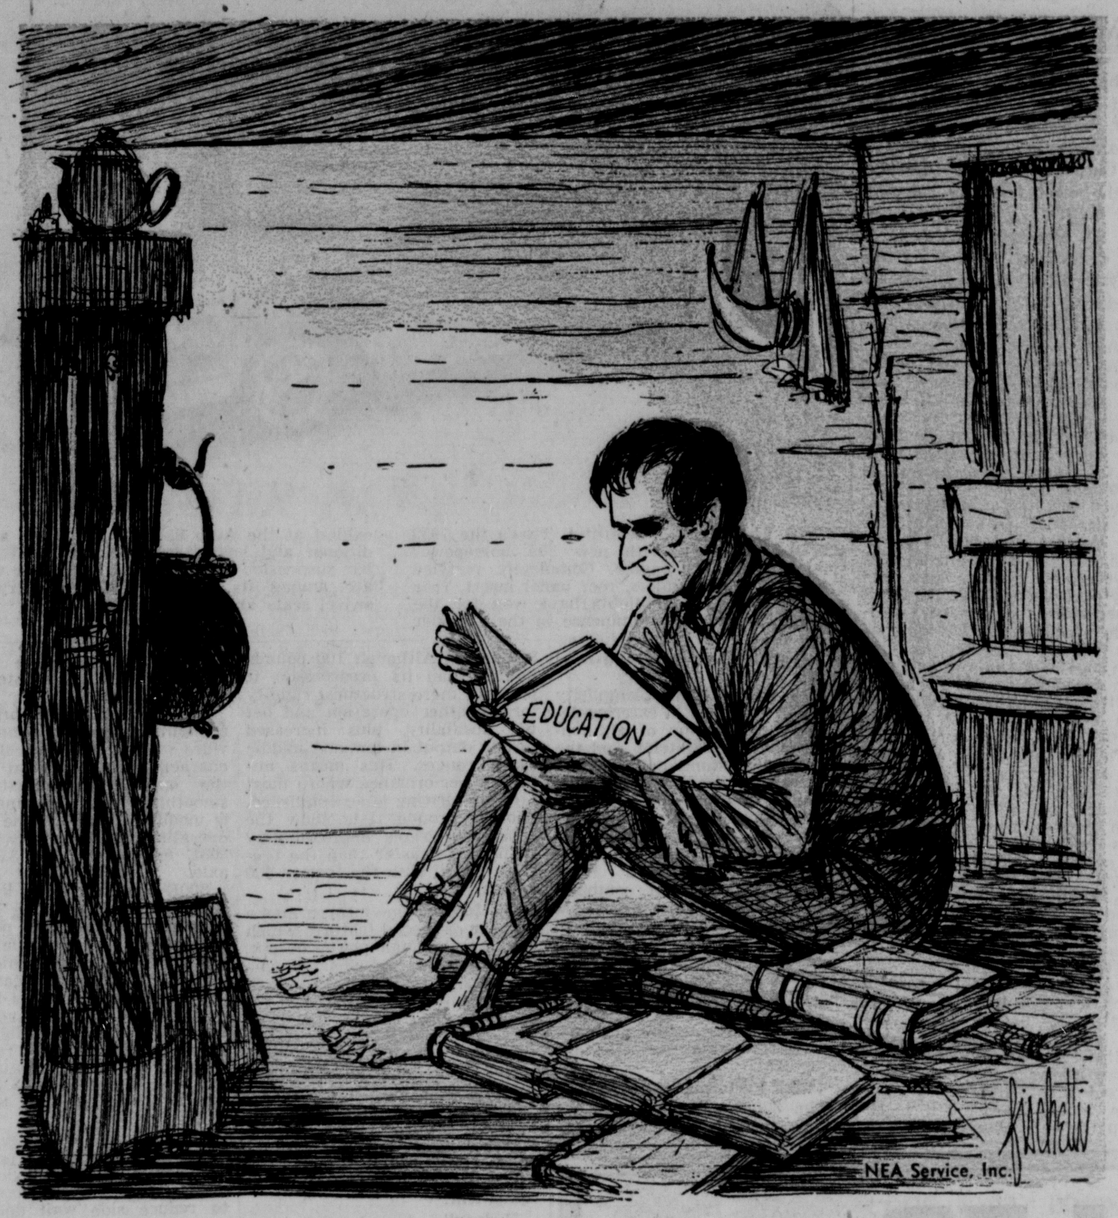
Greatness Alone Is Not Enough



Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato:

America seems to have lost one of its safety valves — the old-fashioned Sunday afternoon nap.

It is hard to say just when civilization went astray in our country. Some say it happened right after the first World War when the Russians embraced communism and the Americans adopted prohibition.

Some date it from the time when U. S. women were given the ballot and also started smoking cigarettes in public. Still others claim civilization died with the five-cent glass of beer.

Bows to Sunday Trip

But a good case could be made for the contention that civilized living began to decline when the average man gave up his Sunday afternoon nap and took up Sunday driving. Life has been one mad whirl ever since.

The old-fashioned Sunday afternoon nap in most homes was a ceremony as full of ritual as a lodge meeting.

It started with a massive Sunday dinner, a loving work of art that took mother all morning to prepare. This was served promptly at two o'clock.

After a meal that would fell three of today's modest trenchermen, the head of the house would push back his chair, yawn and say, "Well, guess it's time for the nap."

He would go into his bedroom, and when he took off his shoes you could near his sigh of relief all through the house. In taking off his shoes father symbolically also shed the woes, griefs and annonyances of his whole work week.

Warning to Children

He'd then stretch out on the bed, cover his face with the Sunday newspaper — and in five seconds be sound asleep.

"If any of you children dare wake him up, I'll—" said mother, leaving her threat unfinished as she waved a warning finger. Then she would retire to a comfortable chair in the living room, and doze herself over the pile of undarned socks in her lap.

Three hours after he hit the pillow, father let out a series of cacophonous grunts, wheezes and groans, like an old steam engine on a hard uphill grade. Then he woke up.

Where is the family peace of those vanished Sundays? Today people work so hard on Sunday trying to find joy somewhere outside the home they are still worn-out on Monday morning.

Wife of Newburgh City Manager Dies

NEWBURGH, N. Y. (AP) — Mrs. Ruth E. Abrams, 41, wife of City Manager Albert J. Abrams and a former newspaper woman, died Monday of cancer.

She began her newspaper career when she was 16, conducting interviews and book reviews for the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. She later joined the now defunct Rochester Journal-American and also worked for the Albany Times-Union, the Bridgeport, Conn., Sunday Herald and the Newburgh News.

Actor, Writer Team Up

NEW YORK (AP)—The new producing team of Lloyd Nolan, actor, and David Yellin, magazine writer, has launched its activities by acquiring for the stage four stories by Pulitzer prize winners. The items are Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' "The Young Un," Paul Horgan's "The Saintmaker's Chistmas Eve," Ellen Glasgow's "The Romantic Comedians," and Thornton Wilder's "The Ides of March."

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Received a timely article from H. LeRoy Gill, attorney at law, of Kingston. Gill writes in his letter that he enjoys this column and it brings back to his mind, many pleasant recollections. I certainly appreciate these kind words.

Attorney Gill's article begins "I wonder how many readers of your column remember the days when ice harvesting on the Hudson River at Kingston was an important local industry during the winter months. I was born and spent my early years in the Ponckhockie section of the city, near the Hudson River, and so, I had an opportunity to observe this industry at first hand. For those who do remember those days, it may bring back pleasant memories, and for those of the younger generation, it may be interesting to take a glance at a once flourishing industry, which may now be called a dead industry, at least in the Hudson River area."

He further writes: "In those days, there were no ice breakers such as are now used to break through the ice and clear a channel for ships to pass through, bound for Albany, and so, there was a surface of ice on the river, which was unbroken from shore to shore. It was the practice to wait until the ice had attained a thickness of at least 10 inches before harvesting was begun, but a thickness of 14 inches was considered a better crop. Horses were used to pull a cutting saw over the ice field to mark out and cut the ice, part of the way through."

"After this was done, the ice was then cut all the way through by men working with specially designed hand saws, and was then cut into rectangular cakes 22 inches by 34 inches and weighing approximately 200 pounds each. The cakes were then placed upon elevators which consisted of an endless chain device which hauled the cakes into a large storage ice-house. The cakes were then stored away in layers and packed at the siding with 12 inches of sawdust and the top of the layer was covered with several inches of salted hay to keep the ice in good condition and to retard its melting during storage."

Attorney Gill further explains "In the summer months the ice was sold to retail dealers and distributed by them to the public and sold from house to house. As there were no electric refrigerators at that time, each home had its individual ice box for the storage of the family food supply, and a small cake of ice placed in such a container would last usually several days according to the weather," he concluded.

Folks still talk about the ice-harvesting around here. It was an old saying to the effect that when boys went to work on the ice they came back men. In those days it seems they started to work when they were 14 years old or younger. According to an item in the Kingston Argus of Feb. 20, 1889 there were some 126 ice houses on the Hudson River, 97 north of Barrytown and some 29 south. Ice houses around the upper section held some 2,511,500 tons, and south of Barrytown some 919,000. It was a big industry. It gave boatmen work in the winter. It put food on their table and gave them a good appetite to eat it.

Suspicious Wares

OGALLALA, Neb. (AP) — When an unidentified man came into the post office and tried to sell him a quantity of stamps, Postmaster Jack Gemmell explained his regular supplier kept him well stocked. Gemmell notified police, who noted that the postoffice at nearby Stratton had been burglarized the night before. The "stamp salesman" disappeared before police could find him.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Family Reunions Can Be Boring for Adolescents

What did traditional family reunions mean to you as a child?

Excitement, I bet. First, there was the fragrance of the special dinner cooking and the thrilling abundance of candy. There were the anuts who were fascinated over how you'd grown and the uncles who slipped you dimes and quarters.

Then, after dinner came the reminiscing. From her chair, Grandma would say, "Do you remember the day the car broke down and Papa borrowed the Taylors' truck to drive us all to the movies?"

At once our other relatives burst into a chorus of "Do you remember?" And we sat silently by, open-mouthed and absorbed while they recollected mutual experiences that sounded as exotic as fairy tales.

But at 15, 16 or 17, did the reminiscences still hold fascination for you? Or when they began did you groan inwardly, thinking, "Oh my goodness, is Uncle Frank going to tell that old story about the stolen crab apples again?"

The truth is, in adolescence most of us begin to feel a little restless at family reunions. Now that the big holidays are long since over, let's admit how we felt toward them ourselves so that next year we can give better understanding to the same feeling in our own teenagers.

Your Harry's insistence on keeping a skating date on Christmas afternoon was not family disloyalty but his healthy need to experience his own life instead of reliving yours with you and your family. Ethel's eagerness for her New Year's Day call was not disrespect for your relatives but her wholesome wish for relationship of her town.

We invite unnecessary anguish when we expect our nearly mature youngsters to feel the same intense interest in our families, our other children, our parents and brothers and sisters that we feel. While they are getting ready to start families of their own they can't feel it.

When we make sentimental demands for their full, unbroken attendance at family reunions we are more apt to destroy what sense of family unity they do feel instead of promoting it.

Health for All

Statistics Are People

You've heard the old joke: "There are lies, damn lies, and statistics." It may be a reflection of our grammar school struggles with arithmetic, but whatever the reason, many of us are suspicious of statistics. "You can't reduce people to numbers," we say when confronted with a table of figures.

But you can learn important things about people from statistics. And researchers are doing it every day. It's amazing how much information about our lives is filed away in statistical tables. The polls have the answers about our incomes, professions, savings, spending, political views, happiness and health. Some of these statistics are gathered by questioning the total population, as in the U. S. Census. Other information is gained by polling smaller groups selected by scientific sampling methods so that they have the same make-up as the total population.

For example, the U. S. Public Health Service wanted to find out was happening to tuberculosis patients who were not being treated in hospitals. In 37 areas selected by sampling techniques, TB patients were sought out in their homes. All possible information was collected—age, sex, race, marital status, family composition, status of their illness, reasons why they were not hospitalized, medical care or lack of it, their social and economic problems, what services they needed and what were available to them.

The results obtained could be taken as applying to the country as a whole, and those results showed serious deficiencies in medical supervision and social services for these people. With these statistics — which mean people with problems — health departments, social agencies, and tuberculosis associations can proceed to make the changes in programs and policies that are necessary to fill the need.

Starting today and continuing throughout the Lenten season more than 200,000 boys and girls attending the Catholic elementry and high schools in the New York Archdiocese will contribute their pennies and prayers for the homeless, sick and hungry children of Europe, Asia, Africa, the Near and Far East and South America. Their participation marks the start of the 1959 appeal of the Bishops' Fund for overseas relief.

In last's years campaign school children contributed $99,436, Right Rev. Msgr. John F. McCarthy, who is directing the appeal for the archdiocese, reports.

From kindergarten through high school, coin boxes, milk bottles and other containers have been placed around the classrooms for children to deposit their offerings which will be used to supply poor children overseas with food, medicine and clothing. An illustrated "Lenten Calendar," has been hung in every classroom and teachers supplied with a handbook containing information on foreign countries and the needs of their destitute populations including refugees and native poor.

The children's Lenten collection will supplement the general Bishops' Fund Appeal scheduled for March 1 to 8 in all Catholic churches throughout the New York Archdiocese. It is part of the national campaign for which a goal of $5,000,000 has been set.

Upholds Record

HUMBOLDT, Neb. (AP) — For 27 years Mrs. Ward Merritt never missed teaching her Sunday school class. When she was taken to a Humboldt hospital for an emergency appendectomy it looked as though Mrs. Merritt's record was in danger. On Sunday, however, Mrs. Merritt and her class were together—in her hospital room. The entire class had driven from Verdon, 13 miles away, where the church is located.

Greatness Alone Is Not Enough

By SOPHIE MILLER

Received a timely article from H. LeRoy Gill, attorney at law, of Kingston. Gill writes in his letter that he enjoys this column and it brings back to his mind, many pleasant recollections. I certainly appreciate these kind words.

Attorney Gill's article begins "I wonder how many readers of your column remember the days when ice harvesting on the Hudson River at Kingston was an important local industry during the winter months. I was born and spent my early years in the Ponckhockie section of the city, near the Hudson River, and so, I had an opportunity to observe this industry at first hand. For those who do remember those days, it may bring back pleasant memories, and for those of the younger generation, it may be interesting to take a glance at a once flourishing industry, which may now be called a dead industry, at least in the Hudson River area."

He further writes: "In those days, there were no ice breakers such as are now used to break through the ice and clear a channel for ships to pass through, bound for Albany, and so, there was a surface of ice on the river, which was unbroken from shore to shore. It was the practice to wait until the ice had attained a thickness of at least 10 inches before harvesting was begun, but a thickness of 14 inches was considered a better crop. Horses were used to pull a cutting saw over the ice field to mark out and cut the ice, part of the way through."

"After this was done, the ice was then cut all the way through by men working with specially designed hand saws, and was then cut into rectangular cakes 22 inches by 34 inches and weighing approximately 200 pounds each. The cakes were then placed upon elevators which consisted of an endless chain device which hauled the cakes into a large storage ice-house. The cakes were then stored away in layers and packed at the siding with 12 inches of sawdust and the top of the layer was covered with several inches of salted hay to keep the ice in good condition and to retard its melting during storage."

Attorney Gill further explains "In the summer months the ice was sold to retail dealers and distributed by them to the public and sold from house to house. As there were no electric refrigerators at that time, each home had its individual ice box for the storage of the family food supply, and a small cake of ice placed in such a container would last usually several days according to the weather," he concluded.

Folks still talk about the ice-harvesting around here. It was an old saying to the effect that when boys went to work on the ice they came back men. In those days it seems they started to work when they were 14 years old or younger. According to an item in the Kingston Argus of Feb. 20, 1889 there were some 126 ice houses on the Hudson River, 97 north of Barrytown and some 29 south. Ice houses around the upper section held some 2,511,500 tons, and south of Barrytown some 919,000. It was a big industry. It gave boatmen work in the winter. It put food on their table and gave them a good appetite to eat it.

Suspicious Wares

OGALLALA, Neb. (AP) — When an unidentified man came into the post office and tried to sell him a quantity of stamps, Postmaster Jack Gemmell explained his regular supplier kept him well stocked. Gemmell notified police, who noted that the postoffice at nearby Stratton had been burglarized the night before. The "stamp salesman" disappeared before police could find him.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Family Reunions Can Be Boring for Adolescents

What did traditional family reunions mean to you as a child?

Excitement, I bet. First, there was the fragrance of the special dinner cooking and the thrilling abundance of candy. There were the anuts who were fascinated over how you'd grown and the uncles who slipped you dimes and quarters.

Then, after dinner came the reminiscing. From her chair, Grandma would say, "Do you remember the day the car broke down and Papa borrowed the Taylors' truck to drive us all to the movies?"

At once our other relatives burst into a chorus of "Do you remember?" And we sat silently by, open-mouthed and absorbed while they recollected mutual experiences that sounded as exotic as fairy tales.

But at 15, 16 or 17, did the reminiscences still hold fascination for you? Or when they began did you groan inwardly, thinking. "Oh my goodness, is Uncle Frank going to tell that old story about the stolen crab apples again?"

The truth is, in adolescence most of us begin to feel a little restless at family reunions. Now that the big holidays are long since over, let's admit how we felt toward them ourselves so that next year we can give better understanding to the same feeling in our own teenagers.

Your Harry's insistence on keeping a skating date on Christmas afternoon was not family disloyalty but his healthy need to experience his own life instead of reliving yours with you and your family. Ethel's eagerness for her New Year's Day call was not disrespect for your relatives but her wholesome wish for relationship of her town.

We invite unnecessary anguish when we expect our nearly mature youngsters to feel the same intense interest in our families, our other children, our parents and brothers and sisters that we feel. While they are getting ready to start families of their own they can't feel it.

When we make sentimental demands for their full, unbroken attendance at family reunions we are more apt to destroy what sense of family unity they do feel instead of promoting it.

Health for All

Statistics Are People

You've heard the old joke: "There are lies, damn lies, and statistics." It may be a reflection of our grammar school struggles with arithmetic, but whatever the reason, many of us are suspicious of statistics. "You can't reduce people to numbers," we say when confronted with a table of figures.

But you can learn important things about people from statistics. And researchers are doing it every day. It's amazing how much information about our lives is filed away in statistical tables. The polls have the answers about our incomes, professions, savings, spending, political views, happiness and health. Some of these statistics are gathered by questioning the total population, as in the U. S. Census. Other information is gained by polling smaller groups selected by scientific sampling methods so that they have the same make-up as the total population.

For example, the U. S. Public Health Service wanted to find out was happening to tuberculosis patients who were not being treated in hospitals. In 37 areas selected by sampling techniques, TB patients were sought out in their homes. All possible information was collected—age, sex, race, marital status, family composition, status of their illness, reasons why they were not hospitalized, medical care or lack of it, their social and economic problems, what services they needed and what were available to them.

The results obtained could be taken as applying to the country as a whole, and those results showed serious deficiencies in medical supervision and social services for these people. With these statistics — which mean people with problems — health departments, social agencies, and tuberculosis associations can proceed to make the changes in programs and policies that are necessary to fill the need.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato:

America seems to have lost one of its safety valves — the old-fashioned Sunday afternoon nap.

It is hard to say just when civilization went astray in our country. Some say it happened right after the first World War when the Russians embraced communism and the Americans adopted prohibition.

Some date it from the time when U. S. women were given the ballot and also started smoking cigarettes in public. Still others claim civilization died with the five-cent glass of beer.

Bows to Sunday Trip

But a good case could be made for the contention that civilized living began to decline when the average man gave up his Sunday afternoon nap and took up Sunday driving. Life has been one mad whirl ever since.

The old-fashioned Sunday afternoon nap in most homes was a ceremony as full of ritual as a lodge meeting.

It started with a massive Sunday dinner, a loving work of art that took mother all morning to prepare. This was served promptly at two o'clock.

After a meal that would fell three of today's modest trenchermen, the head of the house would push back his chair, yawn and say, "Well, guess it's time for the nap."

He would go into his bedroom, and when he took off his shoes you could near his sigh of relief all through the house. In taking off his shoes father symbolically also shed the woes, griefs and annonyances of his whole work week.

Warning to Children

He'd then stretch out on the bed, cover his face with the Sunday newspaper — and in five seconds be sound asleep.

"If any of you children dare wake him up, I'll--" said mother, leaving her threat unfinished as she waved a warning finger. Then she would retire to a comfortable chair in the living room, and doze herself over the pile of undarned socks in her lap.

Three hours after he hit the pillow, father let out a series of cacophonous grunts, wheezes and groans, like an old steam engine on a hard uphill grade. Then he woke up.

Where is the family peace of those vanished Sundays? Today people work so hard on Sunday trying to find joy somewhere outside the home they are still worn-out on Monday morning.

Mark of the Judge

NEW LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP)—Because his busy schedule makes him hard to locate, Judge Walter J. McClintock of Perry County carries a batch of signs indicating his progress. They include: "Back in 15 Minutes," "Gone All Day," "Here This Evening," etc. He leaves them where people are apt to come looking for him.

Chrysler's Super Soft Cushion Tires

For the first time the smoothest-riding tires offered on any American passenger cars are available on many Chrysler models. With up to 10.4 square inches more tread in contact with the pavement at any time, they provide the smoothest ride yet available, and are the perfect compliment to Torsion-Aire suspension. The tires are inflated to 16 pounds in front and 16 pounds in rear.

Custom Super Soft Cushion tires in 9.20 x 14 inch size may be selected instead of the standard 800 x 14 size on Chrysler Windsor models. The larger tires are offered in 9.80 x 14 size on Saratoga series models, replacing the standard 8.50 x 14 size.

Chrysler New Yorker series models may be ordered with 10.40 x 14 inch Super Soft Cushion tires to replace the 9.00 x 14 tires which are standard equipment.

They are available on all models except Town & Country wagons, convertibles and those equipped with True Level air suspension.

Other tire options available on 1959 Chryslers include Captive-Air tires, which provide up to 100 miles of travel after a puncture, and nylon cord tires.

Most Powerful Chrysler to Be Displayed at Auto Show Here

Facilitate Safer Highway Driving

The new Chrysler 300E, the most powerful Chrysler ever built, will be displayed at the Auto Show here. It is described by Chrysler Division engineers as the most powerful Chrysler ever built.

R. M. Rodger, chief engineer and director of product for the Chrysler Division, says the 300E provides higher accelerating thrust than any other U. S. production automobile.

The 300's new V-eight engine is completely redesigned, and has a displacement of 413 cubic inches. Equipped with twin four-barrel carburetors, it develops 380 horsepower at 5,000 rpm., and 450 pound-feet of tourque at 3,600 rpm.

The previous model, the Chrysler 300D with a 392 cubic inch engine, also had a maximum horsepower rating of 380. However, Mr. Rodger says road tests have shown that the 300E outperforms the previous model in acceleration. He emphasizes the new engine provides more punch in the low and medium speed ranges. In engineering tests the 300E accelerated from 0-30 mph in 3.4 seconds and 0-60 mph in 8.3 seconds.

"This added power will facilitate safer driving," Mr. Rodger points out. "It will mean less exposure to oncoming traffic when passing, less exposure to cross-traffic at intersections, and smoother blending with expressway and turnpike traffic."

In keeping with the 300's tradition of automotive pioneering, "living" leather interiors are introduced to the industry for the first time in the 300E. Through a new process, 300 genuine leather upholstery has been perforated in attractive basket weave pattern. Even in the hottest weather, the new perforated leather allows ample circulation of cool air. Interiors are in beige "living" leather with black accents in carpeting, safety dash panel, and lower door and cowl panels.

The 300's tradition of simplicity has been retained in exterior design, with omission of all nonfunctional chrome trim, and the use of single-tone painting. Its distinctive, easily identifiable racing-type, funnel-shaped grille is flanked by dual headlamps. Below each lamp is an air intake slot which helps cool front brakes. A sculptured front bumper has recessed combination parking and directional lights. The 300E is available in two models: 2-door hardtop and convertible, and are offered in six solid colors: white, black, red, copper, gray and tan.

Front swivel seats, power brakes and Torqueflite pushbutton transmission are standard equipment.

The fleet and the beautiful. That's the 1959 Chrysler Windsor with new 305 horsepower Golden Lion 383 engine. Completely restyled grille and front fenders, roof panel insert, rear quarter area, and taillights have won for the Windsor a place of prominence in the Chrysler exhibit at the Auto Show. Push-button air conditioner and heater controls, advanced torsion bar suspension and an extra large rear window are among its features. Ease-of-entry front swivel seats are optional.

High Performance Engine

The 300E introduces a completely new engine design to the 300 series. Although 100 pounds lighter than its predecessor, it provides more structural rigidity for smoother operation and better durability, plus increased torque output in low and middle speed ranges. This means improved performance where most highway driving is accomplished. Proving ground tests show the 300E accelerates approximately 10 per cent faster than the previous model with the former 300 engine.

The 300E engine incorporates a number of special features which result in its high power output. These include four-barrel carburetors, a full-race camshaft, special intake manifold, low restriction air cleaners, low back pressure exhaust system (two-door hardtop), heavy duty valve springs and dampers, and speed limiting fluid fan drive.

The 300E engine has a compression ratio of 10.1 to 1, and features an automatic choke, paper element air cleaners, and full-flow oil filter as standard equipment.

Hydraulic tappets are now used in place of the mechanical tappets formerly used. A considerably lighter valve train allows the 300E engine to satisfactorily reach elevated engine speeds without valve float. At the same time, the hydraulic tappets make possible quieter operation and eliminate need for adjustment.

The automatic Torqueflite pushbutton transmission provides unmatched accelerating characteristics. Designed to give the optimum combination of smoothness and performance, it is modified to match the special operating characteristics of the 300E engine and the 3.31 rear axle.

300E suspension has been designed to give handling characteristics desirable in a powerful automobile. A combination of low center of gravity, high rate chassis springs and heavy-duty shock absorbers enables the 300 to negotiate corners and winding roads with negligible body sway or tire squeal. The ride transmits road irregularities that give the driver the impression of being part of the machine.

The car is equipped with special Blue Streak racing-type tires. The combination of nylon construction with a low cord angle to reduce side wall deflection, and a special tread stock results in increased tire strength and lower operating temperature. These tires contribute to the solid feel of the car in all types of driving, and are an important factor in giving excellent high speed fuel economy.

States to Work Out Own System On Commuter Ills

NEW YORK (AP) — The increasing problem of interstate commuting rested in the individual laps of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut today.

Creation of an interstate agency to wrestle with the commuter crisis was virtually ruled out Tuesday at a closed hearing attended by the three states' governors and Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York.

Gov. Rockefeller and Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut told newsmen that each state will attack its problems individually at the state level. The states will not enter into a formal association, the governors said, but will cooperate fully with one another.

The position of New Jersey's Gov. Robert B. Meyner was less clear. He left the hearing at about the midway point to fly to Brazil. But since New York and Connecticut have all but discarded the possibility of an interstate compact, Meyner's position on that point must be considered academic.

State Must Face Problems Now, Governor Advises

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller says "the people must have the courage to face current problems squarely and not put off for future generations the payment for services needed now."

The governor made the statement in defense of his taxing and spending program on the eve of today's public hearing at Albany on his proposed two-billion-plus budget.

He appeared as an unscheduled speaker at the convention of the Association of Towns of New York State. More than 4,000 officials from nearly 900 communities are attending the three-day convention, which ends today.

Rockefeller defended various aspects of his taxation and spending proposals.

U. S. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester, who was elected with Rockefeller on the Republican ticket in November, discussed the federal budget in addressing the association's annual dinner Tuesday night.

The town officials' convention adopted resolutions approving 15 legislative proposals covering housing codes for towns, territorial annexations and highway items. It also favored home rule powers for communities of more than 5,000 population.

The association elected Alton G. Dunn of Otego as president. Others elected were: Edward F. N. Uthe, Albany, treasurer; Nathan L. H. Bennett, Hempstead, first vice president; Edward A. Scott Jr., Pelham, second vice president; Loren C. Berry, Cold Spring Harbor, third vice president; F. L. Hosmer, Massena, fourth vice president, and John R. Marshall, Norwich, fifth vice president.

Tithing Days to Be Held at Local Store

Tithing days will be held at the Robert Kreines shoe store for women, 280 Fair Street, Friday and Saturday, February 13 and 14.

Ten per cent of each sale will be mailed by Kreines to the church or synagogue designated by the customer. The customer will be asked to write the name of her church or synagogue on the back of the sales slip.

The local shoe merchant said today that a number of people have asked about the tithing plan and many have praised his program designed to benefit local churches and synagogues.

He said each donation will be in the customers name. For a $10 purchase, for example, he will mail $1 to church or synagogue. He estimates there are approximately 100 churches and synagogues in the area.

Kreines got the idea from Guideposts, a national publication described as a practical guide to successful living.

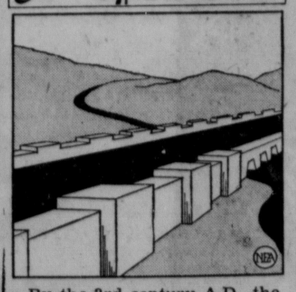
Matter of FACT



By the 3rd century A.D., the Romans had built 11 aqueducts to supply water to Rome. These structures brought water from different sources in the distant hills, up to 50 miles away. One, 22 miles long, brought water into Rome merely to fill a large basin in which sham battles were fought to amuse the people. Two of the 11 aqueducts are still in use.

New Hadassah Film Will Be Viewed Monday at Meeting

A new Hadassah film depicting the work of Hadassah Medical Organization will highlight a meeting of the Kingston chapter, scheduled for 8:30 p. m. Monday, Feb. 16 at Temple Emanuel. Mrs. Murray J. Fletcher will preside.

According to Mrs. Melvin Navy, program chairman, the movie, entitled "Hannah Means Grace," is the moving story of a young girl, crippled in a European DP camp, who nevertheless dreams of becoming a dancer. The story tells how all departments of Hadassah's vast medical organization — doctors, nurses, therapists, social workers and psychiatrists — combine their talents and concern to meet the challenge presented by the little girl's physical and emotional problems.

The movie, photographed in color, contains shots of students at the Hassia Levi-Agron dance group, the Klara Landau-Bondy Ballet Studio and the dance ensemble of the Hebrew University. Also included are views of the new Hadassah Medical Center, now under construction in Einkarem, Isreal.

The film was previewed at the recent national Hadassah convention in Miami Beach, Fla., Mrs. Manuel B. Lipton, delegate to the convention from the local chapter, acclaimed its "beauty, color and magnificant story" in urging all members of the Kingston chapter to attend the Monday night showing.

Also on the program for the meeting will be a talk by Mrs. Lotar Saluc, education chairman, and reports by Mrs. Herbert Gertner and Mrs. Sidney Halpern on future Hadassah projects.

Mrs. Fletcher has announced that a midwinter meeting for the Lower New York State Region is slated for Feb. 17 in Newburgh. All members of the Kingston branch who wish to attend the conference, keyed to Hadassah's American Affairs program, are urged to contact Mrs. Fletcher for further details.

New Paltz Central Names Landau and Karp Top Students

Margaret Karp has been selected to give the valedictory address, and Thomas Landau, the salutatory address at the graduation exercises of New Paltz Central School June 22.

These two students are tied for the number one rank in their class on the basis of their grades for 3½ years. Their average for this period, when rounded to the nearest whole number is 94 per cent. Both are academic students and only a fraction of a percentage point determined the choice of Miss Karp as valedictorian.

8 Others Over 90

The honors won by these two students carries particular significance in view of the fact that eight members of the class have earned averages of over 90 per cent.

In addition to her regular school subjects Margaret has been quite active in music activities. She has been accompanist for the school chorus, played the violin and viola in the school's orchestra, and has played in the string quartet. In addition, she has been in the Dramatics Club, the Science Club and the Girl's Athletic Association. She is a member of the National Honor Society, is a finalist in the National Honor Society Scholarship competition and has applied to Oberlin, University of Michigan, Cornell and Radcliff College.

Young Landau has been active in both music and sports. He plays a trombone in the school band and signs bass in the school chorus. He has played second base on the baseball team. This year he is editor of the school newspaper.

During the past summer he represented New Paltz Central School at the International Youth Conference. In addition to his regular academic and extra-curricular activities he is a member of the mathematics and science honors courses. He has applied for admission to Oberlin, Harvard, Columbia, Wesleyan and Cornell Universities.

Coloratura Warms Concert Audience With Excellent Performance Given Here Tuesday

Miss Roberta Peters, the young and lovely Metropolitan Opera soprano appeared here Tuesday in a concert at the Community Theatre, and gave certainly the most polished and appealing performance long since given by any other coloratura.

Departing from the usual program for a coloratura, Miss Peters' selections included those by Bach, Handel, Schumann, Richard Strauss, Debussy, Ravel and Rossini. Her performance won her warm plaudits from the capacity-filled theatre.

Miss Peters opened her program with Bach's "Follow With Gladness," from the St. John Passion. She sang the selections with beautiful articulation. Wayne Crebo, flutists, gave an equally inspiring performance throughout the evening.

The artistry of Miss Peters' accompanist, George Trovillo, was also emphatically acknowledged by the audience.

Other Selections

Miss Peters also sang Handel's "Sweet Bird" with flute obligato, and Schumann's "Mondnacht," "Roselein, Roselein," "Fruhlingsnacht," "Morgen," and "Amor."

Her beautifully trained coloratura voice just seemed to wrap itself around the Mozart-Adams "Bravura Variations" on a theme by Mozart with flute obligato.

Other selections included Debussy's "Apparition;" Debussy's "Fleur des Bles;" Ravel's "D'anne jouant de l'Espinette;" "L'Enfant et les Sortileges," by Ravel; "I Heard a Piper Piping," by Bax with flute obligato; "There Shall Be More Joy," Nordoff; "Symphony in Yellow," Griffes; "Moon-Marketing," Weaver; and "Music I Heard With You," Hageman.

The popular aria from "The Barber of Seville," Un voce poco fa, was performed brilliantly by the young opera star.

A tremendous ovation at the conclusion of her program, induced the brilliant singer to sing three encores—"Laughing Song" from Fledermaus, "Last Rose of Summer," and "The Russian Nightingale."

It was important to note that not only were concert-goers thrilled with the opera star's voice, but they were also vastly impressed with her stage presence and poise.

This popular Metropolitan soprano will this season star in such operas as "Lucia de Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," "The Magic Flute," "Fledermaus," and "Don Giovanni."

It was as Zerlina in "Don Giovanni" that Miss Peters made her widely-heralded debut in November, 1950, appearing for the first time on any stage when she was rushed in as a last-minute substitute for an indisposed prima donna.

Miss Peters, who is internationally recognized as the foremost coloratura soprano of our time, each year receives almost a blank check from Milan's La Scala to appear there but Met and concert commitments have so far prevented her accepting. The Cultural Ministery of the U.S.S.R. has issued an invitation for the soprano to sing with The Bolshoi Opera in Moscow and in other cities of the Soviet Union early next summer.

Memberships

The next concert to be presented for those subscribed in the Community Concerts Association will be on April 20 when the New York Sextette will make its appearance.

Membership in the local association for next season may be obtained during the week of May 3 from workers or by contacting Mrs. Bernard Forst or Mrs. Lloyd LeFever.

Refugee Problem

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The refugee-aid service of the World Council of Churches reports it is now feeding 18,500 people daily here, and plans to increase the number to 35,000 or more, "but both our funds and food supplies are running low."

ANNUAL EXTENSION CONFERENCE

Last week county extension agents attended the statewide Extension Conference, held annually at Cornell University, in Ithaca. There, New York State's Extension staff, both the college and the county personnel, jointly considered "The Challenge of Change."

America's farm population is reported to be decreasing. This country once was an agricultural society, but in 1950, only 15 per cent of its people lived on farms. Here in New York State that per cent was down to four.

However, 40 per cent of the people in this country depend upon agriculture for a living. For example, this includes those who transport, process, and retail farm products . . . our food and some of our clothing. And then there are the people who manufacture and retail farm machinery and supplies. There is a difference between farming and agriculture. The two words are not synonymous.

Should the agricultural program of the Extension Service serve only those people employed in farming or . . . . more broadly . . . those employed in agriculture?

While only four per cent of New York's population lives on farms, 16 per cent of our people live in the country. The other 80 per cent are urban residents. (This includes all people living in communities of 2,500 and more.) Whom should Extension serve? Farmers? Rural non-farmers? How about this large group of urban residents who need guidance in caring for their home grounds, gardens, and house plants?

As C. M. Ferguson, Administrator of the Federal Extension Service told the Extension staff this week, "A city limits sign no longer divides two cultures." There is little difference in the living patterns of rural and urban residents.

Should this government supported program be available to all the people who are contributing to it . . . or just to those dependent upon agriculture for a living . . . or simply to farm people?

In some respects, New York's Extension Service already is serving the nearly 15 million people of the state. Extension workers disseminate information to all people through newspapers, radio, and television. Cornell Extension Bulletins are available to all New Yorkers.

However, less than one-tenth of our population is actively involved in the program. This includes more than 67,000 men and 82,000 women . . . . farm, rural, and urban . . . who have paid small membership fees and participate in formal . . . organized . . . County Extension Service programs. It also includes over 60,000 young people, 4-H Club members, who pay no membership fee.

Should the Extension agents . . . already kept very busy by these 210,000 members . . . work with even more people? How can they do this and meet the everincreasing demands of the present membership.

Should they use newspapers, radio and television to a greater degree? Should they drop some services which they now offer . . . when much information can be obtained from commercial sources? (Many businesses employ graduates of colleges of agriculture and home economics.)

Should the Extension Service initiate any new programs? For example, should it start a public affairs program . . . a think program . . . dealing with local, state, and national issues? All people, including those engaged in agriculture, are affected by sales taxes, school issues, labor laws, and so forth.

These are some of the questions facing the Extension Service. They are not new questions, but they are some of the "challenges of change" discussed at last week's Extension conference. How will they be answered? That's hard to say. Probably there is no single answer. All 56 different County Extension Service Associations will probably meet these challenges differently . . . for many of the answers must be made by the people in the counties . . . as well as by the Extension staff. But whatever the decisions, they will affect everyone . . . youth, homemaker, home gardener, farmer, processor and consumer.

A MODERN HOSTESS, RESPONSIBILITY

Dear Mrs. Post: When a hostess gives a party and one of her guests seems to be drinking too much, can she refuse to serve him any more liquor? We live in the suburbs and many of our friends have to drive back to the city after a party and I feel it my responsibility that they get home safely. Is there a tactful way to handle this situation.

Answer: She certainly may! In this instance being a little rude to one who is going to drive his, or her, car home is indefinitely better than being overhospitable and very possibly contributing to a horrible accident.

Inviting the Whole Congregation

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and as I am very active in my church would like to invite the whole congregation (it is a small church) to my wedding without sending invitations. Would it be proper to have the clergyman announce this from the pulpit the Sunday preceeding the wedding and say that all are invited to the wedding of Miss Mary Doe and Mr. Henry Smith, and also to the reception afterwards in the church basement?

Answer: In a small church where the members of the congregation are all friends, such an invitation would be entirely practical, and therefore proper.

Printed Thank-You Cards

Dear Mrs. Post: I think a printed thank-you card is cold and says little in the way of thanks. And yet we are receiving them quite regularly. So often in fact, that a thank-you note is beginning to be a rarity. So I wondered maybe if they are today approved by etiquette?

Answer: Much as I like many varieties of printed cards, a printed "thank you" for a real kindness is unthinkable—unless a warm message has been added by hand.

New Hadassah Film Will Be Viewed Monday at Meeting

A new Hadassah film depicting the work of Hadassah Medical Organization will highlight a meeting of the Kingston chapter, scheduled for 8:30 p. m. Monday, Feb. 16 at Temple Emanuel. Mrs. Murray J. Fletcher will preside.

According to Mrs. Melvin Navy, program chairman, the movie, entitled "Hannah Means Grace," is the moving story of a young girl, crippled in a European DP camp, who nevertheless dreams of becoming a dancer. The story tells how all departments of Hadassah's vast medical organization — doctors, nurses, therapists, social workers and psychiatrists — combine their talents and concern to meet the challenge presented by the little girl's physical and emotional problems.

The movie, photographed in color, contains shots of students at the Hassia Levi-Agron dance group, the Klara Landau-Bondy Ballet Studio and the dance ensemble of the Hebrew University. Also included are views of the new Hadassah Medical Center, now under construction in Einkarem, Isreal.

The film was previewed at the recent national Hadassah convention in Miami Beach, Fla., Mrs. Manuel B. Lipton, delegate to the convention from the local chapter, acclaimed its "beauty, color and magnificant story" in urging all members of the Kingston chapter to attend the Monday night showing.

Also on the program for the meeting will be a talk by Mrs. Lotar Saluc, education chairman, and reports by Mrs. Herbert Gertner and Mrs. Sidney Halpern on future Hadassah projects.

Mrs. Fletcher has announced that a midwinter meeting for the Lower New York State Region is slated for Feb. 17 in Newburgh. All members of the Kingston branch who wish to attend the conference, keyed to Hadassah's American Affairs program, are urged to contact Mrs. Fletcher for further details.

New Paltz Central Names Landau and Karp Top Students

Margaret Karp has been selected to give the valedictory address, and Thomas Landau, the salutatory address at the graduation exercises of New Paltz Central School June 22.

These two students are tied for the number one rank in their class on the basis of their grades for 3½ years. Their average for this period, when rounded to the nearest whole number is 94 per cent. Both are academic students and only a fraction of a percentage point determined the choice of Miss Karp as valedictorian.

8 Others Over 90

The honors won by these two students carries particular significance in view of the fact that eight members of the class have earned averages of over 90 per cent.

In addition to her regular school subjects Margaret has been quite active in music activities. She has been accompanist for the school chorus, played the violin and viola in the school's orchestra, and has played in the string quartet. In addition, she has been in the Dramatics Club, the Science Club and the Girl's Athletic Association. She is a member of the National Honor Society, is a finalist in the National Honor Society Scholarship competition and has applied to Oberlin, University of Michigan, Cornell and Radcliff College.

Young Landau has been active in both music and sports. He plays a trombone in the school band and signs bass in the school chorus. He has played second base on the baseball team. This year he is editor of the school newspaper.

During the past summer he represented New Paltz Central School at the International Youth Conference. In addition to his regular academic and extra-curricular activities he is a member of the mathematics and science honors courses. He has applied for admission to Oberlin, Harvard, Columbia, Wesleyan and Cornell Universities.

Theresa E. Turck, Bruce A. Reynolds Exchange Marriage Vows at St. Joseph's

On Saturday afternoon, Feb. 7, in St. Joseph's Church, marriage vows were exchanged between Theresa E. Turck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Turck of 185 Main Street, and Bruce A. Reynolds, son of Mrs. Gladys Reynolds of Woodstock and the late Clarkson Reynolds.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James V. Keating. The altar was decorated with white snapdragons and Mrs. Frank Rafferty was organist for the occasion. Angelo Corrado was soloist.

Dedicated Redemptorist Tells of Missions In Brazil; Here on Visit With Family

A hot, humid climate, water problems, no lights, and a parish of 10,000 persons, has not daunted the spirits of the Rev. Donald B. Quilty, CSsR, son of Mrs. Dennis Quilty of Kingston.

Home for a brief visit, from Miranda, Mato Grosso, Brazil where he was assigned for two and a half years. Father Quilty tells of his experiences and hardships with an ever present sense of humor.

Dedicated to Redemptorist missionary work, Father Quilty says, "It's adventurous enough — what with using Jeeps in the dry season, horses in the wet season; eating rice and beans and mandioca (manioc-root) but our important work is aiding the people spiritually."

Father Quilty spoke of the dangers of snakes, insects, intense heat, maleria, the same as he would tell of walking down Broadway in Kingston.

"Perhaps," he said, "your women readers would be interested to know that we too have a housekeeping problem in Mata Grosso. The floors, for instance, must be waxed every day with DDT wax (when we can get it!)"

The reason for this special care is because in Miranda, Mato Grosso, the insects travel about in army-strength.

"They rarely, if ever, bother a human," says Father Quilty, "but we find that if the floors are cared for in this fashion, they will stay away from the houses."

The insect problem is a vicious cycle, the priest admits, because if they are left alone, eventually a horde of ants will invade the premises, rid the place of insects (which takes a day or so) and leave.

When the ants have left by the rear, the insects, a new batch) come in by the front.

"However, these things don't bother you after a while," Father Quilty said.

Education Important

Next to seeing to the religious needs of the people in the parish, education is an important part of Father Quilty's work.

"Although the state, federal and municipal governments are doing all in their power to foster education," Father Quilty said, "education is still not compulsory."

"I find the thirst for knowledge everywhere I go, however, and it is for this reason that we must expand our educational facilities."

As Father Quilty stated, money is sorely needed for building a school. "These people want to learn," he said, "we just don't have the place for them. The first graduating class was in December of 1958. There were 12 in the class, some of them 25 years of age."

About the country, itself, Father Quilty informs us that one of the main occupations is cattle raising. Brahma cows are to be found in this area. The Indians also work in the sugar industry.

The women are wonderful sewers and friendship is a thing not to be easily broken. When invited to someone's house, you are not expected to refuse except for reasons of serious illness. If your host discovers that you have stayed away and you were not very ill, the friendship is broken.

Ordained in 1951

Father Quilty, who expects to remain in Kingston until the end of April after which time he will return to Miranda, Mato Grosso, Brazil, was ordained June 21, 1951 at Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus by His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman. He sang his first solemn high Mass at St. Joseph's Church.

The brother of Lawrence Quilty of 43 Green Street, he attended primary school in Boston, Mass., grammar school at St. Joseph's, this city, and after a year in the Myron J. Michael School, studied at St. Mary's College, North East, Pa., for six years. He completed another year of study at St. Mary's College, Maryland, after which he studied five years at the Redemptorist Seminary, Esopus. He then served at St. Mary's Church, Annapolis, Md., before leaving for Brazil in 1952. Father Quilty visited his mother in 1955 also.

Annual expenditures for civilian health and medical services in the United States are estimated to be about $94 a person.

Tips for the Hostess Who Wants to Be the Mostest

A hostess with the mostest offers the following down-to-earth rules for giving a good party.

One. Never entertain a small group of friends without bringing in some "new blood." If you do, you'll find the little group talking about the same things they talked about last week at someone else's party and becoming bored.

Two. Never confuse having a party with repaying social obligations. A hostess has to do both, but she ought to keep the occasions separate.

Have the people you want to one party and the people you merely "owe" to another.

Three. If you see that the men are beginning to drift off and leave the women, do something quickly to bring them back.

Get someone at the piano who can play popular songs (men love to sing) or get everybody playing a game.

But whatever you do, don't just stand and make wifely sounding comments like, "Did you ever know it to fail? Jim has all the men watching the fights."

Four. Keep your meats and vegetables separate if you want the men to enjoy the meal. Women love so-called "one-dish meals" with everything junked in a casserole, but men like to cut their meat with a knife.

Five. Don't expect anyone to eat from his lap and be happy while doing it. If you are serving buffet, at least have enough tray tables for each person to have a place to set his plate.

Six. Don't hurry, bustle, or look worried no matter what goes wrong. A relaxed-appearing hostess makes her guests feel relaxed, while a nervous hostess makes them wonder when they can decently get away.

Let your guests go when they want to go instead of making them feel apologetic for leaving.

Just following those few rules will turn you into a happy hostess, instead of a harried one, this woman claims.

Next time you give a party you might want to give them a try—unless, of course, you have been following them so long you've already become known as the hostess with the mostess in your own town.

Divorce Suit Against Singer Put Off 2 Days

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Trial of actress Debbie Reynolds' divorce suit against singer Eddie Fisher has been postponed two days to Feb. 19.

Miss Reynolds charges Fisher with cruelty. In interviews she has blamed actress Elizabeth Taylor for the breakup of her marriage.

A financial settlement agreed on two weeks ago has not been signed. Belcher said further postponement of the case may become necessary if the pact is not executed soon.

Didn't Know of Danger

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mrs. Henry F. Chadeayne groped for the ringing telephone early Tuesday.

It was a long distance call from her nephew, David Volk of Indianapolis.

"Are you all right?" Volk asked.

"Of course," replied Mrs. Chadeayne. "Why do you call at this hour?"

Then she and her husband learned of the tornado which had ripped through St. Louis, passing a half a block from their apartment.

Two N.Y. Deaths Are Blamed on Wintry Weather

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Upstate New Yorkers chipped away again today at a winter wonderland—a wonderland that still spelled peril for many persons.

A fresh snow fell across most of the state during the night, softly camouflaging shelves of ice on streets and highways.

Rain that froze as it reached the ground early Tuesday night in eastern and southern counties of the state left behind forests of icicles, luminous trees and utility lines that creaked beneath a weight of silver.

In southern Erie County, 12 Indian families were evacuated from their homes on the Cattaraugus reservation as the Cattaraugus Creek mounted.

At least two deaths were reported.

Gareld M. Hoffman, 52, of Rochester, died Tuesday after his automobile skidded and struck a utility pole in Rochester.

Hiram Sensabaugh, 75, of Buffalo, suffered a fatal head injury when he slipped on ice in front of his home Tuesday.

Scores of perons were injured in falls on shoals of ice.

Albany Airport shut down for the second night in a row as snow rolled like smoke across the runways.

Fog saddled LaGuardia Airport in New York City.

Shoe Fits, He's Held

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Cinderella-like, the loss of a shoe led to the arrest of Robert Hernandez, 26, Tuesday.

Police Sgt. Frank Robertson found a shoe at the scene of an attempted burglary. On return to headquarters Robertson found Hernandez had been picked up for questioning. He was wearing only one shoe.

The shoe Robertson found fit Hernandez. He was booked for investigation.

Tips for the Hostess Who Wants to Be the Mostest

A hostess with the mostest offers the following down-to-earth rules for giving a good party.

One. Never entertain a small group of friends without bringing in some "new blood." If you do, you'll find the little group talking about the same things they talked about last week at someone else's party and becoming bored.

Two. Never confuse having a party with repaying social obligations. A hostess has to do both, but she ought to keep the occasions separate.

Have the people you want to one party and the people you merely "owe" to another.

Three. If you see that the men are beginning to drift off and leave the women, do something quickly to bring them back.

Get someone at the piano who can play popular songs (men love to sing) or get everybody playing a game.

But whatever you do, don't just stand and make wifely sounding comments like, "Did you ever know it to fail? Jim has all the men watching the fights."

Four. Keep your meats and vegetables separate if you want the men to enjoy the meal. Women love so-called "one-dish meals" with everything junked in a casserole, but men like to cut their meat with a knife.

Five. Don't expect anyone to eat from his lap and be happy while doing it. If you are serving buffet, at least have enough tray tables for each person to have a place to set his plate.

Six. Don't hurry, bustle, or look worried no matter what goes wrong. A relaxed-appearing hostess makes her guests feel relaxed while a nervous hostess makes them wonder when they can decently get away.

Let your guests go when they want to go instead of making them feel apologetic for leaving.

Just following those few rules will turn you into a happy hostess, instead of a harried one, this woman claims.

Next time you give a party you might want to give them a try—unless, of course, you have been following them so long you've already become known as the hostess with the mostess in your own town.

Divorce Suit Against Singer Put Off 2 Days

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Trial of actress Debbie Reynolds' divorce suit against singer Eddie Fisher has been postponed two days to Feb. 19.

Attorney Frank B. Belcher, representing Miss Reynolds, asked the delay because of a conflict in his work schedule.

Miss Reynolds charges Fisher with cruelty. In interviews she has blamed actress Elizabeth Taylor for the breakup of her marriage.

A financial settlement agreed on two weeks ago has not been signed. Belcher said further postponement of the case may become necessary if the pact is not executed soon.

Edge-Patterson Nuptials Are Announced; Ceremony Takes Place at St. Mary's Church

Miss Jeanne Marie Edge, daughter of Chester Edge of 72 Garden Street, wed Kenneth A. Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Patterson of Newburgh, Feb. 7, at 1:30 p. m. in St. Mary's Church.

Officiating clergyman was the Rev. Francis X. Toner. Theodore Riccobono was organist and Barbara Bruck sang the "Ave Maria."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. For the wedding ceremony she wore a gown of imported Alencon lace faashioned with a Sabrina neckline, fitted bodice, embroidered with tiny sequins and a bouffant floor length scalloped skirt. A detachable train of matching lace was fastened under a small peplum in the back. A lace tiara with fingertip illusion veiling embroidered to match the gown completed the ensemble. The bride carried a cascade of white carnations and an orchid.

For the occasion, the church was decorated with baskets of sweet peas and snapdragons.

Mrs. Mary F. Patterson of Newburgh, was matron of honor. She wore a full length gown of white embroidered velveray over aqua taffeta. The full skirt was enhanced with a bustle of matching taffeta that draped to the floor. A matching tiara and white gloves completed the outfit. Mrs. Patterson carried a cascade of pink roses and pink carnations with pompons.

Wearing gowns of identical styles except in white over pink were the attendants, Mrs. Bernice Pritchard of St. Remy, the bride's sister, and Mrs. Ruth Edge of Kingston. They carried baskets of pink roses and pink and blue carnations.

Warren Patterson of Newburgh was the best man; while Robert A. Edge, the bride's brother, and George Patterson of Newburgh, the bridegroom's brother, served as ushers.

A reception for 110 guests was held at the Alpine.

The bride, who was graduated from Kingston High School, is employed by IBM in Kingston. Her husband, an alumnus of Newburgh Free Academy, served four years with the U. S. Navy. He is employed by the Highland Ice Cream Company, Newburgh.

When Mr. and Mrs. Patterson return from their wedding trip, they will reside at 37 Fowler Avenue, Newburgh.

A World Day of Prayer Service will be held in the sanctuary of the Woodstock Reformed Church on Friday, Feb. 13, at 2 p. m. ,with the Rev. Herald C. Swezy, vicar of St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, as speaker.

The Pharisees Sermon Topic For Methodists

"Have We Been Fair to the Pharisees?" is the question asked in the sermon to be preached in the Woodstock, Wittenberg and Shady Methodist Churches this Sunday, Feb. 15.

Whenever Christians have given thought to the part played by the Pharisees in having Jesus crucified, we have concluded that these hypocrites must be terrible men. The contrary is the case. Many of the Pharisees were the highest examples of human conduct the world had known until that time, and very probably until our own day, except in the case of Jesus himself. What went wrong with the Pharisees? What was the threat to their religion which would drive them to kill to preserve it? We will think about these questions together this Sunday. You are invited to worship with us.

Join Day of Prayer

The Methodist Church is joining together with the other churches of our town in the World Day of Prayer observance on Friday, Feb. 13, in the Dutch Reformed Church at 2 p. m. The Rev. Herald C. Swezy, vicar of St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, will be the principal speaker.

The Rev. G. Oliver Sands has chosen the theme "Our Temptations" for presentation to the congregation of Christ Lutheran Church in Woodstock on Sunday, Feb. 15, at the 11 a. m. service on the first Sunday in Lent.

Taken from Matthew 6:13, the text speaks of the devils cast out by the first Christian emissaries sent out by our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. We are told they "anointed with oil many that were sick and healed them." How we need that healing when our temptations have led us astray from the fold of our Saviour!

At 9:45 a. m., the Adult class will be considering "Responsibility to God and Man," based on Mark 12:28-34.

Classes for young people, boys and girls of all ages are held at the same time. All are welcome. Come with us and make this your church home in Woodstock.

Tremor Shakes Southwest Areas

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—Something shook up this area Tuesday but nobody seems to know what it was.

The tremor, accompanied by two distinct blasts, shook a large section of the Texas Panhandle and southeastern New Mexico.

The shock was felt in an area from 100 miles northeast of Amarillo to Roswell, N.M., 200 miles to the southwest.

Witnesses said houses swayed and they reported hearing unpleasant noises like trucks hitting gas explosions.

The seismograph at Texas Tech College in Lubbock registered a slight motion. One at Southern Methodist University in Dallas didn't.

Dr. Eugene Herrin, observatory director at SMU, suggested the tremor was the result of an atmospheric disturbance.

Randolph Air Force Base at San Antonio said a supersonic aircraft could have caused the shaking-up. Cannon Air Force Base, Clovis, N.M., said it had no planes that could do it flying over the area at the time. The possibility of a meteor also was raised.

The Pharisees Sermon Topic For Methodists

"Have We Been Fair to the Pharisees?" is the question asked in the sermon to be preached in the Woodstock, Wittenberg and Shady Methodist Churches this Sunday, Feb. 15.

Whenever Christians have given thought to the part played by the Pharisees in having Jesus crucified, we have concluded that these hypocrites must be terrible men. The contrary is the case. Many of the Pharisees were the highest examples of human conduct the world had known until that time, and very probably until our own day, except in the case of Jesus himself. What went wrong with the Pharisees? What was the threat to their religion which would drive them to kill to preserve it? We will think about these questions together this Sunday. You are invited to worship with us.

The Rev. G. Oliver Sands has chosen the theme "Our Temptations" for presentation to the congregation of Christ Lutheran Church in Woodstock on Sunday, Feb. 15, at the 11 a. m. service on the first Sunday in Lent.

Taken from Matthew 6:13, the text speaks of the devils cast out by the first Christian emissaries sent out by our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. We are told they "anointed with oil many that were sick and healed them." How we need that healing when our temptations have led us astray from the fold of our Saviour!

At 9:45 a. m., the Adult class will be considering "Responsibility to God and Man," based on Mark 12:28-34.

Three Yankee Players Giving Hamey Trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — Three New York Yankees — Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald and Tom Sturdivant—are giving Assistant General Manager Roy Hamey the most contract trouble.

Hamey said the three could be put in the "debating class" Tuesday as he talked about the 25 men still to be signed. "I would say they are only three in the debating class," said Hamey. "We are pretty close with the others.

GIL McDOUGALD

Haven't Talked

"Actually, I shouldn't put Mantle in there. We sent him a contract and he returned it with no letter. We haven't talked to him yet. In this day and age you don't do it by letter. There usually has to be personal negotiation."

"McDougald and I talked once before he went to Florida. We'll talk again down there. Sturdivant has written two or three letters and we've written back, but we didn't get far."

Hamey said he met with Whitey Ford for 30 minutes Monday. He said they are "pretty close." Hamey expects to sign Ford in Florida. Both leave Friday.

Expects Big Day

"I expect Monday will be a big day at St. Petersburg, Fla."

Hamey said he did not expect trouble signing Ryne Duren, the relief ace. Duren will report a day late after the Feb. 18 date on which batterymen are expected to be on hand. He has to attend a banquet.

Both Don Larsen and Norm Siebern have been in touch through the mails.

Hamey did have a signing to announce — Bobby Shantz who became No. 16. It was believed the little southpaw, who will be 34 in September, took a cut to about $16,000. He had a 7-6 record last year, a drop from his 11-5 in 1957.

Brown, Busso Set For Title Fight

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Explosive Joe Brown dares young Johnny Busso of New York to knock off his world's lightweight crown tonight. Johnny says he's just the guy to do it, too.

That sums up Houston's third title fight in nine months. There may be 10,000 out to see if aging Joe still has the durability to ward off youth's charge.

Brown, 33, a campaigner for 13 years, meets a fellow who's been in the game less than half that long.

The slim little guy from Baton Rouge, La., battles Busso over the 15-round route starting at 10 p.m. EST with all the country except Houston able to see it on ABC television.

Nine Entries Posted For Breeders Stake

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) —A field of about nine home-folded 3-year-olds shapes up for the California Breeders Champion Stakes at Santa Anita Thursday for a purse that may be worth $89,120.

That would be the added purse if nine go to the post in the mile and one-sixteenth feature. The race is limited to 3-year-olds foaled in California and the $89,120 would make it the richest race under these conditions in the state's history.

Slated to race are Fighting Indian, Finnegan, Monk's Hood, Friar Roach, Linmold, King O' Turf, Navy King, F.H. Russ and The Biscuit.

The Kingston Colonials

★★★A Baseball Legend (1921-27)★★★

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Every baseball team that has ever dominated its own bailiwick sooner or later had to meet the challenge of another hometown aggregaton.

It happened to the Kingston Colonials on July 24, 1927 when Bud Culloton blanked the Kingston All Stars, 10 to 0, on four hits and nine strikeouts.

It was to happen in later years to the Kingston All Stars themselves, the Blue Sox, Pan Ams and other similar aggregations.

The Colonials were at full strength for the local showdown, with Culloton opposing Dewey Van Buren, who had that herky-jerky pitching motion, a sly pick-off throw and a curve ball that danced.

Hank Smedes was behind the plate for the All Stars; Dutch Glaser, an ex-Colonial at third and Joe (Kid) Moore of the 1921 Colonial lineup played second base. Jimmy Merritt, Roy Van Buren and Pres Knight were in the outfield; Walt Black, later a superb southpaw pitcher, at first base and Saehloff at shortstop.

A Breeze for Bud

Culloton never allowed more than one hit in an inning and pitched shutout ball over the last four innings. He retired the last 13 batters in succession.

Van Buren, yielding 10 hits and seven walks was in trouble all the way. The least number of men he faced in one inning was four in the sixth inning.

The Colonials were off and running with three cheap runs in the first inning on walks to Tex Kelly, Bill Shay and Dutch Loeser; an infield out and Dutch Glaser's bobble. Howie Carter's double, Joey Hoffman's walk and a single by Shay sent the Colonial lead to 5-0 in the second.

Schwab slammed his first home run with Loeser aboard in the fifth frame and repeated with two outs in the eighth. Culloton singled Hoffman, who had doubled, home with a run in the seventh.

Winston Beats Knights

The Colonials repelled another local challenge, by a closer margin, when Randy Winston turned back Jimmy Volker and the Knights of Columbus, 5-3, on August 12.

Winston was tapped for two runs in the first inning when Hank Cragan and Steve Didzik singled with two out and Loeser uncorked a wild throw. He then pitched shutout ball until the ninth when an infield error on Tom McGrane and Steve Connelly's pinch double accounted for the final Knights tally.

Volker was greeted with four hits in the Colonial first—singles by Tex Kelly, Bill Shay and Loeser and a double by Joey Hoffman for two runs—but pitched superlatively thereafter. Howie Carter slammed a solo homer in the sixth.

Some of the top independent names in the town were in the KC lineup that day, among them Bernard Feeney, Frank (Boots) Leskie, Matt Cahill, Schultz, Stan Colvin, Tom McGrane and Steve Connelly.

North Carolina State Wins, Missouri's Streak Is Halted

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Big Bob Ayersman of Virginia Tech has pushed his way in among the top four college basketball scoring leaders while helping produce a threat to West Virginia's domination of the Southern Conference.

The 6-4 sophomore from Boomer, W.Va. scored 47 points Tuesday night to lead Virginia Tech to a 104-66 victory over Richmond. Ayersman tossed in 17 field goals and 13 free throws to set a school single game scoring record.

Ayersman hiked his season's total to 478 points and a 28.1 average for 17 games. The only major college players ahead of him are Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati 32.5 Leo Byrd of Marshall 29.8 and Jim Hagan of Tennessee Tech 29.0.

The victory gave Virginia Tech an 8-2 record in the conference.

Ayersman's performance, the 80-72 victory by sixth-ranked North Carolina State over Duke and the end of Missouri's 11-game losing streak were among the noteworthy developments on Tuesday night's program.

Pucillo Shines

Lou Pucillo, North Carolina State's 5-9 guard from Philadelphia, scored 27 points as the Wolfpack picked up their 17th triumph against two setbacks.

Missouri broke the longest losing streak in its history by turning back Oklahoma State 51-44. Missouri won the game at the free throw line, canning 13 of 16 while Oklahoma State managed only 6 of 13. It was Missouri's first victory since beating Rice last Dec. 18.

George Washington came from behind a seven point halftime deficit, tied the score with 53 seconds remaining and defeated Maryland in overtime 66-65. Bill Telasky's jump shot got George Washington even in regulation time. Then Bucky McDonald took over, scoring eight of the Colonials' nine points in the extra period.

In the Southwest Conference, Wade Wolfe scored 15 points before fouling out early in the second half to lead Texas Tech to a 76-54 triumph over Texas and Southern Methodist edged Baylor 54-50 in a tight game during which the lead changed hands 15 times and the score was tied 14 times.

Eastern Kentucky virtually clinched the Ohio Valley Conference championship by whipping Morehead, Ky. 95-77.

In other action, Don Hennon, who has a 27.2 points average for 20 games, had 26 to lead Pittsburgh to a 76-65 victory over Carnegie Tech; Davidson beat winless (0-12) Washington and Lee 84-75 in overtime; Boston University used a fast break to defeat Connecticut for the first time in 24 years, 67-55, and St. Francis (N.Y). defeated Seton Hall 67-58.

Champion Poodle Retires After Winning at Dog Show

NEW YORK (AP) — The queen gave up her throne today.

Ch. Fontclair Festoon, a shiny black Miniature Poodle who went best in show in the Westminister Kennel Club Dog Show Tuesday night, quit almost as soon as the big red, white and blue rosette was presented to her handler, Anne Rogers.

"She is finished," said Miss Rogers. "We had decided yesterday that win, lose or draw, she would be retired. We're sticking to our decision.

"From now on, she will live a life of motherhood."

Miss Rogers said Festoon is a house pet for investment banker Clarence Dillon, who owns the Dunwalke Kennels of Far Hills, N. J.

Close Vote

A Miniature Poodle hasn't won the big one at Westminister since 1943, but the judge, Thomas H. Carruters of Glendale, Ohio, couldn't take his eye off Tina. He admitted it was close, though.

"The Poodle was in beautiful form, full of quality and moved perfectly. The Dane grew on me, but I couldn't fault the Poodle. I also like the Peke very much."

Carruters was talking about two of the other finalists, the Great Dane, Ch. Honey Hollow Stormy Rudio, owned by Cathryn Clark of Medford, N. J., and the Pekingese, Ch. Chik-T-Sun of Caversham, sent in by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Venable of Atlanta.

Barnstorm Trip Seen Near End

CINCINNATI (AP) — The days of long spring training "barnstorming" trips home for National League baseball clubs appear near an end.

The league said today its eight clubs will play 179 exhibition games this spring, but all except 18 will be played in the spring training states of Florida and Arizona.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals won't play any games en route home from the spring training bases at Fort Meyers and St. Petersburg, Fla., respectively.

The Cincinnati Redlegs, Los Angeles Dodgers, Milwaukee Braves and Philadelphia Phils each have scheduled two games en route home.

Three Yankee Players Giving Hamey Trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — Three New York Yankees — Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald and Tom Sturdivant—are giving Assistant General Manager Roy Hamey the most contract trouble.

Hamey said the three could be put in the "debating class" Tuesday as he talked about the 25 men still to be signed. "I would say they are only three in the debating class," said Hamey. "We are pretty close with the others.

GIL McDOUGALD

Haven't Talked

"Actually, I shouldn't put Mantle in there. We sent him a contract and he returned it with no letter. We haven't talked to him yet. In this day and age you don't do it by letter. There usually has to be personal negotiation."

"McDougald and I talked once before he went to Florida. We'll talk again down there. Sturdivant has written two or three letters and we've written back, but we didn't get far."

Hamey said he met with Whitey Ford for 30 minutes Monday. He said they are "pretty close." Hamey expects to sign Ford in Florida. Both leave Friday.

Expects Big Day

"I expect Monday will be a big day at St. Petersburg, Fla."

Hamey said he did not expect trouble signing Ryne Duren, the relief ace. Duren will report a day late after the Feb. 18 date on which batterymen are expected to be on hand. He has to attend a banquet.

Both Don Larsen and Norm Siebern have been in touch through the mails.

Hamey did have a signing to announce — Bobby Shantz who became No. 16. It was believed the little southpaw, who will be 34 in September, took a cut to about $16,000. He had a 7-6 record last year, a drop from his 11-5 in 1957.

Brown, Busso Set For Title Fight

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Explosive Joe Brown dares young Johnny Busso of New York to knock off his world's lightweight crown tonight. Johnny says he's just the guy to do it, too.

That sums up Houston's third title fight in nine months. There may be 10,000 out to see if aging Joe still has the durability to ward off youth's charge.

Brown, 33, a campaigner for 13 years, meets a fellow who's been in the game less than half that long.

The slim little guy from Baton Rouge, La., battles Busso over the 15-round route starting at 10 p.m. EST with all the country except Houston able to see it on ABC television.

Nine Entries Posted For Breeders Stake

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) —A field of about nine home-folded 3-year-olds shapes up for the California Breeders Champion Stakes at Santa Anita Thursday for a purse that may be worth $89,120.

That would be the added purse if nine go to the post in the mile and one-sixteenth feature. The race is limited to 3-year-olds foaled in California and the $89,120 would make it the richest race under these conditions in the state's history.

Slated to race are Fighting Indian, Finnegan, Monk's Hood, Friar Roach, Linmold, King O' Turf, Navy King, F.H. Russ and The Biscuit.

KHS-Ellenville To Play Tonight; Other Games Set

Icy roads, which made travel just about impossible, forced postponement of the entire DUSO league slate yesterday. Three of the four contests will be played tonight, including the Kingston at Ellenville tilt.

Other league games scheduled tonight are Poughkeepsie at Monticello and Newburgh at Fallsburgh. The Liberty at Port Jervis game has been rescheduled for Tuesday, March 3, four days after the end of the regular season.

Two non-league tilts among area teams are scheduled. They are Onteora at Saugerties and New Paltz at Tannersville.

Saugerties Duo Bridge Winners

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gibson of Saugerties won first place on the Northside in the weekly Glenerie Bridge Club tournament which drew a good entry for the Friday night duplicate game at the Ridgeley Casino in Stone Ridge.

Strong players from many parts of the Hudson valley produced a high standard of play in the 21-board Mitchell movement competition.

The Gibsons' victory confirmed the steady improvement and increased confidence of the Saugerties couple. Mrs. Frances Leggett of Stone Ridge and C. Paul Jensen of Kingston finished second and third place went to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Erskine of Hyde Park.

First place in the East-West side was won by the combination of John Chapman of Poughkeepsie and I. H. Wheatcroft of Kingston, whose attacking play produced a 64 percent game. Mr. and Mrs. C. Russell Edwards of Kingston took second place in their first sanctioned duplicate. Third place went to Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. King.

VFW Shufflers Lead by Game

Veterans of Foreign Wars downed the Kingston Power Boat Association, 5-2, to retain a one-game lead in the Inter-Fraternal shuffleboard league.

In other matches, St. Mary's won from Elks Lodge, 5-2, and White Eagles defeated the Knights of Columbus by the same margin.

The team of Bujak and Bolechowicz scored 21 points to win a 21-0 decision in three frames. Other scoring leaders were: Jordan, 20; Newell, Wenzel, Turck 15; Geisler, Esposito, Taiclet, 16; McCardle 17; Holstein, Schatzel 14; Ricconbono 13.

North Carolina State Wins, Missouri's Streak Is Halted

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Big Bob Ayersman of Virginia Tech has pushed his way in among the top four college basketball scoring leaders while helping produce a threat to West Virginia's domination of the Southern Conference.

The 6-4 sophomore from Boomer, W.Va. scored 47 points Tuesday night to lead Virginia Tech to a 104-66 victory over Richmond. Ayersman tossed in 17 field goals and 13 free throws to set a school single game scoring record.

Ayersman hiked his season's total to 478 points and a 28.1 average for 17 games. The only major college players ahead of him are Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati 32.5 Leo Byrd of Marshall 29.8 and Jim Hagan of Tennessee Tech 29.0.

The victory gave Virginia Tech an 8-2 record in the conference.

Ayersman's performance, the 80-72 victory by sixth-ranked North Carolina State over Duke and the end of Missouri's 11-game losing streak were among the noteworthy developments on Tuesday night's program.

Pucillo Shines

Lou Pucillo, North Carolina State's 5-9 guard from Philadelphia, scored 27 points as the Wolfpack picked up their 17th triumph against two setbacks.

Missouri broke the longest losing streak in its history by turning back Oklahoma State 51-44. Missouri won the game at the free throw line, canning 13 of 16 while Oklahoma State managed only 6 of 13. It was Missouri's first victory since beating Rice last Dec. 18.

George Washington came from behind a seven point halftime deficit, tied the score with 53 seconds remaining and defeated Maryland in overtime 66-65. Bill Telasky's jump shot got George Washington even in regulation time. Then Bucky McDonald took over, scoring eight of the Colonials' nine points in the extra period.

In the Southwest Conference, Wade Wolfe scored 15 points before fouling out early in the second half to lead Texas Tech to a 76-54 triumph over Texas and Southern Methodist edged Baylor 54-50 in a tight game during which the lead changed hands 15 times and the score was tied 14 times.

Eastern Kentucky virtually clinched the Ohio Valley Conference championship by whipping Morehead, Ky. 95-77.

In other action, Don Hennon, who has a 27.2 points average for 20 games, had 26 to lead Pittsburgh to a 76-65 victory over Carnegie Tech; Davidson beat winless (0-12) Washington and Lee 84-75 in overtime; Boston University used a fast break to defeat Connecticut for the first time in 24 years, 67-55, and St. Francis (N.Y). defeated Seton Hall 67-58.

Champion Poodle Retires After Winning at Dog Show

PROBLEMS — This bloodhound doesn't take a liking to the dog shows he's forced to enter around the east these days. And he shows it. Besides, would you be happy if your name was Short Bred Bully Boy? He's from Jersey.

NEW YORK (AP) — The queen gave up her throne today.

Ch. Fontclair Festoon, a shiny black Miniature Poodle who went best in show in the Westminister Kennel Club Dog Show Tuesday night, quit almost as soon as the big red, white and blue rosette was presented to her handler, Anne Rogers.

"She is finished," said Miss Rogers. "We had decided yesterday that win, lose or draw, she would be retired. We're sticking to our decision.

"From now on, she will live a life of motherhood."

Miss Rogers said Festoon is a house pet for investment banker Clarence Dillon, who owns the Dunwalke Kennels of Far Hills, N. J.

Close Vote

A Miniature Poodle hasn't won the big one at Westminister since 1943, but the judge, Thomas H. Carruters of Glendale, Ohio, couldn't take his eye off Tina. He admitted it was close, though.

"The Poodle was in beautiful form, full of quality and moved perfectly. The Dane grew on me, but I couldn't fault the Poodle. I also like the Peke very much."

Carruters was talking about two of the other finalists, the Great Dane, Ch. Honey Hollow Stormy Rudio, owned by Cathryn Clark of Medford, N. J., and the Pekingese, Ch. Chik-T-Sun of Caversham, sent in by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Venable of Atlanta.

Barnstorm Trip Seen Near End

CINCINNATI (AP) — The days of long spring training "barnstorming" trips home for National League baseball clubs appear near an end.

The league said today its eight clubs will play 179 exhibition games this spring, but all except 18 will be played in the spring training states of Florida and Arizona.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals won't play any games en route home from the spring training bases at Fort Meyers and St. Petersburg, Fla., respectively.

The Cincinnati Redlegs, Los Angeles Dodgers, Milwaukee Braves and Philadelphia Phils each have scheduled two games en route home.

The Kingston Colonials

* * * A Baseball Legend (1921-27) * * *

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Every baseball team that has ever dominated its own bailiwick sooner or later had to meet the challenge of another hometown aggregaton.

It happened to the Kingston Colonials on July 24, 1927 when Bud Culloton blanked the Kingston All Stars, 10 to 0, on four hits and nine strikeouts.

It was to happen in later years to the Kingston All Stars themselves, the Blue Sox, Pan Ams and other similar aggregations.

The Colonials were at full strength for the local showdown, with Culloton opposing Dewey Van Buren, who had that herky-jerky pitching motion, a sly pick-off throw and a curve ball that danced.

Hank Smedes was behind the plate for the All Stars; Dutch Glaser, an ex-Colonial at third and Joe (Kid) Moore of the 1921 Colonial lineup played second base. Jimmy Merritt, Roy Van Buren and Pres Knight were in the outfield; Walt Black, later a superb southpaw pitcher, at first base and Saehloff at shortstop.

A Breeze for Bud

Culloton never allowed more than one hit in an inning and pitched shutout ball over the last four innings. He retired the last 13 batters in succession.

Van Buren, yielding 10 hits and seven walks was in trouble all the way. The least number of men he faced in one inning was four in the sixth inning.

The Colonials were off and running with three cheap runs in the first inning on walks to Tex Kelly, Bill Shay and Dutch Loeser; an infield out and Dutch Glaser's bobble. Howie Carter's double, Joey Hoffman's walk and a single by Shay sent the Colonial lead to 5-0 in the second.

Schwab slammed his first home run with Loeser aboard in the fifth frame and repeated with two outs in the eighth. Culloton singled Hoffman, who had doubled, home with a run in the seventh.

Winston Beats Knights

The Colonials repelled another local challenge, by a closer margin, when Randy Winston turned back Jimmy Volker and the Knights of Columbus, 5-3, on August 12.

Winston was tapped for two runs in the first inning when Hank Cragan and Steve Didzik singled with two out and Loeser uncorked a wild throw. He then pitched shutout ball until the ninth when an infield error on Tom McGrane and Steve Connelly's pinch double accounted for the final Knights tally.

Volker was greeted with four hits in the Colonial first—singles by Tex Kelly, Bill Shay and Loeser and a double by Joey Hoffman for two runs — but pitched superlatively thereafter. Howie Carter slammed a solo homer in the sixth.

Some of the top independent names in the town were in the KC lineup that day, among them Bernard Feeney, Frank (Boots) Leskie, Matt Cahill, Schultz, Stan Colvin, Tom McGrane and Steve Connelly.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

Lee Harter, fishing rod manufacturer, went into the hindmost parts of Mexico to hunt for big marlin.

After a long fruitless search for a boat, he found an old commercial fisherman who owned an antique double-ender which Lee promptly chartered.

Next morning, the old man and his wife and five small sons were waiting for Harter. They headed out to sea.

Naturally, the boat didn't have outriggers to hold the lines away from the craft, but the old man suggested that Harter put out two baits and fish them flat over the stern. This is standard procedure for marlin anyway, so Lee rigged both a light and heavy rod.

The double-ender barely made headway, and for most of the morning they went pockata-pockata along the coast looking for marlin. About noontime two marlin crashed the baits, and according to our adventurer, a double-header in a double-ender filled with eight people could be sheer panic.

Lee jumped for the heavy rod, figuring that he could whip that marlin more quickly. This, of course, is often a classic snafu when one man is working two rods. He struck the billfish, then reached over and threw the other reel in gear and struck the second marlin.

Before he could get that second rod back in the holder, the old lady grabbed it and handed it to the largest of the small sons. The old man dropped his tiller, popped an inner tube over the lad, and threw him overboard. No. 1 son went drifting off toward the horizon while Harter whipped his fish.

Some minutes later, the old Mexican retrieved his son, who promptly handed the bug-eyed Harter his second rod.

Both marlin were landed.

Virginia Cager Hits 47 Points

A 47-point school record burst by Bob Ayersman against Richmond last Tuesday night moved the Virginia Tech sophomore star into fourth place among the nation's major college basketball scorers.

Statistics from the NCAA Service Bureau show Ayersman with 478 points in 17 games for a 28.1 average. He jumped up from sixth place over Bailey Howell of Mississippi State and Don Hennon of Pitt.

Hennon hit for 26 points Tuesday night but slipped to sixth with a 27.2 average. Jim Hagan of Tennessee Tech, the only other top 10 scorer in action, had 23 against Western Kentucky and held third place although his average tumbled from 29.3 to 29.0.

Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, who is idle all week, remains the leader with a 32.5 mark for 18 [illegible]arshall's Leo Byrd is second with 29.8 for 17 games.

Jones Dairy Wins Four of Six, Forst Formost Breaks Even

Jones Dairy keglers kept in the thick of the fight for second place in the Hudson Valley Bowling league by winning four of six games over the weekend. The Jones boys rolled a blistering 3,122 against George's Bowling Ball Service of Newburgh and then won a game at Liberty against the Triangle Diner.

Forst Formost went from one extreme to the other. The team shut out Walden Orange Recreation five and then was blanked by the Merchants at Middletown. Forst trails Jones Dairy by five games in their fight for second place. The Dutchess Recs have first place almost clinched with an 11 game margin.

Four bowlers were over 600 for the Jones quintet against Newburgh. Chris Gallo bombed 243-191-216-650 to show the way. John Schatzel had 228-219-191-638, John Ferraro Sr. 235-196-203-634 and Fred DiBella 200-194-209-603. Jack Ferraro just missed with 597 sticks. Games were 1105-1016-1001.

Gallo was superlative against Liberty with 179-231-223-633. However, his teammates weren't quite as good and they managed to win only the last game with a 1052 blast. Joe Dice hammered 210-234-205-649 for Liberty.

The Forst team had only 2673 against Walden, but the losers were even worse. Tom Carlino led with 570 and Charley Gildersleeve added 562. Buster Ferraro led the team at Middletown with 589 but the home side won three sigh scoring games.

Coast Fans Get Another Look at Pro Basketball

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —The National Basketball Assn. takes another look at West Coast interest tonight when the Minneapolis Lakers play the Cincinnati Royals at the Cow Palace.

The NBA is mulling proposals to move a couple of teams to the West, or to expand and place teams in the West and Southwest.

In the first western NBA game last month, 13,652 fans saw the Boston Celtics whip the Lakers 109-106 in overtime. The lure for that one, however, was not only the great Bob Cousy, but ex-San Francisco stars Bill Russell and K. C. Jones. All three are with Boston.

Vern Mikkelsen led the Lakers to a 118-100 victory in their Houston affair with a career high of 43 points. It was the only NBA game.

St. Louis was scheduled at Detroit but bad weather forced down its plane at Harrisburg, Pa.

Rig Feels Giants Will be Better

By BILL RIGNEY
San Francisco Giants

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) —The Giants were expected to finish sixth last year. We fooled the experts by finishing third. That's because we came up with the finest rookie crop I've ever had the pleasure of seeing.

I think with that year of experience under their belts, the Giants should be even better in 1959. I don't buy that gab about sophoore jinxes. Our key rookies like Orlando Cepeda, Bob Schmidt, Jim Davenport, Leon Wagner, Willie Kirland and Felipe Alou should be be even better.

I thought we could have used more pitching last year—another top flight starter, and a shut-the-door late inning reliefer. Also, I thought another really first class infielder would have tied the whole club together.

Sanford Added

We've added Jack Sanford to the starting staff and think he can be one of the league's best. Billy Muffett is the fellow I think can be the relief man answer. A year ago with the Cardinals he was as good as they come. In the infield, I'm hoping that Andre Rodgers can make it at shortstop. That will enable me to play Daryl Spencer at second.

I think Mike McCormick, our fine lefty, will be better. All he lacked last year was a man's matured strength. I thought Allan Worthington was surely going to be a good major league pitcher last year. I still think so. It's about time good luck gave a nod to Stu Miller. And don't forget our ace, Johnny Antonelli.

Have Power

Every team can always find room for more pitching. But we have the most power and the most prolific run scoring punch in the league. We have good team speed and possibly the greatest collection of throwing arms all around the field that I've seen.

Milwaukee definitely is the team to beat. They are the champions, have a fine team and outstanding pitchers. Pittsburgh has a nicely balanced and now well-seasoned team.

Notice I didn't once mention Willie Mays? What can I say about him that everybody doesn't already know?

He's just the greatest—that's that's all.

Next—Casey Stengel, New York Yankees.

Giants To Open Without Pilot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The temporary manager as well as Manager Bill Rigney will make a delayed appearance at San Francisco Giant spring training.

Coach Salty Parker notified Giant officials today he won't be able to take charge at Phoenix, Ariz. until next week, probably several days after many players report. He's piloting a club in the Domican Republic League.

Rigney, injured in an auto accident Sunday, named Parker to assume the job until he arrives. Along with a broken jaw, Rigney suffered a fractured collarbone. His wife, Paula, suffered a broken hip.

Vice President Charles (Chub) Feeney said that until Parker checks in the conditioning program will be handled by scouts Frank Shellenback and Tom Shee-

Madden-Suda Win at Bridge

Mrs. John Madden of Ellenville and Robert Suda of Ulster Park turned in a 75 per cent game with splendid defensive play and accurate bidding to capture first place in the Glenerie Bridge Club's duplicate game Tuesday at the Jewish Community Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving K. Wheatcroft of Kingston won second place. James Eng of Ulster Park and Joseph DiDomenico of Mt. Marion were third, with Mr. and Mrs. C. Russell Edwards of Kingston in fourth spot.

Despite poor weather and terrible driving conditions, a large number of players competed. The Glenerie Club will play its regular Fractional Point game next Tuesday at 7:45 p. m.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

Lee Harter, fishing rod manufacturer, went into the hindmost parts of Mexico to hunt for big marlin.

After a long fruitless search for a boat, he found an old commercial fisherman who owned an antique double-ender which Lee promptly chartered.

Next morning, the old man and his wife and five small sons were waiting for Harter. They headed out to sea.

Naturally, the boat didn't have outriggers to hold the lines away from the craft, but the old man suggested that Harter put out two baits and fish them flat over the stern. This is standard procedure for marlin anyway, so Lee rigged both a light and heavy rod.

The double-ender barely made headway, and for most of the morning they went pockata-pockata along the coast looking for marlin. About noontime two marlin crashed the baits, and according to our adventurer, a double-header in a double-ender filled with eight people could be sheer panic.

Lee jumped for the heavy rod, figuring that he could whip that marlin more quickly. This, of course, is often a classic snafu when one man is working two rods. He struck the billfish, then reached over and threw the other reel in gear and struck the second marlin.

Before he could get that second rod back in the holder, the old lady grabbed it and handed it to the largest of the small sons. The old man dropped his tiller, popped an inner tube over the lad, and threw him overboard. No. 1 son went drifting off toward the horizon while Harter whipped his fish.

Some minutes later, the old Mexican retrieved his son, who promptly handed the bug-eyed Harter his second rod.

Both marlin were landed.

Virginia Cager Hits 47 Points

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 47-point school record burst by Bob Ayersman against Richmond last Tuesday night moved the Virginia Tech sophomore star into fourth place among the nation's major college basketball scorers.

Statistics from the NCAA Service Bureau show Ayersman with 478 points in 17 games for a 28.1 average. He jumped up from sixth place over Bailey Howell of Mississippi State and Don Hennon of Pitt.

Hennon hit for 26 points Tuesday night but slipped to sixth with a 27.2 average. Jim Hagan of Tennessee Tech, the only other top 10 scorer in action, had 23 against Western Kentucky and held third place although his average tumbled from 29.3 to 29.0.

Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, who is idle all week, remains the leader with a 32.5 mark for 18 [illegible]ashall's Leo Byrd is second with 29.8 for 17 games.

Jones Dairy Wins Four of Six, Forst Formost Breaks Even

Jones Dairy keglers kept in the thick of the fight for second place in the Hudson Valley Bowling league by winning four of six games over the weekend. The Jones boys rolled a blistering 3,122 against George's Bowling Ball Service of Newburgh and then won a game at Liberty against the Triangle Diner.

Forst Formost went from one extreme to the other. The team shut out Walden Orange Recreation five and then was blanked by the Merchants at Middletown. Forst trails Jones Dairy by five games in their fight for second place. The Dutchess Recs have first place almost clinched with an 11 game margin.

Four bowlers were over 600 for the Jones quintet against Newburgh. Chris Gallo bombed 243-191-216-650 to show the way.

John Schatzel had 228-219-191-638, John Ferraro Sr. 235-196-203-634 and Fred DiBella 200-194-209-603. Jack Ferraro just missed with 597 sticks. Games were 1105-1016-1001.

Gallo was superlative against Liberty with 179-231-223-633. However, his teammates weren't quite as good and they managed to win only the last game with a 1052 blast. Joe Dice hammered 210-234-205-649 for Liberty.

The Forst team had only 2673 against Walden, but the losers were even worse. Tom Carlino led with 570 and Charley Gildersleeve added 562. Buster Ferraro led the team at Middletown with 589 but the home side won three sigh scoring games.

Coast Fans Get Another Look at Pro Basketball

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —The National Basketball Assn. takes another look at West Coast interest tonight when the Minneapolis Lakers play the Cincinnati Royals at the Cow Palace.

The NBA is mulling proposals to move a couple of teams to the West, or to expand and place teams in the West and Southwest.

In the first western NBA game last month, 13,652 fans saw the Boston Celtics whip the Lakers 109-106 in overtime. The lure for that one, however, was not only the great Bob Cousy, but ex-San Francisco stars Bill Russell and K. C. Jones. All three are with Boston.

A preliminary game between musclemen from the San Francisco 49ers and Los Angeles Ram football teams should help the gate.

Vern Mikklesen led the Lakers to a 118-100 victory in their Houston affair with a career high of 43 points. It was the only NBA game.

St. Louis was scheduled at Detroit but bad weather forced down its plane at Harrisburg, Pa.

Rig Feels Giants Will be Better

By BILL RIGNEY
San Francisco Giants

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) —The Giants were expected to finish sixth last year. We fooled the experts by finishing third. That's because we came up with the finest rookie crop I've ever had the pleasure of seeing.

I think with that year of experience under their belts, the Giants should be even better in 1959. I don't buy that gab about sophoore jinxes. Our key rookies like Orlando Cepeda, Bob Schmidt, Jim Davenport, Leon Wagner, Willie Kirland and Felipe Alou should be be even better.

I thought we could have used more pitching last year—another top flight starter, and a shut-the-door late inning reliefer. Also, I thought another really first class infielder would have tied the whole club together.

Sanford Added

We've added Jack Sanford to the starting staff and think he can be one of the league's best. Billy Muffett is the fellow I think can be the relief man answer. A year ago with the Cardinals he was as good as they come. In the infield, I'm hoping that Andre Rodgers can make it at shortstop. That will enable me to play Daryl Spencer at second.

I think Mike McCormick, our fine lefty, will be better. All he lacked last year was a man's matured strength. I thought Allan Worthington was surely going to be a good major league pitcher last year. I still think so. It's about time good luck gave a nod to Stu Miller. And don't forget our ace, Johnny Antonelli.

Have Power

Every team can always find room for more pitching. But we have the most power and the most prolific run scoring punch in the league. We have good team speed and possibly the greatest collection of throwing arms all around the field that I've seen.

Milwaukee definitely is the team to beat. They are the champions, have a fine team and outstanding pitchers. Pittsburgh has a nicely-balanced and now well-seasoned team.

Notice I didn't once mention Willie Mays? What can I say about him that everybody doesn't already know?

He's just the greatest—that's that's all.

Next—Casey Stengel, New York Yankees.

Giants To Open Without Pilot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The temporary manager as well as Manager Bill Rigney will make a delayed appearance at San Francisco Giant spring training.

Coach Salty Parker notified Giant officials today he won't be able to take charge at Phoenix, Ariz. until next week, probably several days after many players report. He's piloting a club in the Domican Republic League.

Rigney, injured in an auto accident Sunday, named Parker to assume the job until he arrives. Along with a broken jaw, Rigney suffered a fractured collarbone. His wife, Paula, suffered a broken hip.

Vice President Charles (Chub) Feeney said that until Parker checks in the conditioning program will be handled by scouts Frank Shellenback and Tom Shee-

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Census Report Reveals School Plans Necessary

It is not too soon to start planning for a new elementary school in the Saugerties Central School District according to a report given by the census committee of the board of education at the meeting Monday night.

A news bulletin, which has already been circulated to board and faculty members, and which will shortly be in the hands of all parents of pupils in the district reveals that in 1961-1962 there will be a shortage of two classrooms in the High School and of five classrooms in the elementary area—even if the three one-room schools remain open, which is believed to be unlikely at that time. The figures do not take into consideration any influx of any new families into the district. In previous discussion of a possible site for the school the Barclay Heights area was mentioned.

The Board renewed for another three-year period the financial support of the District of the Public Library, which is now under the immediate direction of the Village Board of Saugerties. Three other board committees made reports on a reorganization of the administrative and business staff. The first committee defined the duties of the business manager, position now held by Patrick Rodden, which specifies that he should be under Civil Service, and have final authority in controlling all budgetory items which have been previously approved by the appropriate department heads. He will have supervision of contracts; direct the finances of the cafeteria; supervise the activities of the account clerk, who is also clerk of the board; supervise the insuranec program; and be responsible for inventory, stock control, auditing, payroll, and teacher attendance records.

Duties of the cafeteria manager, position now occupied by Mrs. June Myer, were defined to include responsibility for menus; accounts; reports; personnel management; and all other details in connection with the cafeteria operation except the setting up of time schedules and disciplinary matters, which are the responsibility of the principal of each school.

The third committee reported on the appointment of three full time non-teaching principals. Miss May Evans, who is now serving as elementary supervisor, will next year assume the position of director of elementary education. In addition she will act as a full-time, non-teaching principal of the Mount Marion school, and be also responsible for the three one-room schools. Patrick Buonfiglio will assume the principalship of the Glasco School and of the North Flatbush and Malden schools. Norman Bolinder, who is now the principal at the Main Street elementary school will continue in that capacity.

All three of the principals will have secretarial assistance. Each of the elementary principals will be immediately responsible for the supervision and program within his building. The Director of Elementary Education, Miss May Evans, will be responsible for the direction and coordination of the district-wide program of elementary education. This will be aimed at the development of policies, programs, and procedures involving all of the elementary schools and personnel. Her work will touch every facet of the program — curriculum instruction; inservice education and supervision; pupil adjustment and special services; organization and administration; and interpreting the program to the public.

For the third consecutive meeting discussion lasting for well over two hours was devoted to the subject of glass at the high school. The conclusions arrived at were these:

That the board holds the architects responsible for seeing to it that the district and its taxpayers shall not have to pay twice for the glass in the high school building. The architects, represented by Sarkis Arkell and Donald Lansing, were asked to confer with the Dutchess Glass Company and secure assurances from them that any breakage above the normal expectancy for this type of glass will be cared for by the supplier. It was brought out in the discussion that any breakage over five per cent would be regarded as high. Lansing agreed to this point of view.

The board authorized the partial equipment of the third shop at the high school. A third instructor of industrial arts had previously been authorized by the board of education in order to provide instruction in the subject, particularly to the seventh and

Census Report Reveals School Plans Necessary

It is not too soon to start planning for a new elementary school in the Saugerties Central School District according to a report given by the census committee of the board of education at the meeting Monday night.

A news bulletin, which has already been circulated to board and faculty members, and which will shortly be in the hands of all parents of pupils in the district reveals that in 1961-1962 there will be a shortage of two clasrooms in the High School and of five classrooms in the elementary area—even if the three one-room schools remain open, which is believed to be unlikely at that time. The figures do not take into consideration any influx of any new families into the district. In previous discussion of a possible site for the school the Barclay Heights area was mentioned.

The Board renewed for another three-year period the financial support of the District of the Public Library, which is now under the immediate direction of the Village Board of Saugerties. Three other board committees made reports on a reorganization of the administrative and business staff. The first committee defined the duties of the business manager, position now held by Patrick Rodden, which specifies that he should be under Civil Service, and have final authority in controlling all budgetory items which have been previously approved by the appropriate department heads. He will have supervision of contracts; direct the finances of the cafeteria; supervise the activities of the account clerk, who is also clerk of the board; supervise the insurance program; and be responsible for inventory, stock control, auditing, payroll, and teacher attendance records.

Duties of the cafeteria manager, position now occupied by Mrs. June Myer, were defined to include responsibility for menus; accounts; reports; personnel management; and all other details in connection with the cafeteria operation except the setting up of time schedules and disciplinary matters, which are the responsibility of the principal of each school.

The third committee reported on the appointment of three full time non-teaching principals. Miss May Evans, who is now serving as elementary supervisor, will next year assume the position of director of elementary education. In addition she will act as a full-time, non-teaching principal of the Mount Marion school, and be also responsible for the three one-room schools. Patrick Buonfiglio will assume the principalship of the Glasco School and of the North Flatbush and Malden schools. Norman Bolinder, who is now the principal at the Main Street elementary school will continue in that capacity.

All three of the principals will have secretarial assistance. Each of the elementary principals will be immediately responsible for the supervision and program within his building. The Director of Elementary Education, Miss May Evans, will be responsible for the direction and coordination of the district-wide program of elementary education. This will be aimed at the development of policies, programs, and procedures involving all of the elementary schools and personnel. Her work will touch every facet of the program — curriculum instruction; inservice education and supervision; pupil adjustment and special services; organization and administration; and interpreting the program to the public.

For the third consecutive meeting discussion lasting for well over two hours was devoted to the subject of glass at the high school. The conclusions arrived at were these:

That the board holds the architects responsible for seeing to it that the district and its taxpayers shall not have to pay twice for the glass in the high school building. The architects, represented by Sarkis Arkell and Donald Lansing, were asked to confer with the Dutchess Glass Company and secure assurances from them that any breakage above the normal expectancy for this type of glass will be cared for by the supplier. It was brought out in the discussion that any breakage over five per cent would be regarded as high. Lansing agreed to this point of view.

The board authorized the partial equipment of the third shop at the high school. A third instructor of industrial arts had previously

Car Rates Incorrect

The "New Car Rates" as advertised in the Tuesday issue of The Freeman by the State of New York Bank were incorrectly given as "Entire Cost for Year." This heading was supposed to read: "Entire Cost for Two Years."

SPA Won't Use Tuscarora Land; Cuts Water Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — The State Power Authority says the agency will proceed with plans for a smaller reservoir at the Niagara Power project without use of Tuscarora Indian land.

The Indians, balking at use of their land by the authority through purchase, have blocked the plan in court actions.

At Niagara Falls, Chief Elton Greene, chairman of the chiefs' council, was reported elated at the action of the chiefs' council, was reported elated at the action of the Power Authority trustees Tuesday in switching reservoir plans.

Robert Moses, SPA chairman, said the smaller reservoir will mean less power at higher cost.

The U. S. Court of Appeals has upheld the Tuscarora Indians in their fight against giving up part of their reservation.

Moses told the trustees he was willing to wait until March 1 for a final judgment by the court. If the court should reverse itself before entering a final judgement, he said, the power authority would proceed as originally planned with use of Tuscarora land.

Meanwhile, he said, construction of the Niagara power project can proceed until June 1 without a final decision on whether to use Indian land or go ahead with the revised plans.

Retired Civil Employes Will Meet Saturday

The regular monthly meeting of the National Association of Retired Civil Employes will be held at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, at 2 p. m. Saturday, Feb. 14, it was announced today by Mrs. Ruth Cipolli, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Cipolli said that the country-wide NARCE financial status had improved during the year and closed "in the black." The increase of net worth during 1958 is approximately $5,000, she reported. pointing out that since 1952 NARCE has made remarkable strides, the net worth increasing from $68,000 to $165,000.

She said it is "only through active cooperation and the enthusiastic teamwork of all members that real success is achieved. Join with us and help to increase the membership in our local chapter."

All a Mistake

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—John B. Leonard figured he had seen the limit of ingratitude when his 1958 city tax notice listed a $4.30 billing for an ancient four-room house.

Red-faced city officials hurriedly sent a letter advising Leonard the tax had been dropped.

They suddenly remembered that last year Leonard had let city and county firemen burn the house in a training exercise.

Cold Stems Threat Of Pennsy Flood

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sub-freezing temperatures appeared today to have stemmed the threat of new floods in northwestern Pennsylvania communities hit hard last month.

Most streams in the area held steady or crested below flood stage after rising swiftly Tuesday in the wake of heavy rains and spring-like temperatures.

However, the Shenango River at Sharon continued to inch higher early today and went slightly over the 13½ foot flood stage. Several streets in low-lying areas near the river were inundated, but no serious damage resulted.
